Rubber Salvage Drive May Avert Nation-wide Rationing of Gasoline

President Calls For Immediate Collection of Old Tires, Tubes, Boots

Travel Facilities Cut

Possible Solution

President Roosevelt yesterday called for a whirlwind scrap rubber collection campaign whose outcome may determine the final answer to Nation-wide extension of gasoline rationing and the adequacy of rubber supplies for military use.

Inasmuch as the experts are unable to agree in their estimates on the total amount of scrap rubber lying around the country in the form of old overshoes and discarded inner tubes, the President said the only way is to collect all the old rubber and weigh it.

The President said he wants a short, quick and snappy campaign to bring in all the scrap rubber and added that he would like to do the job in two weeks. He indicated that the campaign would be started immediately, striking while the iron is hot.

Checking on Experts

If the country's supply of scrap rubber is no greater than some of the experts say it is, the President stated, the rubber shortage is very serious. If the highest estimates available from the experts are reliable, then the rubber problem for military purposes is not so great, Mr. Roosevelt declared.

No matter how much rubber the collection campaign brings in, he cautioned the rubber shortage will be such that there will be no tires for the average civilian other than those already on his auto.

The American motorist was advised by the President to save his tires as much as possible even if he lives near an oil well. Drive slowly, he said, and cut by at least one-half all driving not essential to get you to work.

Rubber Problem Is National

Considered separately from rubber, the use of gasoline at the present time, the President emphasized, is a problem only along the Eastern seaboard. There is plenty of gasoline, he said, in nearly every other section of the Nation.

The rubber problem, on the other hand, is national in scope and should not be confused with the need for gasoline conservation in the East.

The President said he hoped it would not be necessary to go further in solving the rubber problem than to convince motorists of the need for saving the tires they now have. Several measures for meeting the rubber shortage could be used, he intimated, of which Nation-wide gasoline rationing is one.

Plenty of Storage Space

The President was asked if he intended his campaign to involve "physical" accumulation of scrap rubber. He replied that the immediate aim of the campaign would be

Bishop Corrigan Dies at 63; Returned to D. C. Gravely Ill

10 Hours in Hospital, University Rector Gets Papal Blessing

The Most Rev. Joseph Moran Corrigan, rector of Catholic University of America and titular Bishop of Bilta, died at 7:15 o'clock last night in Georgetown University Hospital at the age of 63. He had been taken to the hospital at 9 a. m. yesterday upon his return here from Loretto Heights, Colo., suffering from pneumonia.

When it was learned that Bishop Corrigan was gravely ill, His Excellency, Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, was summoned and administered the papal blessing. Earlier, the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of the Baltimore-Washington Diocese, visited Bishop Corrigan. At the time of death the bishop's sister, Miss Vina Corrigan of Philadelphia, Pa., his only surviving relative, was at this bedside.

A native of Philadelphia, Bishop Corrigan was appointed rector of Catholic University in 1936 by Pope Pius XI, as successor to the Most Rev. James Hugh Ryan, Bishop of Omaha. Then in February, 1940, he was consecrated titular Bishop

Two additional links in the chain of war collaboration between the United States and Great Britain were forged yesterday with the creation of a Combined Production and Resources Board and a Combined Food Board for the two nations.

The new joint committees are each two-man organizations. The first consists of War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson and British Minister of Production, Oliver Lyttleton. The second is comprised of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and the head of the British Food Mission to this country, R. H. Brand. The latter will act under the instruction of the British Minister of Food, Lord Woolton.

Joint Announcement Made

Creation of the boards was announced jointly in London by Winston Churchill and here by the President at his Press conference.

Duties of the two committees were outlined by Mr. Roosevelt in memoranda to Nelson and Wickard.

The Combined Production and Resources Board, in effect an "international WPB," was instructed to "combine the production programs of the United States and the United Kingdom into a single integrated program, adjusted to the strategic requirements of the war."

To Gain Full Use

"In this connection," the President's memorandum continued, "the board shall take account of the need for maximum utilization of the productive resources of the United States, the British Commonwealth of Nations, and the United Nations, the need to reduce demands on shipping to a minimum, and the essential needs of the civilian populations."

Informed WPB officials indicated that the board would decide such questions as whether certain types of military equipment should be made in this country and other items in Great Britain, or whether it were better to ship raw materials abroad for fabrication or to channel them into production in American factories.

In general, the President indicated, the board's major function would be the allocation of production between the factories of the two nations.

Anecdote Illustrates Point

The Combined Food Board, according to the memorandum to Wickard, is charged with the "best utilization" of the food resources of all the United Nations. It is to formulate plans relating to the

Desert Stronghold Stands Firm Despite Desperate Assaults by Axis

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Allied Forces in Libya, June 9.—The Free French defenders of Bir Hacheim held their desert stronghold on the southern anchor of the Gazala line today after beating off the tenth—and strongest—Axis assault in two weeks of savage battle.

It started on Monday dawn with a pounding from 25 German dive bombers. There followed a long and heavy artillery barrage in which the enemy used guns of from 20 to 210 millimeters, the latter the biggest cannon in use in the desert.

But the enormous shells merely made great, gaping holes in the sand.

French Leader Confident

The garrison, solidly entrenched, held out as firmly as in other attacks, replying to some of the earlier stabs but holding most of its fire for more effective use later.

Gen. Pierre Koenig, the Alsatian veteran of the Foreign Legion, who is in command at Bir Hacheim, wirelessed headquarters that he expected more assaults, but that the situation was not alarming so long as supplies continued to reach him.

At 10 a. m. Monday, three battalions of infantry, mostly Italians supported by tanks, stormed the stronghold.

By enlarging gaps previously made in the minefields, at the cost of some vehicles and men, they got inside the minefield perimeter.

Then the French opened up on them with their own artillery, the mainstays of which are French 75s from Syria.

After three enemy tanks and six other vehicles had been knocked out, the attackers withdrew, badly tangled in the minefields, and kept going to the northwest for three miles.

Perimeter of Mines

A strong force of German tanks then was rushed south from "the cauldron" west of Knightsbridge, where so much of the fighting has taken place. Meanwhile, German dive bombers and R. A. F. fighters fought for hours over the Bir Hacheim sector. R. A. F. bombers effectively attacked the Axis gun emplacements, scoring direct hits, and blasted at the concentrations of men and vehicles.

Bir Hacheim is a plateau almost four miles square set in the desert. In the lowlands about its sides there has been laid a deep perimeter of mines.

In the center of this square of desert highland is a "well of wisdom" from which the fortress takes its name. Today the flag of France still flew over Bir Hacheim and the other French units in the desert were electrified by the valor of the

U. S., British Air Corps Units Arrive to Bolster China's Fight

By International News Service

Chungking, June 9.—Arrival of regular United States and British air force units in China was revealed tonight as savage fighting raged around the Chekiang Province city of Chuhsien, where the Japanese suffered 7000 casualties in two days.

China's fight for existence against allout Japanese offensives in the East and renewed enemy thrusts in the southwest was bolstered by the news that American and British air squadrons had reached this theater.

For it is in the air that China's major handicap lies. The Japanese advances on Chinese territory thus far have been attributed primarily to the enemy's overwhelming aerial superiority over every fighting sector.

Apart from the small Chinese air force, the only aerial assistance hitherto available to China had been that provided by the famous "Flying Tigers" of the American Volunteer Group operating under the Chinese flag. This group has been in action over southwest China and upper Burma, where it has destroyed more than 250 Japanese planes since December 7 and has accomplished other extraordinary feats.

The walled city of Chuhsien, a Chinese communique announced, is once more fully in possesion of Chinese troops. The latter were said to have wiped out a Japanese spearhead that had penetrated into the town after the enemy captured the big airport outside the city's walls.

Bitter street fighting for three days preceded extermination of the Japanese shock units that had driven into the city. The struggle then shifted once more to the city's environs where, the communique said, 7000 Japanese officers and men were killed or wounded in 48 hours. Total Jap casualties before Chuhsien exceed 18,000.

Germans Advance Over Piles of Dead Only to Be Repelled By Hail of Metal

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Wednesday, June 10. Soviet defenders of Sevastopol killed 2500 Germans yesterday in savage hand-to-hand fighting as the Nazis hurled wave upon wave of infantrymen at the approaches of the Black Sea naval base, the Russians announced officially early today.

By sheer weight of numbers the Russians said the Germans blasted their way forward in one sector of the mountain-studded battlefront but that counterattacking Red forces hurled them back.

Twenty-four German tanks were knocked out, the midnight communique said. It listed 6 German planes shot down and 14 damaged.

Under siege seven months, the defenders of Sevastopol have been subjected to a series of vigorous attacks for five days by planes, tanks and infantry in what appeared to be an allout German assault.

50,000 Nazis Already Slain

Upward of 50,000 picked German troops already had died before Sevastopol since last fall, and the toll mounted swiftly by the hour, the Russians reported.

While veteran Red Troops parried every thrust, the civilian population went into the catacombs deep under the city to weather the fiery storm of enemy planes.

A correspondent for Izvestia, official newspaper, said several thousand incendiaries and hundreds of explosives were showered on the city, but the civilians quickly extinguished the fires and repaired damage to essential service.

All vital industries and institutions were established under a thick protective layer of rock, leaving the ground free for full development of the defense.

Some 800 miles to the north, fighting intensified before Moscow, where the Germans made several testing attacks reported to have cost them 6300 dead and 74 tanks in ten days.

Other Sectors Quiet

Other sectors of the 2000-mile front appeared quiet.

Describing enormous German losses before Sevastopol, the army newspaper Red Star said the Germans who succeeded in blasting a wedge into Russian defenses at one point were thrown back over the piled bodies of their dead.

The full fury of the German attack broke in a two-headed drive, after two days of feeler thrusts.

"Strong infantry forces supported by tanks and aircraft shammed an attack on a certain height," Red Star said. "The Germans then sent their main forces into an attack

House Group Bans Gasoline Tax Increase

Treasury Proposal Is Rejected; Levies Raised on Still Wine

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday refused to place any additional Federal tax on gasoline. Before rationing became effective in the East, the Treasury had proposed doubling the present 1½ cents a gallon tax. The committee whittled down Treasury proposals for a long list of excises on selected items, approving only two tax increases on commodities.

Approved was an increase in the excise on lubricating oils from 4½ to 6 cents a gallon. The Treasury had asked an increase to 10 cents.

Also tentatively voted were moderate increases in excises on still wines. Such wines of not more than 14 per cent alcohol content would be taxed 10 cents a gallon instead of the present 6 cents; those from 14 to 21 per cent alcohol would be taxed 40 cents instead of the present 30, and those over 21 per cent alcohol, a dollar a gallon instead of 65 cents. The Treasury had asked that still wines under 14 per cent alcohol be taxed 15 cents a gallon, and those between 14 and 21 per cent alcohol, 50 cents a gallon.

Treasury recommendations on other wines were accepted. These included an increase in the tax on sparkling wines from 7 cents to

House Insists On Full Parity, Cuts FSA Fund

Senate Formula For Farm Prices Flatly Rejected

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday in a rebirth of sentiment for farm program economies rolled back major Senate increases in the agricultural appropriation bill but stood pat on its demand for farm parity.

Overriding an Administration formula for below parity sales of surplus grains, the House sent the big bill back to conference with instructions to House managers to insist on parity prices except in release of some deteriorated stocks.

Administration Loses

Administration forces met a second rebuff in flat refusal of the House to accept greatly increased outlays for Farm Security Administration loans and grants which the President had urged to reach "food for victory" goals.

Before every member was a letter from the American Farm Bureau Federation, which insisted on parity price levels but said farmers "strongly favor economy in agricultural appropriations."

Signed by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the federation, the letter said reduced sums already voted by the House for FSA were "adequate to meet all justifiable needs" and added:

Indefensible, Says O'Neal

"The proposed Senate increases are unnecessary and indefensible at this time when we need to conserve our man power and resources for the war effort. The contention that these increased funds are needed to enable farmers to attain the national food production

Heydrich Toll Rises to 275 As He Is Buried

'Our Martyr' Lauded By Hitler; Himmler Pledges Vengeance

By the Associated Press

Berlin (from German Broadcasts), June 9.—Reinhard Heydrich, the slain Gestapo "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia in old Czecho-Slovakia, was buried today with full military ceremony after a funeral at which his chief, Heinrich Himmler, vowed a "holy duty to avenge" the assassination.

(Forty-one more Czechs were executed today, the Prague radio said in a broadcast heard in London, making a total of 275 vengeance killings since the fatal wounding of the Gestapo hangman last week.)

Adolf Hitler, who left his headquarters on the Eastern Front to attend the funeral, declared Heydrich "one of our martyrs" and conferred on him posthumously "the highest award of the German order."

Hitler put a wreath on the coffin and embraced the two sons of the slain "protector."

Himmler took the occasion of the funeral to proclaim Heydrich "a blood witness that Bohemia and Moravia are and always will be territories of the Reich."

Himmler declared that Heydrich "knew the subversive elements" in Czechoslovakia and Austria and "knew how to dispose of them."

"Heydrich flew without my knowledge against the Russians," Himmler said, declaring his assistant had been shot down by anti-aircraft guns but returned safely and took up another plane the next day.

Himmler also revealed that Heydrich fired twice at his assailants after he was wounded.

Dr. Emil Hacha, president of the Czech protectorate, and his entire cabinet, arrived for the funeral in a special train. Numerous delegations of industrial and agricultural workers also came from Bohemia and Moravia on the same train.

R. A. F. Plans Still Heavier Raids on Nazis

Vast Armada of Air Will Level Cities in Ruhr and Rhineland

By the Associated Press

London, June 9.—The R. A. F. bomber command tonight was marshaling its incalculable air strength for assaults on Germany's vital war industries of the Ruhr and Rhineland which Air Chief Marshal A. T. Harris predicted would make the 1000-plane raid on Cologne look like "a gentle Zephyr of a past summer."

The Ruhr, one of the chief citadels of the German arms industry, was battered last night for the fourth time in eight nights. This was one of the series of "medium" raids in which the R. A. F. is employing several hundred planes, but not so many as in the earlier four-figure attacks on Cologne and Essen.

Warns of U. S. Power

The R. A. F.'s raids last night also included attacks on the Dieppe docks and on railways and airdromes in France and the Netherlands. Eighteen bombers were lost in these operations, but the losses were believed to be well below the 10 per cent figure which makes raiding unprofitable.

Harris, commander in chief of the bomber command, said in a news reel that these raids soon would be eclipsed by Anglo-American attacks which he predicted would hurl thousands of bombers against German cities on suitable nights in an effort to win the war through bomb-

Japs Lose Pants Saving Their 'Face'

Honolulu, June 9 (AP).—Current gag sweeping Honolulu:

Says the Marine commander at Midway in a message to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commanding the Pacific Fleet:

"Japs lose pants trying to save face."

'Historic Victory,' Marshall Cables Admiral Nimitz

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, has sent a message to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, congratulating the naval forces under his command for their "historic victory" in the Battle of the Mid-Pacific.

This was announced by the War Department last night, as more than 24 hours passed without further word of action in the Pacific.

The last reports said that United States planes were chasing the crippled Jap fleet west of Midway Island but had lost contact. Heavy weather kept the picture in Alaskan waters obscure.

Marshall's message to Nimitz, sent through Lieut Gen. Delos C. Emmons, Army commander in Hawaii, expressed his appreciation for Emmons' "smooth" cooperation with Nimitz during the battle and his personal thanks to the Army bomber crews which made such a "brilliant contribution" to the victory.

Greece's King George Arrives Here Today for 6-Day Visit

King George 2d of Greece comes to Washington this afternoon for a 6-day visit, but the exact time of his arrival has not been announced by the State Department.

The Greek monarch, who has been leading his kingdom's fight against the Axis from London since the Germans invaded Greece, will be accorded full military honors upon his arrival here and then will be driven to the White House.

He will be guest of honor at a state dinner at the White House at 6 o'clock this evening, and will spend the night in the mansion.

King George will be accompanied by Emmanuel Tsouderos, Prime Minister of Greece; Col. Demetrios Levidis, Marshal of the Greek Court; Capt. Petros Stathatos, aide-de-camp to the King, and Demetrios Nicolareizis, private secretary to the Prime Minister.

Also attached to the party will be Col. Louis Fortier, U. S. A., military aide to the King, and Capt. Andrew S. Hickey, U. S. N., naval aide to the King.

A full program has been mapped out for King George's sojourn. His itinerary tomorrow will begin at 10 a. m. when he will leave the White House for the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and Mount Vernon. At 1 p. m. he will have luncheon at the Yugoslav Legation. At

Laval's Friends Grabbed Power

Petain at Last Is Convinced Germany Will Be Defeated

Marshal Henri Petain, France's chief of state, now is convinced that Germany will be defeated, according to reports received in Washington through diplomatic sources. That represents a change of opinion for the venerable French soldier; once he thought that Germany was a sure winner.

From the same diplomatic sources, unquestionably reliable, came these reports apropos the situation in France:

Contrary to a widespread belief, Hitler did not force Marshal Petain to accept Pierre Laval as chief of government at Vichy. Laval's comeback was maneuvered by a group of French conspirators around Laval, who were out to get power. They probably got the support of the Germans who were dissatisfied with the existing situation.

Laval has a horror of an Axis defeat, but it is not believed in France that he can deliver anything of value to Hitler, and least of all the French Fleet.

Any attempt to deliver the French fleet to Germany would cause many French officers and sailors to scuttle their warships. Meantime, the fleet is in reasonably good shape.

The reaction of the French people to the devastating R. A. F. raids on French industrial centers is this: They feel that it is too bad that French people have to die from the bombs, but they recognize that the

Maryland Boy Electrocuted By Floor Lamp

Nine-year-old Arthur Inwood of 6109 Forty-third Avenue, Hyattsville, Md., was electrocuted last night in an unusual accident at his home.

The boy, who had attended the last day of school at University Park Elementary School yesterday, was found by his mother, Mrs. Louis R. Inwood, seated on a sofa, one hand grasping the metal upright of an electric floor lamp the other touching a radiator. He had been listening to the radio.

The mother pulled him loose and summoned Dr. J. P. Clum, a neighbor, and the Bladensburg Rescue Squad. Artificial respiration and oxygen were administered for approximately four hours, but the boy did not respond. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Clum shortly after 10 p. m.

The father, a Federal employe, is away from home on a business trip. Town Policeman Howard H. Holmes aided in the resuscitation efforts. Police believe the water in the radiator proved a ground for the current.

Senate Group Approves Raise For District Police, Firemen

The Senate District Committee yesterday voted to recommend the passage of a bill raising the pay of District police and firemen by $300 a year.

One of the seven bills approved at the session, the measure had been opposed by the Commissioners and Senators Burton (Republican) of Ohio and Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, at a hearing last week.

Burton and Overton were the only members to vote against approval yesterday, Burton declaring that with inflation threatening all pay raises must be made cautiously and with the Nation's entire wage and price structure in mind.

In voting to approve the bill, Chairman McCarran asserted that he felt the raise was justified, though he was not sure whether it would be received favorably by the Senate or the Administration.

He pointed out that men in both of the services were being called on to put in long overtime hours and go without leave—to such an extent that the policemen now have a total of 41,000 days accumulated leave, or an average of 24 days per man, due them.

He also declared that the city is having trouble keeping men on the force and finding replacements for those who leave.

John C. Fisher, representing the Auxiliary Detective Force, also urged passage of the bill, paying

French Are Pro-U.S., Helpless, Leahy Says

Nation Is in Grip Of Barbarians, He Reports Caustically

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Admiral William D. Leahy, U. S. N. (retired), United States Ambassador to France, said in a press conference here yesterday that the people of France "are practically unanimously pro-American and hopeful of a defeat of the Axis."

The grizzled sailor-diplomat, who was recalled to Washington for "consultation and report" after Pierre Laval was made chief of government at Vichy, used some blunt language in describing the German invaders. He called them "barbarians."

There was nothing in Ambassador Leahy's remarks to indicate that the United States Government plans to break off diplomatic relations with Vichy. On the contrary, there was much to indicate that he favors a continuation of the American diplomatic mission there. Relations now are on what is officially described as a day-to-day basis.

Ambassador Leahy said he had a "high personal regard" for Marshal Henri Petain, and added that his relations with the 86-year-old French chief of state had been "close and cordial."

Petain Under Pressure

He said that Marshal Petain was under "constant and cruel pressure from the invader." And although he described the French people as overwhelmingly pro-American, he reminded newsmen that they were suffering from a complete military defeat and were unorganized, inarticulate and had no influence on the composition or policy of the French government.

Ambassador Leahy returned to the United States on June 1 after a year and a half in Vichy. He came back on the exchange ship, the Swedish-American liner Drottningholm, which also brought back the body of his wife, who died shortly after he was summoned to Washington.

In his press conference, Ambassador Leahy said:

"I have just returned from a France that is completely submerged under an invasion of barbarians who have seized most of the country's material resources and have destroyed much of the spiritual possessions of the people of France.

"The sense of freedom that one feels upon arriving in America is completely beyond my facility with words to express.

Cites American Policy

"During my year and a half in France the policy of the American Government was to maintain our traditional friendship with the oppressed people of France regardless of the composition of the government which changed from time to time in its composition and in its policy, and which will continue to change from time to time in the future.

"The people of France are practically unanimously pro-American and hopeful of a defeat of the Axis powers.

"The people of France are suffering from a complete military defeat, are unorganized, inarticulate, and have no influence whatever on the composition or policy of the government.

"There is, however, no other agency than the government through which we can maintain contact with the French people.

"My relations with Marshal Petain, for whom I entertain a high personal regard, were throughout my stay in France close, cordial and helpful to the interests of his people.

Can't Accomplish Much

"He is under constant and cruel pressure from the invader, which makes it extremely difficult for him to accomplish much of what he wishes to do for the relief of France.

"It appears to me that America should continue to base its every diplomatic and other policy and action on the one purpose of defeating the Axis effort to enslave the world, and with this essential purpose in mind as well as in consideration of the traditional friendship between America and France, it is my personal opinion that every practicable assistance should be given by America to the French people, provided always that such assistance is of no benefit to the Axis powers.

"Maintenance of diplomatic relations with the changing government has up to the present time made it possible to assist the French people in keeping alive their hope for an eventual deliverance from their oppressors.

"Maintenance of diplomatic relations has also made is possible to keep these governments of France informed as to the attitude of the United States toward action that has been contemplated from time to time by the Axis powers to further their war effort, and so far as I know, except for the agreement entered into between France and Japan in Indo-China, no positive action as yet taken by the marshal's government since the armistice has been of material military assistance to the Axis powers."

Ambassador Leahy was silent as to his future plans.

Can't Win Always

Tokyo Tells Japs Bad News Coming

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—The Japanese people were being told guardedly today that they must be able to withstand the news of naval losses, and competent propaganda analysts saw in this a significant indication that the Tokyo government is preparing to announce some of its heavy reverses in the battle of Midway.

With the country generally in complete ignorance of this great and destructive engagement at sea, the big Tokyo newspaper Asahi came out with an article by an unidentified admiral which not only expounded the theory that "we can't win all the time," but also dipped into history to show that the Japanese navy can "take it."

This article was broadcast by radio Berlin, not by radio Tokyo, and shortly thereafter the German broadcasters were reminding their listeners that "complete silence is still preserved in Tokyo on the naval battle alleged by U. S. A. quarters to have taken place off Midway Island."

Here is the text of the German broadcast on the Asahi article:

"Tokyo—'One cannot always expect victories, but must also be able to stand losses,' an unnamed Japanese admiral stated in an interview published by the newspaper Asahi Tuesday.

"The admiral recalled that at the outset of the Russo-Japanese War in 1904 the Japanese battleships Hatsude and Yashima were sunk by mines. Whereas, however, the morale of the Russians was irretrievably shaken by the sinking of their flagship Petropavlovsk, the Japanese commander in chief, Admiral Togo, received the news of the loss of two of his vessels quite calmly.

"'Every leader of a great fleet must show similar calm.'

"The unnamed Japanese admiral went on to say that if the war should be protracted, both sides would be greatly exhausted. The situation could never be that one side could continuously gain brilliant victories while the other side endured only losses.

"Hence in the long run that side would lose which first tired of the struggle and of the losses entailed by it.

"Commenting on the admiral's remarks, the paper points out that after six months the war in the Far East had scarcely yet commenced."

somewhat to the left. Their ruse failed and the enemy encountered strong and stanch defense and the attack petered out."

Powerful and accurate Red artillery, trench mortar, rifle and machine-gun fire was said to be taking a terrifying toll.

Despite the paucity of airfields, the Red air force was credited with warding off the bulk of raids on the city and its defenders.

Naxis Admit Hard Going

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), June 9 (AP). — German military sources tonight described the fighting around Sevastopol, in the Crimea, as "intensely fierce," and said "German troops have to fight for every foot of soil they gain."

"No secret is made of the fact that the Soviets here again have demonstrated particular skill in building trenches, camouflaging and laying mines," said the informants.

"Do not imagine we can yet put out a thousand planes a night whenever we please," Harris declared. "That time will come. It may not long be delayed. But it is not yet.

No "Heavy Bombing" Yet

"Let the Nazis take good note of the western horizon. There will see a cloud as yet no bigger than a man's hand. Behind it lies the whole massive power of the United States of America.

"When the storm gathering there and here breaks in its full fury over Germany they will look back to the days of Luebeck, Rostock and Cologne as men lost in a raging typhoon and think back to a gentle zephyr of a past summer.

"It may take a year, it may take two, but for the 'herrenvolk' (master race) the writing is on the wall."

Harris indicated he did not consider raids like the mass attacks on Cologne and Essen as really "heavy bombing."

"Some people argue that heavy bombing will not win wars," he said. "To them I answer that it hasn't been tried yet. When it is, Germany will be the experiment and Japan will be the confirmation."

Another well-informed source said "the day is not distant" when the Allies will be able to send 500 planes nightly to smash centers of the German military defense system in Western Europe while the main attack against Nazi industry is maintained.

It was the first enemy submarine activity to be reported off the Pacific Coast in recent months.

Bone told of the sinking in a statement issued, he said, with the knowledge and approval of naval authorities. He did not identify the freighter or give any further details other than to say "It did not involve any of our naval units. "I hope it will serve to strengthen our determination to carry on and I know our people in the State will take it in stride," he added.

Sinking Vessel's Crew Shells Sub

By the Associated Press

An East Coast Port, June 9.—Survivors of a medium-sized Norwegian merchant vessel, torpedoed and sunk several days ago off the Southern Atlantic Coast, told today of a gun battle with the undersea craft in which they fired six shells and scored at least one hit, which apparently did little damage.

The Norwegian vessel was struck by a torpedo about 2:30 p. m. (E. W. T.). As the ship listed, the gun crew rushed aft and opened fire at the submarine which was on the surface about a mile and a half to port.

As one of the shots hit the submarine aft of the conning tower, the survivors said, loud chers went up from the crew of the merchant ship. Two more shells were fired by the ship's crew and then the vessel had to be abandoned.

The vessel carried a crew of 47, 17 of whom reached an East Coast port. Others were brought to two other East Coast ports.

The survivors said that one of the lifeboats was still close to the sinking ship when the second torpedo struck, capsizing the lifeboat and throwing its 21 occupants into the sea.

As they clung to the capsized boat, the submarine surfaced and approached within 20 feet, the survivors said. Seven of the submarine's crew were on deck, two of them repairing the after stay, a cable running from the conning tower to the stern, about the place where the merchantman's shell struck the undersea craft.

The survivors said the crew appeared to be German and one of them said the submarine commander spoke good English.

garrison.

"Bir Hacheim may well be the spark which will set Vichy afire," said one French officer.

The garrison under General Koenig includes a Batallion Du Marche, composed of French soldiers from Syria and elsewhere, Foreign Legion units which include anti-Nazi Germans, Spanish Republicans and one American; French marines, Polynesians from Caledonia and Tahiti, and Senegalese.

All the officers are French save two British and one German who has been in the Foreign Legion for 6 years.

The latest assault was preceded, in the Italian fashion, with a demand for surrender of the garrison, which the French ignored.

Meanwhile, west of the Ain el Gazala line, British armored car units which have been harassing Axis rear communications got a crack at the retreating enemy, knocking out four tanks and capturing a German mark-3 tank intact with crew.

The main battlefield in front of the British box at Knightsbridge was relatively quiet, but the bulk of the German panzer units still are there, holding a salient in the fortified line, and a new attack is expected . . . probably a final, desperate drive on Tobruk.

British have no alternative but to wreck factories that are producing for the Germans. The Vichy government, however, has reacted violently to the raids.

The French people were thrilled when the United States entered the war. Their enthusiasm was dimmed somewhat when nothing happened immediately, but America remains their big hope.

Although there have been reports that talk of a "second front" led Hitler to send some of his best troops back to France, the German occupation troops are for the most part second-line forces—often fat and middle-aged.

U. S. Britain Form Joint Boards to Control Arms, Food

"supply, production, transportation, disposal, allocation or distribution, in or to any part of the world," of food and agricultural products.

The general purpose of the joint committee, Mr. Roosevelt indicated, is to obtain better pooling of information in the hope of more intelligent allocation of supplies, so that certain food shortages may be avoided, and, in any case, so that there will be a more even distribution and a fair basis for apportioning rationing and hardships among all the United Nations.

Illustrating his point, the President recalled that in 1918 he spent a weekend at a British country home, where other guests spent all one evening indoctrinating him on the food hardships the British had suffered during the war, and how they had been without enough to eat and drink and were required to do a real belt-tightening job.

Next morning at breakfast, he continued, the first covered sideboard platter he looked into was heaped high with bacon, to which he helped himself. His hostess asked why he had only taken bacon. His answer was that for a year and a half he had gone without it in America so that the British could have it.

With more information on total food supply, he implied, a more even distribution would be possible. He admitted that we may have to give up some foods for the benefit of the other United Nations, but the board would seek to establish a fair basis for everyone.

"In principle," the President wrote Wickard, "the entire food resources of Great Britain and the United States will be deemed to be in a common pool, about which the fullest information will be interchanged."

Creation of the Combined Resources and Production Board was seen in some quarters last night as a victory for Nelson in an undercover conflict between the WPB and the Army Services of Supply, which reportedly have suggested that they take over the entire production and material allocation duties.

Although Nelson was charged by the President's memorandum with working in close collaboration with the Combined Chiefs of Staff, the board was apparently given primary responsibility for assuring "the continuous adjustment of the combined production program to meet changing military requirements."

A principal function of the board, WPB officials observed, will be to plan production in such a way as to curtail heavy demands on shipping. There have been complaints for many months of wasteful shipments of raw materials to Great Britain for preliminary processing or smelting, transshipment to the United States for fabrication into finished munitions, and ultimate reshipment to British, or other fighting fronts.

Also, it has been asserted that both nations have duplicated needlessly each other's manufacturing equipment, rather than consolidating production of certain munitions in one place.

Mr. Roosevelt also disclosed yesterday that production progress, on the whole getting on very well, had about reached the period when actual figures and details could be released which would injure, rather than aid the enemy.

China Appoints Envoy to Vatican

Chungking, June 9 (AP).—The appointment of Sien Shuh-kang, charge d'affaires of China's Bern Embassy, as the first Chinese Minister to the Vatican was announced today. The new minister is a career diplomat who was educated in Belgium.

Within a week after Japan announced on March 27 the appointment of Ken Harada, acting Japanese Ambassador to Vichy, as her special minister to the Vatican, China arranged for an exchange of diplomatic representatives.

Mrs. Hobby Dons Uniform For Duration

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. WILLIAM P. HOBBY,

First member of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps to go into uniform for the duration was Director Oveta Culp Hobby, who yesterday donned the light khaki summer suit and high cap of the new corps.

Mrs. Hobby, who loves "tricky hats," made the transition to uniform gradually by wearing rather severe frocks and suits during her last few days as a civilian. Her "last" civilian dress was a natural-colored linen shirtwaist model with a brown leather belt.

Unless she is on duty at night, Director Hobby can return to summery dresses for the evening hours. This same rule will be followed by enlisted WAACS, who need not wear their uniforms when on leave.

Director Hobby will be joined in Washington on Sunday by her husband, William P. Hobby, former Governor of Texas, and their two children—William P., jr., 10, and Jessica, 5. They have taken a small house in Spring Valley for the summer.

Director Hobby said yesterday the WAAC members would be issued a half dozen pairs of silk stockings, a half dozen pairs of cotton stockings and two pairs of anklets. At this rate, more than 100,000 changes of undies will be needed by the 25,000 WAAC's to be recruited.

Candidates for the officers' training school, to open around July 15, have to be outfitted first, however. Preliminary returns from the nine Army Corps areas showed yesterday they are being "weeded out" rapidly—between 40 and 60 per cent of the applicants being turned down by the first mental alertness tests.

Since approximately 75,000 applications were received for 450 officer jobs, there is much yet to be done by additional testing and personal interviews.

The War Department announced yesterday that recruiting of officer candidates from the aircraft warning service volunteers will begin today. These volunteers have been selected and trained by the U. S. Army Signal Corps and have been engaged in aircraft warning work for some time. Sixty-five of their members will be selected for the Des Moines school. Other volunteers who wish to join the WAACs when general recruiting opens in September will be given preferential treatment. One of the main jobs of the WAAC will be to take over the aircraft warning service.

WPB Chief Speaks At Commencement Of U. of Missouri

By the Associated Press

Columbia, Mo., June 9.—Donald M. Nelson, who worked his way through the University of Missouri and returned today as an honored alumnus, told the 1942 graduating class that America is "doing the impossible" with war production exceeding all estimates.

Confidently the chairman of the War Production Board asserted "this year we shall make 60,000 airplanes, and by the end of the year we shall still be picking up speed for an even vaster production in 1943."

Nelson explained that "we have found that our total production of war goods is higher than we had any reason to suppose it could be" when blueprints were prepared for war plants.

One reason for the unexpected production, he said, is "that the men who are making the goods—the managers, the engineers, the foremen and the workers alike—are working as they never worked before to make the things we need so desperately on the battle line. But beyond that, I think that what we are seeing is the natural result of the application to munitions production of the best mass production techniques."

Pointing out that the graduates will quickly face a challenge which implies opportunity because they will go out into a world torn by war, in which all normal standards have been discarded in favor of a war economy, Nelson said:

"We are not fighting a purely defensive war. We are fighting for something. For a generation we have been living on the edge of a new world; we are only now beginning to realize it.

"Enough for Everybody"

"For the first time in the history of the human race there can be enough of everything to go around. Poverty is not inevitable any more. The sum total of the world's greatest possible output of goods, divided by the sum total of the world's inhabitants, no longer means a little less than enough for everybody. It means more than enough. The possibilities in that simple statement are beyond calculation—and what we are fighting for is the right to turn some of those possibilities into realities."

The WPB chairman became an honor initiate of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Zi at commencement day exercises.

Visits Hannibal

Hannibal, Mo., June 9 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, came back today to the scenes of his boyhood baseball-playing days at Hannibal, the Mississippi River city which claims him and Mark Twain as its two most distinguished sons.

Nelson was born here in 1888, on the "wrong side" of Bear Creek, the son of Quincy Nelson, a "Katy" Railroad fireman, and Mary Ann MacDonald. His mother died when he was 3 years old and he was reared by his Scottish grandmother, a woman whose stout character rivaled that of Twain's famous Aunt Polly.

He toured defense plants, stopped at a hospital to see 73-year-old Mrs. Mary Ann O'Brien, an friend, and visited his birthplace, the home of his grandmother MacDonald and the schools he attended.

At a banquet tonight, the WPB chief talked over old times with his former schoolmates, including eight members of his high school baseball team. Later, he spoke at a public mass meeting.

12 Lost as 2 Blimps Collide in Secret Tests

By the Associated Press

Lakehurst, N. J., June 9.—The Nation's first fatal blimp accident in nine years was logged today as one of its worst when rescue boats found only one survivor among 13 men aboard two lighter-than-air ships which collided and fell into the Atlantic.

Both blimps were engaged in a secret experiment when they plunged into the ocean off Manasquan late last night.

The training ship G-1 apparently carried to teh bottom most of the eight men inits cabin, only one body being recovered. The man rescued today was from a smaller training craft, L-2. Bodies of three of the other four men aboard this airship were taken from its tangled but floating wreckage.

Determination of the cause awaited appointment of a naval board of inquiry. The naval air station here, where the blimps were stationed, said only that they collided while "engaged in an experimental mission involving some hazard."

Five of the dead and missing were civilian scientists or technicians; the rest were Navy personnel, two of them prominent aeronauts.

The survivor was Ensign Howard S. Fahey, jr., of Scarsdale, N. Y., copilot of the L-2, who escaped through a window as the cabin struck the water. He was injured.

Coast guards recovered these bodies:

Lieut. Comdr. Clinton S. Rounds, Toms River, N. J., senior officer aboard the blimps and pilot of the L-2, who had to his credit four inventions for bettering lighter-than-air craft.

Dr. A. B. Wyse, civilian scientist, of San Diego.

R. C. Poteet, 28, aviation chief machinist's mate, Langdon, Kans.

The body of Israel H. Tilles, 30, San Diego, a civilian, was recovered by fishermen.

Still missing:

Lieut. Frank A. Trotter, Toms River, pilot of the G1 and internationally famous free balloon racer.

Ensign Clarence C. Ross, 27, Jacksonville, Fla., copilot of the G-1, who was commissioned here less than a month ago.

Ensign K. G. Lee, New London, Conn., attached to the Bureau of Ordnance and doing research work.

Ole V. Roos, 39, aviation chief machinist's mate, Lakewood, N. J.

W. H. Herndon, jr., 35, Boatswain's mate first class, Lakehurst.

Dr. Charles R. Hoover, 56, Middletown, Conn., Wesleyan University professor of chemistry.

L. S. Moyer, 34, Minneapolis, Minn., University of Minnesota botanist on duty with the National Defense Research Committee.

Dr. Franklin C. Gilbert, 37, New London, Conn., research engineer also serving with the committee.

Lieut. Comdr. Rounds survived one airship crash at sea, sliding down a 100-foot rope from the stricken dirigible Macon into the Pacific. Lieutenant Trotter was missing for nine days when forced dow in the Canadian wilds during the 1933 Gordon Bennett Cup international balloon race.

Neither of the blimps wrecked last night were attached to the offshore patrol operating out of Lakehurst. They were used for training work.

The collision was the first fatal nonrigid airship accident in the United States since April 4, 1933, when two men died as the blimp J-3 nosed into the Atlantic off New Jersey while searching for survivors of the dirigible Akron disaster. The giant rigid airship had been beaten into the sea with the loss of 73 lives during the night.

4 Planes Lost In Storm After Lashio Raid

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Big American Army bombers based in India flew through monsoons last week to strike an enemy base at Lashio, Burma, the War Department announced last night.

All of the four-engined planes got through to heavily bomb the Jap airdrome and railroad yards, but four of them were lost in the mountains of central Burma en route home, it was disclosed.

Bomb-hits were scored on parked airplanes and other installations at the Lashio air base, as well as on railroad equipment and supplies, the Army's communique said.

Although enemy fighter planes at Lashio attacked the bombers, none of the latter was shot down or lost due to other enemy action.

Those that crashed were flying on instruments over the wild mountainous region and were lost because of the "extremely adverse weather conditions," the communique declared.

It was revealed how one of the American bombers was attacked by a large force of Jap fighters, which harried the big craft for 35 minutes.

"Nevertheless," the announcement added, "this plane returned to its base without being seriously damaged."

The report of the raid was made to the War Department by Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the American air forces in India. It was delayed in transit as the assault on Lashio was made June 3.

Lashio, close to the Chinese border in central Burma, formerly was the southern terminus of the famed Burma Road, supply route to China's armies. Now it is an important Jap base for operations against the Chinese.

4 Cargo Craft, Warship Sunk By British Sub

By the Associated Press

London, June 9.—Britain's new submarine Turbulent has sunk an Italian destroyer and four merchant ships rushing supplies across the Mediterranean to the hard-pressed Axis army in Libya, even as huge R. A. F. bombers struck mighty blows at Axis bases in Sardinia and Crete.

These offensive actions in support of the British desert army of Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck were announced today by the admiralty and R. A. F.

The Turbulent's depredations were in the central Mediterranean on the Axis supply lines between Naples and Tripoli. At least two of the medium-sized supply ships were loaded to the gunwales. Although they were protected by two of Mussolini's sleek destroyers, the Turbulent sent both to the bottom and also sank one of the escorts—a 1628-ton destroyer of the Navigatori class—the admiralty's communique said.

A third supply ship was sunk out of another convoy. A small merchant vessel, laden with explosives, also fell victim to the Turbulent in another action.

The R. A. F.'s raids struck bases 900 miles apart.

The big bombers, based either in Egypt or Libya, set fires visible for 70 miles among barrack buildings at the airdrome of Candia, capital of the overrun Greek island of Crete, last night. Explosions were observed on the runways, the R. A. F. reported.

Shipping was bombed in the Cagliari Harbor at the southern tip of Sardinia, the large Italian island which lies almost midway between Spain and Italy.

Taranto is Raided

Rome (from Italian broadcasts), June 9 (AP).—A new British air raid on Taranto, mainland naval base on the foot of the Italian boot, was reported by the Italian high command communique today but it said the only damage was by fire ashore.

Near-Record Posted in May On Penny Milk

May was the second highest month in distribution of "penny milk" since the program was introduced here last January, Harry Gardner, WPA purchasing officer, reported yesterday.

At schools and in settlement houses, 634,244 of the subsidized half pints were consumed by underprivileged boys and girls, an increase of 122,000 over the previous month. This was exceeded only by the 735,538 bottles distributed in March.

Plans are nearing completion, said Gardner, for continuing the program on a modified scale at school playgrounds during the summer months.

The milk will be included in WPA-prepared free lunches which are to be served daily to at least 5500 boys and girls when the school vacation period begins, provided funds are appropriated for uninterrupted operation of the WRA central kitchen.

R. A. F. Flies Father 5000 Miles To Bedside of Daughter, 3

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, June 9.—Lying dangerously ill with diphtheria in Plaistow Fever Hospital in London, June Challis, 3 years old, raised her head from her pillow today and whispered, "Hello, Daddy, I think I'm feeling better."

Her father, 24-year-old Leading Aircraftsman Jim Challis of the Royal Air Force, held his daughter's hand and said nothing. He just smiled thankfully at the little girl he had traveled 5000 miles to see, and whose life may be saved by the thoughtfulness of the R. A. F.

Challis has just arrived from Saskatchewan, Canada, after a transatlantic flight made possible by the cooperation of the air ministry here and the Empire Air Training Corps in Ottawa.

June was taken ill three weeks ago and two weeks later her condition took a turn for the worse. She was fretting for her father, posted in Canada for two years. Repeatedly she asked for him and told her anxious mother:

"I dreamed Daddy came home in his uniform and went away again."

Mrs. Challis thought that only her husband could save June's life. The doctor thought his presence might help. She appealed to the police, who got in touch with the air ministry, who cabled Ottawa. The R. A. F. flew him to London, then gave him duty in this country so he can be near the child.

U.S. and British Air Corps Units Arrive in China

at the "inner and outer rings" of Chushien's defenses, the Associated Press reported. Today's accounts made, no mention of the Chuhsien airdrome.

[Despite the heroic stand of the defenders of Chuhsien, a spokesman said the situation faced by China in general "remains grave—the next few months will be very critical."]

Chinese Report Repulse Of New Jap Landing Today

Chungking, June 9 (AP).—While the battle for Chuhsien raged into its second week, the Chinese reported repulse of a new Japanese attempt to land on Chuanshim Island, at the mouth of the Min River near Foochow, capital of Fukien Province.

The enemy operations in Fukien, next door to Chekiang, are part of a coordinated enemy drive through the southeast coastal provinces aimed at knocking China out of the war.

The high command accused the Japanese of using tear gas in a new push southward from Paotow, in the far northwestern province of Suiyuan, but said these thrusts had been beaten back with heavy Japanese losses.

The high command acknowledged loss of Tungsiang, rail town in Kiangsi Province, to Japanese forces striving to close a 180-mile gap between t' ere forces in that province and in Chekiang.

Heavy Casualties Inflicted

This was offset somewhat by the announcement of the capture of Fushanpu, west of Nanchang, Kiangsi Province capital, where Chinese forces were hammering at the outer defenses of the Japanese-occupied provincial capital. The Chinese said their troops were inflicting heavy casualties upon the enemy in other operations against Juichang, 60 miles north of Nanchang.

In inland Hupeh Province, the high command said Chinese forces had captured outposts and destroyed communications in the neighborhood of Ichang, high watermark of the Japanese drive into the heart of China.

House Rejects Parity Formula

Backs Original Sum

Among Senate increases which the House flatly rejected was a $50,319,557 appropriation for farm rehabilitation services and assistance. The House held to its original stand for half that amount.

Rejecting the Senate authorization of 125 million dollars for farm security loans and grants, the House instructed its conferees to hold out for only 70 million dollars.

It further insisted on its 25 million dollars authorization for farm tenant loans, which the Senate increased to 40 million dollars, and then backed up its cut in farm tenant administrative expenses.

The Senate's three million dollar increase for the Forest Service to strengthen fire controls was rejected by a hair's breadth 171 to 174 vote. Also turned down was the Senate's doubling of the House $2,500,000 appropriation for forest-fire cooperation.

The old rift between Congress and the Administration over below-parity sales of surplus crops meanwhile was reopened as the House rejected the Senate's compromise farm parity formula.

Despite a plea by House Majority Leader McCormack, the House turned down the Senate proposals by a 125 to 57 standing vote, with representatives of corn states contending the compromise would break the market for their product and "torpedo" the whole farm parity price structure.

Wheat States Back Senate

The Senate had authorized sale of Government-owned corn and up to 125 million bushels of surplus wheat at 85 per cent of the parity price for corn. The House had provided that only "deteriorated" grain could be sold below parity for feeding and manufacturing of alcohol. Wheat State members, faced with a towering surplus of their product, supported the Senate compromise, but representatives of corn States mustered enough strength from cotton and other farm sections to override them.

Vainly McCormick argued that it was not a sectional issue and that the "interests of the entire country" would be served by the Senate parity amendments. Representative Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, took the floor against the Senate compromise. Cannon argued that "if you put down the price of one commodity, you put down the price of all" and that below-parity sales of grain "would destroy parity forever." Representative Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois, declared it would mean "a run-out on both the corn and wheat farmers."

"Your market will go to hell and nothing can stop it."

Below Parity Sales Banned

Ever since Congressional farm blocs forced a 110 per cent of parity provision into the Price Control Acts, the Administration has resorted to below parity release of Government-owned crops as one means of checking a farm price rise. The House bill forbade funds to the Commodity Credit Corporation for that purpose, except in the case of deteriorated grains.

Removing the requirement that such grain must be deteriorated, the Senate also in another amendment had clarified the definition of parity in line with the President's own views. The Senate provided that farm conservation benefits must be taken into account and added to the farmer's market returns in determining the amount of parity payment to which he is entitled. This also was rejected by the House.

Farm organizations themselves had split on the Senate alterations in the bill, with the Farmer's union supporting the Senate version and the Farm Bureau Federation defending the House parity stand and economies.

Intercity Bus Service Curbs Begin July 1

By the Associated Press

Sharp curbs on intercity bus service throughout the Nation were announced yesterday as the Office of Defense Transportation moved to conserve travel facilities vital to the war program.

Taking command of all such bus lines, the ODT directed that beginning July 1 present routes shall be frozen, competitive service pooled, all express runs abolished, and service to places of amusement drastically restricted.

(Express runs abolished are the fast, limited-stop passenger schedules operated by some companies. The order does not affect the carrying of merchandise for hire.)

Under the last-named clause in the order, no intercity buses may be operated for the "primary purpose" of serving places of amusement or entertainment. Under places of amusement are included such things as golf courses, athletic fields, race tracks, theaters, dance pavilions and beaches.

Intercity buses will no longer be permitted to operate with only a small fraction of their seats occupied. With the exception of one daily round trip, each bus company must drop schedules which do not show an average load in both directions of more than 40 per cent of the buses' seating capacity.

Competitors must do their utmost to pool services, stagger schedules and swap operating rights. Special permission must be obtained from the Government in order to extend any service.

The order does not cover buses which operate within 15 miles of city limits, or schedules on which the average fare is 35 cents or less. Such buses are not classed as intercity.

Marine Insurance Debit for 3 Years Only $1,453,690

New York, June 9 (AP).—The American Institute of Marine Underwriters announced today that insurance companies had lost $46,486,066 on marnie insurance policies in the first six months of this year but that the net debit balance for a three-year period ending this month was only $1,453,690.

Henry H. Reed, chairman of the institute's information committee, said: "There is no need to have the slightest concern about insurance companies. These losses will not affect the standing of the companies because marine insurance represents only 14 per cent of their total business."

Reed said that previous statements regarding marine insurance losses erroneously had led to the question of the stability of the insurance structure in general.

Rubber Salvage May Decide Nation-Wide Gas Rationing

to weigh rubber. Asked if the rubber campaign would be like the aluminum pick-up drive which bogged down at the point of full-scale utilization for war production. Mr. Roosevelt remarked that there is plenty of space in the country for the storage of old rubber.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that he had been reading up on rubber and had as much information on the subject as anyone in the country, including members of Congress and newspaper columnists. Still, he added, he doesn't know how much used rubber is available.

The scrap collection campaign, the President said, will be on a voluntary basis, unless that method fails, and then the effect of the drive would be compulsory. He stated that he had no idea whether he would make a radio appeal to the people, observing that the message could be carried to the country by four or five means, including the press, radio, his own voice or the voice of another person.

20 Million Cars "Essential"

Earlier in the day, at the Capitol, where proposed Nation-wide gasoline rationing has been under heavy attack, Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, expressed confidence that the Government will be able to find ways in which to keep two-thirds of the country's automobiles running for the duration of the war.

By additional study of the problem, he said, "we will be able to work out a program which will enable us to keep in operation 20 million cars which are essential to the working of the American economic system."

"Careful study," said Murray after a conference with President Roosevelt, should make unnecessary the rationing of gas in areas where the supply is abundant.

The Senator's remarks were in keeping with sentiment elsewhere in Congress that nationwide rationing will be held off, at least until accurate information is obtained on the available scrap supply and the number of recapped and retreaded tires that can be made from that supply.

2,500,000 Tons is Estimate

John W. Whitehead, president of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber Co., estimated before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee that about 2,500,000 tons of scrap rubber are available. By using 85,000 tons of scrap and 3500 tons of crude rubber (less than one per cent of the crude stockpile), enough tires can be recapped every year to equip 20 million cars, Whitehead said.

Whitehead testified with officials of two other rubber companies in support of legislation to collect scrap rubber and reclaim it for use in retreading or recapping auto tires. The other rubber company witnesses were J. Penfield Seiberling, president of the Seiberling Rubber Co., Akron, and Fred T. Roberts, vice president of the Danbury Rubber Co., Danbury, Conn.

Senator Ellender (Democrat) of Louisiana, author of the bill, appeared before the committee with Murray, chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee. Ellender contended that diversion of a small amount of crude rubber for civilian use would have no adverse effect on the war effort.

Services Can Use All Rubber

Arthur B. Newhall, War Production Board rubber coordinator, warned a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee, however, that every ounce of civilian rubber has to come from the war program. He said:

"All the rubber we see in sight in the next two years could be advantageously used by the military forces."

Committee Chairman Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa and Senator Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana attacked the failure of authorities to centralize responsibility for the rubber program. Wheeler said Mr. Roosevelt is considering naming a rubber "czar" to take charge of both the crude and synthetic rubber programs. If he fails to do so, Wheeler declared, "then we will have to introduce legislation to see that he does it."

President Roosevelt's announcement of a high speed scrap rubber pickup drive apparently caught WPB's Bureau of Industrial Conservation by surprise. A bureau spokesman said intensification of its continuing campaign of scrap collection as a phase of a new overall salvage campaign was intended to be started about the last week of this month.

Bureau's Campaign Ready

If the President has this program in mind, he said, it would be necessary to "jack it up." Conceivably, it was said, the President has in mind a separate campaign.

A plan for picking up scrap by using gasoline stations as collection depots has been under consideration in the Office of Petroleum Coordinator, it was learned.

The conservation bureau's campaign is ready to go, it was said, but it contemplated paving the way for the drive by the use of advertising. The bureau also had expected to make use of gasoline stations.

Some violations of rationing regulations by Washington filling stations have been detected but the number is not large, John Joss, OPA enforcement officer, said yesterday.

An undercover survey has been completed, he declared, indicating that wilful violators will be prosecuted.

Meantime, a serious shortage of gasoline was reported in the Capital, with many stations closed until their 10-day allotments are delivered tomorrow. Harry Wainwright, of the Gasoline Retailers Association, said "quite a few" had been forced to suspend business due to lack of supplies.

How Lost Cruiser Routed Jap Raider

Ill-Fated Houston Kept Convoy Safe, Downed 5 Planes

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

A thrilling account of an hour-long battle between the lost United States cruiser Houston and a flight of 36 Japanese bombers was told yesterday for the first time.

The ill-fated Houston was victorious in this fight, which occurred February 16 while she was convoying some American merchantmen through the dangerous waters of the Southwest Pacific. Not only did the warship shepherd her flock safely to port, but she managed to shoot down five enemy planes and damage eight others.

This new testimonial to the fighting skill and heroism of the officers and crew of the Houston was given by the skipper of one of the merchant vessels—Capt. Frederick E. Trask of Oakland, Calif. His story was released through the Navy Department yesterday.

Bagged Jap Seaplane

Trask told of how the sharpshooting antiaircraft gunners brought down a Japanese seaplane the day before the attack. The plane, he said, came up to within 2½ miles of their stern and then dropped from 10,000 to 4000 feet. A shell from the Houston forced it to drop its bombs prematurely and, heading away, it finally fell into the sea.

The next day at 11:13 a. m., Trask says, four groups of Jap naval bombers approached the convoy. There were nine twin-engined Mitsubishis, Type 96 heavy bombers, in three of the groups, while the other consisted of nine four-engined Kawanisi, Type 97 flying boats.

"At 11:15," Captain Trask says, "the Houston, at full speed, swung into action with all her antiaircraft batteries and laid down a barrage across the Jap line of flight, causing them to veer to the east. They were out of sight for about five minutes, then they came back at varying intervals and from all points of the compass and attacked the Houston with what we assumed were half-ton bombs.

"Wheeling at top speed, the Houston avoided the load by a scant 100 yards, all the time firing with all her antiaircraft guns. During the attack, which lasted 45 minutes, the Houston shot down three and winged eight of the Jap Misubishis. The other smaller naval vessels got in a few licks now and then."

After 11:50, the Jap bombers started to go for the merchant ships, probably having only 250-pound bombs left. One bomb-load dropped within 50 feet of one ship, wounding several men on her decks.

Five minutes later, Trask says, seven of the four-engined bombers—two of them having been shot down—attacked his ship at 7000 feet.

"Putting the helm hard left," he continued, "we endeavored to throw them off on their sights, but they veered to the left as we did and we realized then that they had us in range.

"I ordered a hard right helm—and at that moment saw the traps open. From the port side of the bridge, I could see the glint of the sun on several bombs as they were released.

Down to 3000 Feet

"I walked to the starboard side of the bridge, thinking of my wife and the folks at home. I felt this was going to be sudden and certain death. The Japs had dropped down to 3000 feet in their effort to score on at least one ship after having failed to make any direct hits within an hour or so of attack and after having flown approximately 650 miles to the attack.

"As the bombs struck the water, they burst abreast of the No. 6 starboard hatch within ten feet of the ship's side. I threw myself flat on the pilot house deck. As soon as I hit the deck, two bombs burst on the starboard side amidships, and six went off on the port side.

"From the bridge to the stern, all hit within inches of the hull. One direct hit on the hull, port side, made a hole in the fashion plant on the after end of the forward well deck, but glanced off and fell into the water without exploding.

Investigation showed that there were 15 holes in the ship's side to port, four in the cargo holds close to the water and several others above water between decks. Most of them were small—only an inch in diameter—Trask said, being caused by bomb fragments of steel ball shrapnel.

"When the attack was over," Captain Trask states, "the Houston steamed past us to see how we had fared, and she was cheered heartily for her splendid work. She then ordered us back into formation, and we proceeded on our way."

Ship Arrives To Return Jap Envoys

Jersey City, N. J., June 9.—The largest civilian passenger ship to arrive in New York Harbor since the United States entered the war—the 18,134-ton Swedish-American Line Gripsholm—docked today on the first lap of her diplomatic mission to exchange Japanese and United States nationals.

It was her first trip in two years and she came in gay, diplomatic paint—white with painted Swedish flags and the word "Diplomat" prominently displayed.

Like the Swedish-American Line Drottningholm, now exchanging German and Italian nationals for Americans, the Gripsholm sailed under charter to the United States. The itinerary and passenger list were subject to approval of all belligerents.

The Gripsholm, which made the trip in 11½ days, will sail again Thursday with 1500 Japanese diplomats and nationals for Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, via Rio de Janeiro. The exchange for American diplomats and nationals who are now en route from Japan to Africa on the Italian liner Conte Verde will then be made. The American party is expected to reach the United States early in August and a second trip maye be made to exchange additional Japanese and American nationals.

The Gripsholm's voyage was uneventful. She made a routine stop at the German control port in Kristiansand and Norway.

Bishop Corrigan Dies, Victim of Pneumonia

Ordained in Rome

Bishop Corrigan, one of the best known prelates in the Catholic world, was ordained in the Church of St. John Lateran in Rome on June 6, 1903, a little more than a year before the ordination in that same church of Archbishop Curley. His Eminence Cardinal Resphigi, who ordained Bishop Corrigan, also ordained Archbishop Curley.

A noted educator and a brilliant orator, Bishop Corrigan was a big man mentally as well as physically and was a tireless worker. He had just returned home yesterday from Colorado, whereon last Wednesday he delivered the address on the 100th anniversary of Loretto Heights College. His last public sermon was delivered last May 14 at the commemoration jubilee of the present Pope Pius XII at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University. His last public appearance here occurred four days later at the fifty-third annual commencement exercises at the university. In the last week of May he ordained 56 young men to the priesthood and 115 others to minor orders in the church.

Laymen's Retreat Leader

Bishop Corrigan was at one time chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia and was known throughout the Nation as a leader in the Laymen's Retreat Movement.

Bishop Corrigan served the early years of his priesthood in Philadelphia. He was assistant rector, successively, of Our Lady of Rosary, St. Agatha's and St. Columba's parishes, all in Philadelphia. He was superintendent of the Catholic Missionary Society and served as diocesan director of charities in Philadelphia. He was also moderator of priests' conferences.

Later, Bishop Corrigan became professor of dogmatic theology at St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pa., and afterwards became rector there. While in the latter post he was appointed rector of Catholic University. He was named a prelate of the papal household with title of Right Reverend Monsignor in December, 1929, and protohonotary apostolic in 1937.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Friday in the National Shrine of Immaculate Conception at Catholic University, Archbishop Michael Curley of the Baltimore-Washington Dioceses will officiate at the pontifical mass of requiem.

House Unit Bans Gas Tax Boost

10 cents a half-pint; and on artificially carbonated wines, and on liquers and cordials, from 3½ cents to 5 cents a half-pint.

Losses in revenue below the Treasury's excise tax goals continued yesterday as the committee trimmed schedules originally designed to produce a grand total of $1,344,900,000 from excises on 14 selected items. A committee move to broaden the Treasury list to include a wider selection of items, was expected.

The Treasury had originally sought to pick up $242,200,000 by doubling the gasoline tax, but committeemen, who generally feel that this field should be left to State taxes, said the yield would have been greatly cut by rationing. The Treasury's proposed lubricating oil tax would have yielded $49,900,000, but the committee changes slashed this to about $7,500,000. Changes in the Treasury's wine schedule meant that it would yield only about half of the 25 million dollars originally estimated, it was said.

Whisky Tax Increased

On Monday the committee accepted the Treasury request for an increase in the tax on whiskey from $4 to $6, but had raised the tax on beer only from $8 to $7 a gallon. The Treasury had asked a beer tax of $8. From the liquor tax increase, $266,100,000 would be collected and from the one dollar increase on beer, $61,100,000, it was estimated.

Today the committee will consider controversial increases in the excises on cigarettes, cigars and smoking tobacco.

King of Greece Arrives Today

Legation yesterday announced that the engagement had been cancelled. Cimon P. Diamantopoulos, the Greek Minister, explained that the White House had requested the presence of His Majesty at a parade in New York on Saturday.

King George II was born in the Royal Castle of Dekelia (Athens) on July 7, 1890. He is the eldest son of the late King Constantine and Queen Sophia, and the grandson of King George I.

Served in Balkan Wars

He received his preliminary education under the guidance of distinguished tutors and later studied law and political science in the University of Athens. He was graduated from the Military Academy of Athens in 1909 and was commissioned second lieutenant in the First Infantry Regiment.

During the Balkan Wars (1912-1913) he served on the general staff of the Greek Army under his father's orders. When in March, 1913, his grandfather, King George I, was assassinated in Salonica and his father ascended the throne, he was proclaimed Crown Prince. In 1922 he succeeded to the throne, following his father's abdication.

When Greece adopted a republican form of government, the King went to England, where he studied economic and social questions. By 1935 he was back on his throne, following a coup d'etat and a plebiscite which showed 1,500,000 Greeks voting for King George's return and 33,000 against.

Led Greek Resistance

On October 28, 1940, when Italy demanded the surrender of the country, King George led the Greek nation in its epic resistance to Mussolini's armies. So well did the Greeks fight that Hitler had to go to his Axis partner's assistance.

As the Nazi panzer divisions overran Greece, King George and the Greek government went to the Island of Crete, and from there to London by way of Cairo.

Before he started for the United States, King George and Prime Minister Tsouderos went to Egypt and Palestine to review Greece's land, sea and air forces who are fighting alongside the British in the Middle East.

Bergson Seeks Support For Jewish Army

Peter H. Bergson, national director of the Committee for a Jewish Army, will arrive in Washington today from New York to confer with the local chairmen of the committee to enlist support for an all-Jewish army to fight the Axis in the Near and Middle East.

Bergson, a Palestinian, lived in the Near and Middle East for 20 years. For the past year he has been in the United States gathering support for the proposed Jewish army.

tribute to the job that the police are doing in the face of the emergency with the resulting burden of extra work.

The Commissioners had opposed the bill on the grounds that the extra pay would seriously strain the District's financial operations and that if a wage increase were to be given it should be given equally to all of the municipal government's employes.

The police department was also concerned in a second bill approved by the committee, which extends the probationary period for rookies from one year to three and creates a new rank of corporal.

An amendment to the local income tax law, releasing out-of-town firms from payment of District income taxes as long as their transactions are not completed here, also was approved. Already passed by the House, the bill also permits tax officials to compromise claims to estates where domicile disagreements have arisen between the District and other localities.

Other measures that the committee voted to recommend are:

1. A bill to abolish the Board of Personal Tax Appraisers and vest its authority in one administrator. The extra salary money would be used to hire more examiners, with a predicted increase in tax revenues.

2. A House-approved bill authorizing a $10,000 fee to Joseph Sharfsin, Philadelphia lawyer who successfully represented the District in a two-year litigation over an estate through which the city treasury netted $70,000.

3. A bill to establish a memorial in Gallinger Hospital to former Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, one of the hospital's most active Congressional sponsors.

Ringside Table

..IN THE MIDDLE IS TOPS. Crossroads is neither in town nor out of town. It's right in the edge of the city, exactly 5 miles from The Washington Post Building. In this magic location is part of the answer why Crossroads is now doing its beggest business ever in spite of gas rationing. It looks like those people who would normally drive a long way for summer diversion are saying, "Shucks, we can spare a gallon of gas to go to Crossroads" . . . Ralph Hawkins, the Crossroads maestro, his band and singer Carol James, may not be there so very long. Serious considertaion is being given to the bid they've received to go into a topflight Manhattan spot for the late summer season. If this happens another group of "solid senders" will keep Crossroads on the beam until the Hawkins band returns in the fall.

Mischa was one of the players in the original famed "Chauve Souris," later went to Hollywood, where appeared in several pictures, started the Russian-American Art Club, formed an orchestra that toured theaters and was featured with Gus Edwards' Revue.

OF YOUNG LEDDIES. Marianne Arden, now at Del Rio in pretty song and piano interludes, is a native Viennese, came to this country with the noted "International Casino." . . . June Sothern of the Madrillon is fitting her gown to her song by wearing a print dress covered with roses when she sings "One Dozen Roses." . . . Nancy Murchison, hostess at Restaurant "823," looks more like Hedy La Marr than anyone we've seen around . . . Take a second look (as you will, anyway) at lovely "Patsy," who takes pictures on the Starlight Roof and you'll recall that she was the ciggie girl at the Carlton's Cosmos Room. . . . Black eyed Nell Deacon, who holds a long distance record as singing mistress of ceremonies at Kavakos' Grill, is of Syrian descent. . . .

FULL OF TRICKS is the current Casino Royal revue. The Janet Hackett Girls dance with dummy partners. Ventriloquist Marshall Montgomery smokes and sips a drink all through his act while his dummy gets spifficated by suggestion. The Balletores do lovely butterfly whirls and "Ginger" Layne does a ballet "Hunting Dance."

GOURMETS' CORNER. Louis, owner of the Copocabana, likes to have meats prepared by first searing them in oil, then cooking them slowly in wine with herb seasoning. . . . Now that cherries are ripe, Mrs. Pearl Best, food manager of the Burlington, plans to serve quantities of hot cherry pudding, Captain Duff style. . . . Maxime's Restaurant Francis is specializing in frogs' legs, the big and chubby kind.

THE LAMB: I did, ma'am. But, you see, I'm a lamb with a purpose. I'm here to tell you of a pleasanter and gentler way of dealing with your little trouble.

MRS. R.: You must mean constipation!

THE LAMB: That's it, ma'am. If you are one of those people with normal intestines who are troubled with constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, this crisp, crunchy cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, will get right at the cause of your trouble. But more than that, it will do it in a way that is surprisingly pleasant and gentle, too.

MRS. R.: Gentle? Tell me more!

THE LAMB: With pleasure, ma'am. ALL-BRAN is gentle because it acts differently from many medicinal laxatives. They work by prodding the intestines into action, or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. But ALL-BRAN works principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination.

MRS. R.: But tell me, lamb, this ALL-BRAN —will I really enjoy it?

THE LAMB: You certainly will! ALL-BRAN has now been improved; it's golden-soft and doubly delicious! Eat it daily, and drink plenty of water.

GENTLE AS A LAMB

217 D. C. Selectees Ordered to Report

Registrants Will Be Given Preinduction Army Examinations at Fort Myer

President Roosevelt declared at his press conference yesterday that any legislation to make available for military service boys 18 and 19 who will register June 30 would be postponed for at least a few months.

The decision followed the President's discussion Monday with Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, of the tabulation of the Nation's man power. He said also that the War Department was studying the subject.

Congressional fear of such legislation was quite definitely soothed when the President said that it would not be necessary to ask questions about any such law within the next few months. It was said that members of Congress expected a request for such legislation next week.

It also was said that Democratic leaders of Congress present yesterday at the White House advised the President against asking for such a plan as it would jeopardize chances of an early adjournment.

Meanwhile a total of 217 men, 107 yesterday and 110 today, have been ordered to report to Fort Myer, Va., for physical examinations prior to induction in the Army.

Yesterday's prospective selectees included representatives of six local boards, and those today are from seven boards.

Sidelights on the War

Singapore Bombing or Voyage Restores Sight of Woman, 93

San Francisco, June 9 (AP).—A 93-year-old woman wounded in the siege of Singapore said today her eyesight has come back to her after ten years of dimming vision.

"Maybe it was the shock of the bombings," speculated Mrs. Rosa Frankel, "or maybe the sea voyage. But anyway I've thrown away my glasses."

At the home of her son, David Frankel, where she arrived via Bombay, India, Cape Town, South Africa, and the West Indies she told of driving her car alone into Singapore from an outlying rubber plantation, after the governor ordered plantation residents to move.

Her daughter's house was bombed. Mrs. Frankel was hit in the arms and neck by shrapnel, and the daughter, Anna, was pinned under debris. The mother helped extricate her, and then ran outside, where a fire was burning. She took off her slippers and used them to scoop dirt onto the flames.

Just before Singapore fell, she fled with her daughter and son-in-law, Lieut. H. Richard Aaron, and 2000 others on a small British transport. Bombs rained around them, but they escaped a hit. Fourteen days later they reached Bombay.

Nazis Impress Poles

London, June 9 (AP).—Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government in exile, broadcast a charge today that Poles in western Poland are being forcibly enrolled in the German army following the recent visit of Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief.

"Only the announcement of retribution and the application of reprisals wherever possible . . . can stop the rising tide of madness of the German assassins and save hundreds of thousands of innocent victims from certain death," Sikorski said.

War Hits 'Town Crier'

Provincetown, Mass., June 9 (AP).—The "town crier," an institution in this resort has lost his job because of the war.

Members of the Town Criers Association announced today that business conditions did not warrant an appropriation for his salary.

Bell in hand, and wearing buckled shoes, breeches and hose, and long cloak, the 'town crier" has strolled the streets every summer for half a century.

Every Inch A King

A good deal of curiosity will doubtless be aroused by the arrival in the Capital today of King George II of Greece. But this King is a man that our democracy will delight to honor for himself and his country as well as his exalted rank. King George is the ruler of a little nation with an immortal name which in this war has relived all its ancient glory. And King George has proved himself so worthy a monarch that he remains and will remain enthroned in the hearts of his countrymen. The Greeks are now under the Nazi heel, ground into misery for their amazing resistance. But even in their agony, they still look up to King George as the symbol of their independence and their sovereignty.

This royal visit will throw back the memory of the American people to the days when the Greeks were in the front line of our own war for freedom. For many weary months they battled against the Italian invader, and eventually fought him to a standstill. They could have rested upon their laurels when Hitler stood at their northern frontier, and made peace with him. But the spirit of Greece burned so bright that, despite the odds, the Greeks fought to the bitter end. None of the great stands of their own heroic history could improve upon the defense they put up at Mount Olympus, then at Thermopylae, and finally at the Aegean. The grand finale was the way the Greeks stood aside to allow the British and Australasians to embark for other battlefields. The people of Athens even draped the retreating soldiers with farewell garlands. The gesture was the more gallant because the people knew the vengeance that Hitler would exact. A country which is dependent for its livelihood on overseas trade, Greece was now bottled up, and the Nazis stripped the cities of their remaining stores and distributed them among themselves.

A companion piece to the epic of the Greek war was the saga of the King's experience. He set up his government again in Crete, and the Germans, when they invaded that storied isle, sought out the King. The farm in which he stayed was the main target of the parachutists. His Premier, Emmanuel Tsouderos, who is with him in America, says that the sight was "like a flock of brilliantly feathered vultures falling on their prey." How the King got away was a miracle. With the planes in pursuit, he and his staff alternately hid in shepherds' huts and scrambled across the mountains to the southern shore, where a steamer took them to Egypt. Such a trial, however, did not daunt the martial spirit of the King. In the Near East he has been organizing a division of Greek troops, so that Greek arms may remain on the field of battle till victory comes. His and his country's sacrifice are the insurance of that victory. Greece may be overrun, but it can never be said that it has been "swallowed in the conqueror's chronicle." On the shores of the Aegean as elsewhere in Europe there is a banked-up fire that awaits only a second front to blaze into a new and even fiercer conflagration.

District Anomaly

Still another instance of the District government's anomalous position is provided by the present controversy over a pending bill to raise the pay of the Recorder of Deeds from $6400 to $8000. The Commissioners oppose the bill on the ground that the Recorder of Deeds office was placed under the Classification Act in 1928, and that any pay raise should be made in accordance with procedures set up by the act. But it so happens that the job of Recorder of Deeds is filled by Presidential appointment. Consequently, a case is being made for exclusion of the job from the terms of that act as a means of securing the proposed raise.

This, of course, is a perfectly ridiculous situation. Quite apart from the fact that the raise would increase the Recorder's salary to a level out of all proportion to the importance of the job in the District government, it is plain administrative folly for the Recorder's office to be left independent of the local government. To be sure, this is not the only instance of divided authority within branches of the local government. But it does illustrate anew the administrative complications arising from the District's present status.

The Senate District Committee will presently act on the bill, and may very properly reject it as a thoroughly unwarranted measure. But unless Congress is impelled to end this and other similarly obvious conflicts of local authority, for which the District government is not responsible, the natural result will be a continuing hamstringing of administrative process here in the Capital.

Religion And Taxation

Not perhaps since the classical case of Marbury versus Madison has there been a decision by the Supreme Court so momentous in its implications as the decision delivered on Monday and written by Mr. Justice Reed and supported by four other justices to make a majority. The Court has ruled that the guarantees of religious freedom in the First Amendment of the Constitution are not absolute but limited. The right to evangelize "may be limited by action of the proper legislative body as to times, places, and methods, . . . which, in view of existing social and economic conditions, are not at odds with the preservation of peace and good order."

Three test cases all involving members of the sect called Jehovah's Witnesses, arrested variously in Alabama, Oklahoma and Arizona on charges of selling religious literature without a license, were made the vehicle for this startling and, in all probability, historic decision. By upholding the ruling of the State courts in these instances, Justice Reed and his colleagues appear to have established the right of local governmental bodies to regulate or restrict activities of religious organizations by the all-too-familiar device of taxation. It seems implicit in Justice Reed's reasoning that the other provisions of the Bill of Rights may be similarly restricted.

This is certainly the construction put upon it in the vigorous and closely argued dissent of Chief Justice Harlan Stone, supported by Messrs. Black, Douglas and Murphy. "It seems fairly obvious," says the Chief Justice, "that if the present taxes laid in small communities upon peripatetic religious propagandists are to be sustained, a way has been opened for the effective suppression of speech and press and religion, despite constitutional guarantees . . . In its potency as a prior restraint on publication the flat license tax falls only short of outright censorship or suppression. The more humble and needy the cause, the more effective is the suppression."

In a separate and more circumlocutious opinion Mr. Justice Murphy agrees with Justice Reed that whereas "freedom to think is absolute . . . freedom to act is . . . qualified, being subject to regulation in the public interest which does not unduly infringe the right." However, he holds that the taxes involved in the three cases in question were not of their nature regulatory but were for purposes of revenue. Since it has not been shown that "the instant activities of Jehovah's Witnesses create special problems causing a drain on the municipal coffers, or that these taxes are commensurate with any expenses entailed by the presence of the Witnesses," Mr. Justice Murphy holds the taxes utterly unjustified. Thus he arrives eventually at the position of Mr. Justice Stone by declaring that liberty of conscience is too precious "to permit taxation to prohibit or substantially impair the spread of religious ideas, even though . . . they run counter to the established notions of a community."

It is plain that far more than the rights of a few sectaries are involved in this decision. Under the reasoning followed by Mr. Justice Reed and his colleagues the numerous municipal ordinances against mendicancy could be enforced, for example, against those religious orders of the Roman Catholic Church whose rule prescribes mendicancy. It would also seem to be an opening wedge for the long mooted proposal for the taxation of ecclesiastical and academic property, which, in the opinion of many, would, if adopted, have the ultimate effect of bringing all education under the control of the state, and thus of placing in the hands of the state the most potent of all instruments of regimentation and indoctrination.

Undeniably, the opening wedge for this latest restriction on religious liberty by the Supreme Court was the decision of the same tribunal two years ago that freedom of conscience must not include scruples against saluting the Flag. It is significant that this case (Millersville District vs. Gobitis), also involving Jehovah's Witnesses, is among the precedents cited by Mr. Justice Reed. It is also significant that the lone dissident in that case was Mr. Chief Justice Stone. But even more significant is the extraordinary memorandum or manifesto now signed by Messrs. Black, Douglas and Murphy, all of whom at the time concurred in the opinion of the Court in the Gobitis case. With singular humility and intellectual honesty, all three declare that "we now believe it (the Gobitis case) was wrongly decided."

Japanese Subs

Shelling of Sydney and Newcastle by Japanese submarines appears to have been more in the nature of a stunt than a serious attack on those Australian cities. The action thus belongs in the category of the feeble and ineffectual shelling by a Japanese undersea craft of an oil installation on our Pacific Coast not long after Pearl Harbor. The Australians, however, are wisely taking no chances. The entire coast of New South Wales has been blacked out, and a strenuous hunt for the marauders has been begun. In view of Britain's experience and, more recently, our own, no one can safely afford to minimize the potential dangers of a Japanese submarine campaign in the waters off Australia. However, it is an encouraging circumstance that so far the efforts of the Japanese U-boats have had little success, while no fewer than eight of them have recently been sent to the bottom.

It is as yet too early to assume that the balance of power in the Pacific has begun to swing away from the Japanese. Their relative inactivity in the New Guinea-New Britain area, the losses they have suffered in the Battle of the Coral Sea, and the even heavier losses they had in the Battle of the Mid-Pacific, suggest that they can no longer ride as high, wide and handsome as they once did. But their capacity to inflict damage is not to be underestimated. Eternal vigilance remains a prime necessity, coupled with the readiness on the part of the United Nations to take advantage of every opportunity to bring the war home to the enemy.

Issues In Libya

The Battle of the Libyan Desert is now in its third week, and the issue is still in doubt. Supplies and reinforcements have got to Rommel through the gap in the mine fields and have enabled him to carry out two savage tank attacks against the British in the Knightsbridge area. It is clear from the circumstances that these attacks met with failure and that the British defensive position is very strong. Though not without great losses to themselves, the British have succeeded in smashing up much of Rommel's tank force and mechanized equipment. Thus they have weakened the very formidable offensive strength which the Axis hitherto possessed in the Libyan area. What is of even greater moment is that the British seem to enjoy a distinct superiority in the air. They have thus been able to carry out effective raids on German-Italian supply lines and depots well to the west of the great triangle south of Tobruk where the battle has been raging.

Accordingly the measured optimism of the Cairo communiques would seem to have some justification. Yet desert warfare, like sea warfare, remains inconclusive until the final shot is fired. Its results cannot be measured in terms of territorial advances or retreats, but only in terms of materiel destroyed. Realizing as he must that the battle is one for tremendous political as well as military stakes, Rommel will employ all his force and all his ingenuity and tactical skill to prevent a rout of his troops. For should that happen, the British would have won more than a minor victory on an isolated battle front. They would have won a major decision in a theater upon whose fate the future of the Near East, the political orientation of Turkey, Spain and Vichy France and the possibility of opening a second land front on the European continent may well depend.

Emulating Hawaii

If loyalty can be measured by public response to the war bond campaign, then Hawaii is by far the most loyal community in the Nation. Last month its purchase of bonds amounted to $5,895,000, or 603.3 per cent of its quota. This, of course, is a phenomenally impressive showing, and the Territory is to be congratulated for its obvious alacrity to further the financing of the war effort. To be sure, it may be that Hawaii's stringent monthly limitations on the use and circulation of cash had something to do with the record achieved. But such limitations have been in effect virtually since Pearl Harbor.

A more likely reason for the record is the fact that Hawaii knows war first hand. Ever since that fateful Sunday morning last December Hawaii has been preparing against the day when the enemy would return—a day which might already have come had our armed forces not intercepted the enemy invasion fleet off Midway. Consequently, war has been and will continue to be very close to our fellows in the once tranquil islands.

Were it as close to us here in the District, we daresay that we, too, would see to it that our quota was oversubscribed. Unfortunately, the District is numbered among the eight Eastern and two Western States which failed even to meet their May quota. Surely it ought not to be necessary for bombs to fall here before we get around to emulating Hawaii's splendid response.

THE CHANGELING

By the green gate-way, see, she stands,
The wild-rose color in her face;
There she will take your outstretched hands
And lead you to her secret place
Of swinging branches laced with light;
Of shining, legendary birds
Climbing blue arcs in rainbowed flight!
Beauty will rob you of all words,
Till she, the changeling, sends you home
Through cool woods strangely new and rich;
Past bee-spires of wild cherry-foam;
Past weeds turned golden in each ditch!
While only ruthless, mortal lips
Can prove the precious magic lost,
Until, with shrinking finger-tips
You feel the sting of sudden frost!.

Marriage Licenses

You can't go up to the District Courthouse and copy 75 marriage license applications for a mailing list every day without learning something of the mating customs among District youth, and without wondering what happens to some of the newlyweds once the rosy blushes of the honeymoon have given way to the baggy eyes of "Junior's colic" period.

You learn that the fast-talking Chamber of Commerce fellow who originally sold you on this town with the promise, "Seven girls to every boy. Man, it's better than Tahiti!" never said anything about Forts Meade and Belvoir, the Anacostia Naval Station, or the Quantico Marine Barracks, all of whose men are doing pretty good in this marriage business. You look at one of the blanks filled in by some winsome thing who answers "Color?" with the word "peach," and wonder how high the eggs will bounce which she prepares with her own little hands. In your weaker moments you mutter a hopeful prayer for poor Phillip, whose Genevieve took out the license and with blitzkrieg decisiveness added his surname to hers in long firm line.

There's plenty of material to work on. More people are filling out applications than ever before in the District's history and they come from all parts of the country. Female Texans with names, "Billie Lou" or "Harry Ann," are marrying New Englanders with the unvarnished titles of "Roger Smith," "James Kelly" or "John Williams."

Southerners with the proud name of Lee somewhere in their signatures have discovered Brooklyn. But in the long run, the anxious Washington swains tend to overlook the well-dressed glamour of the Capital and are faithful to the pigtails and gingham back home in Steamboat Springs. Only one-half of District couples usually come from the Capital.

As to the vital topic of who really effects these connubial coups d'etat, there are no statistics. This writer can only observe, while pushing his chair back for a running start, that when the woman takes out the license, she usually knows the preacher's first name. When the pants of the family officiates, the little woman is generally there beside him, holding his hand to strengthen him for the ordeal of seeing his carefree days signed away in the big book in the clerk's office.

If you are interested in filling out one of these blanks and becoming a beneficiary of what it entails you learn from the licenses that boarding houses are by all means the place to live. Licenses from the District's famed "pensions" are filled out in groups with one couple starting a wave of applicants from the same residence and none of the couples come from different boarding houses.

On the other hand, in spite of the crowds and the eternal opportunities to offer your seat to that blonde who gets off at your stop, that 5:45 Petworth or Chevy Chase bus isn't very dangerous. The license applications show that marriages between people living in the same block of Sixteenth Street or Connecticut Avenue or East Capitol Street are the exceptions.

The fellow who wrote, "In Spring a young man's fancy——" never lived in the District. The largest number of licenses ever filed in one day were taken out last November, when 115 sought legal permission to "love, honor and obey." Perhaps it's the five-day waiting law, or maybe the long Saturday nights spent in the outrageously brightly lighted Rock Creek Park, but Monday is the day when most District youth are prone to answer the "two-dollar question." On this day the number of cartes-blanches to paradise are double that of any other.

In spite of the warnings from spinsterish social workers against the peril-fraught wartime marriages with their soldier brides and weekend honeymoons, brass buttons and a uniform still captivate the ladies. Service men rate. If you demand more evidence than the great numbers of them marrying our Government girls, the license blanks filled in by their future wives always have the rank of their fiance included and unabbreviated. Most of these soldiers are under 25. The average age of all District couples is similarly low, the couples of the age group around 25 numbering far less than those of the younger people.

Most of the licenses are, as would be expected, badly and hastily written in nervous scrawls. And our Government workers in spite of their constant association with official forms are no more prosaic about this marriage business than any other group. Of all the thousands of applications that have passed through this writer's hands, only one was ever filled out with the address written in the prescribed order, "Street, number?" and this was filled out on a typewriter, by a woman.

Greece And The War

With the impending visit of King George II of Greece to the United States, let the American people be mindful of the time when the little but brave Greek army was reaping laurels of glory in its uneven fight with an enemy of ten times its strength. Sharing experiences more terrible than those shared by Wainwright's heroes in Corregidor, the Evzones held the enemy at a standstill for months, thus allowing England time to prepare. Many a time Hitler was reported saying to his generals that the Greek resistance had upset and delayed his plans.

When nations more powerful and more influential were being crushed one after another, Greece alone, yes alone, challenged and withstood the fury of an overwhelming superior mechanized force. Finally she fell, but she fell honorably and gloriously, commanding the respect and admiration of the entire world. The heart shudders at the tragedy this war has brought to Greece, which should have been protected by all humanity, respectful of its beauty.

The leader of these people is paying a royal visit to America. As a man, King George II is the most interesting and most amiable individual. As a king, he is the simplest and most democratic king that ever sat on a throne. In contrast to other monarchs of Europe, George II detested fanfares and pompous public appearances. Loyal to his subjects, he remained a veritable King until the very end, when everything was lost.

Americans, who admire heroes, salute a gallant leader of a gallant army in a fitting tribute, lest his men have not fallen in vain. To his remaining, but still active army, nothing will give more satisfaction than to learn that their King has been accorded a grand welcome in America.

As no one can predict the outcome of this conflict, the bloodiest ever conceived by a human mind, it is not impossible at all that we may see some day a Greek Evzone planting the Star Spangled Banner atop the Reichstag in Berlin.

Women Aren't Helpless

In your feature, I notice a letter from an elderly woman who notices that it is not the white-collar worker but the laborer, etc., who jumps up "to give a lady, old or young, his seat, etc., in a bus or streetcar.

Has this elderly woman ever considered that the white-collar man comes in contact with these "helpless" females in his every day work and there finds them not so helpless but selfish and grasping and never ceasing to proclaim themselves his equal, crying aloud if they even think that a man has been promoted over their heads because he is a man. The fact that a man must support a wife and children while these working females merely take care of themselves or supplement their husbands' income does not concern them or her.

The laborer and mechanic does not have this situation thrust in his face daily and is deluded into thinking that this is still the frail dependent sex of long ago.

Women who go out into industry to compete with men should expect no favors, and your elderly woman, if she's not going to work, should chose the midday hours to gad about when the streetcars and buses are practically empty so no one will have to jump when she boards a streetcar.

Old And New Orders

I never in the least have any uncertainty as to the final outcome of this war. In truth if the powerful combination of America, England and Russia does not defeat the conquest-minded Germany, Japan and Italy, then I shall reverse my present belief and frankly admit that the Almighty does favor nations in war.

But I am uncertain about this proposed "new order" after the war is over, and particularly so since that proposal is coming from those who, on the one hand, profess to be for a "new order," and yet, on the other, proclaim that they are fighting for the preservation of the "old." Such double attitudes always cause me to be doubtful, even though I more than frequently find myself possessed of them.

Yes, I am uncertain about this "new order." And I am uncertain because I cannot forget the recorded results of many other appealing "new orders," including those of that very familiar "new order" which promised mankind the following: "Ye shall not surely die; For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then shall your eyes be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good from evil."

With so many of the world's past sad experiences in following "new orders" as criterions, it seems to me that before the American people definitely decide to follow this present proposed one, they altogether would not be unwise to make a very careful study of it, lest they awaken some day, as many tribes before them have, to find that they have jumped from the frying pan into the fire. "All that glitters is not gold" is a fairly sound bit of advice.

Knockout Blow

Just suppose that you are in the prize ring. It's the fourteenth round and your opponent is tired and groggy. He has a cut that has closed one eye and he is stalling for time to gain strength for a knockout. He is a dangerous man and knows all the tricks of the ring—suppose all of this, then what should you do?

Well, this problem ain't hypothetical, its staring us right in the face and maybe we can't go home after the fight because if we don't win we won't have any home to go to—so, for God's sake, let's knock Hitler out now!

It would be a mistake to think that bombing raids will win the war for us. One remembers the raids on London and Moscow and the fact that China has been bombed to bits for five years. Such raids can only be decisive when accompanied by land and sea action. No fighting general who expected to win has sent his air force in one direction and his troops in another.

Why do the Allied Nations continue to make a spectacular raid now and then, while the Army is in camp and the Navy is on patrol duty? The time is past when we can make great speeches and observe the Eastern Front with "interest." China and Russia have held off the enemy thus far but how long can they resist the main blows of the Axis? Now is the time for that knockout blow by all the Allied Nations.

State Peace Aims

Men make no war on whom they trust. The death dealing antagonisms on both sides in the present war are founded on mutual mistrust. In this lies the ultimate enemy to be fought. Here is the prime evil crying for remedy.

And how is the need being met? By way of improving confidence little room for choice exists between Winston Churchill's continued refusal to state Britain's war aims till after the war is won, and Sumner Welles' proposal to keep our peace aims secret until after a long post-war armistice. Both, preaching freedom and opportunity for all, ask the world to accept the intentions of the United Nations on faith—faith in qualifying reservations.

However false we may deem the pretenses advanced by Axis leaders for going to war, they are accepted as valid by their respective followers—accepted with a faith that impels them to fight ferociously and to the death. That faith must be neutralized. Mistrust in the integrity of the erstwhile great imperialisms must be altered into confidence in their future intentions. But promises made to be carried out after conquest carry no conviction today, nor do diplomatic phrases nor military victories.

It was not on promises of freedom but under guarantees stipulated within the framework of a written constitution, openly proposed, exhaustively debated and amended to meet objections, that the continental colonies were induced to forgo their mistrusts and federate into the States of the Union. The method was calculated to promote confidence and consent. No effort to parallel that successful procedure has yet been made by the leaders of the United Nations.

The best way to convince the world of our sincerity is to proceed at once to formulate a United Nations' constitution and present it at the earliest possible time to the peoples of the world for discussion, amendment and adoption. That is the way of democracy. That is the way it must be done if we intend in good faith to create a democratic world. Hesitation can only mean that we distrust democracy or mistrust ourselves.

What Price Unity?

A pair of weeklies edited in New York have dedicated their entire war effort to the defeat of certain members of Congress in the coming elections—on the plea of unity.

These efforts are inconsistent and incongruous, being devoted to the defeat rather than the election of men to Congress.

In olden times refractory sinners were ejected from membership in a sect that represented unity, in theory at least. Throwing out the sinners firmly united the remainder, it was thought. Such tactics cannot be successful in a democratic form of government.

The British Parliament pays all respect, dignity and honor to His Majesty's loyal opposition.

In our Congress all appropriate honor is paid the minority leaders. Freedom of debate in Congress is perfect proof of the success of our system. Debate destroyed Hitler, long before force could end his fighting. Debate in Congress clarifies legislation. Any attempt to punish a member for his speech or vote is a dangerous approach to bigotry.

If a better man presents himself as a candidate, by all means elect him over the meaner man. It is the choice of weapons I resent. Saboteurs may inflict political no less than physical harm to the State in seeking a head to hit.

Time For Ingenuity

The success or failure of each of us will depend in the future on how we make use of our ability and intelligence in fashioning new means to replace modern vehicles that are now slowly but surely being restricted or denied us. Bickering will only cloud the will to do, to improve on the means available.

Ingenuity presents itself every day. Here and there we notice that people who have not lost their confidence, courage and faith are making use of their skills to substitute other means through which they can reach their destinations.

For example, Maxine Arlen, a stenographer, of Atlantic City, N. J., made a sail of a bed sheet, rigged it to a rowboat, and sails daily to her office and back home. And then there are two Hartwick, N. J., boys, Bob Leach and Bob Turner, who have welded two bicycles built for one into a bicycle built for two, so that they can reach their jobs without gasoline.

How much ingenuity have you?

INSTALLMENT III

Russia Foresees German Aggression

From Report to the Secretary of State

ON THE afternoon of February 1, 1937, I paid my call upon Mr. Neymann of the People's Commissariat for Foreign Affairs. During the course of our conversation, I told him substantially as follows:

I have been much impressed with what I have seen in the Soviet Union. It was extraordinary to see the Soviet Union attempt to accomplish within five or six years in the field of industrialization what it has taken the United States several generations to accomplish. I am particularly interested in your industrial problems and hope that it will be possible for me to make a tour of the industrial regions.

JOSEPH E. DAVIES

Mr. Neymann replied that the Soviet government was gratified to learn that I was planning to obtain a first-hand idea of the developments which were taking place in the country and assured me that the Soviet authorities would do all possible to facilitate me.

He said that he understood that I had been present at the (Radek) trial and wondered what my impressions were. I replied that the trial was particularly interesting to me since it had given me an opportunity to compare Soviet judicial procedure with that of the United States.

Mr. Neymann pointed out that to him the interesting feature of the trial was that it had so pitilessly disclosed the tactics of Germany. He said that he had recently been informed by sources in which he had confidence that the Nazis had been classifying wars in which Germany might become involved into two categories, namely: all foreign, and partly foreign.

The Nazi leaders and German military authorities were of the opinion he had learned, that Germany would not be prepared until 1938 to engage in an important all-foreign war; that is, a war in which an onslaught from without was not accompanied by an uprising within; but that it might without great risk engage in a partly foreign war; that is, a war in which an attack from without would be accompanied by a civil war. Spain and Czecho-Slovakia had already been classified as countries in which a partly foreign war might be waged, and the trial discloses that Germany had hoped through Trotsky so to disrupt Soviet unity as to place the Soviet Union in the same category.

Diary

Moscow, February 3, 1937.

THE GERMAN Ambassador, Count von der Schulenburg, came in. He is very jolly and attractive in a fine German way. Discussed trial, he laughed scoffingly at the references in the trial to the alleged activities of Germany.

From Report to the Secretary of State

Moscow, February 6, 1937.

SIR: I have the honor to report that I called on the People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Maxim M. Litvinov, on February 4, 1937.

I opened the converastion by advising Mr. Litvinov that I brought greetings from the President of the United States. To this Mr. Litvinov replied that he had an indelible impression on his memory of President Roosevelt and that he felt he was "a very great man" and was devoted to the same ideals in two respects which the Soviet government were pursuing, namely, the alleviation of the masses of the people through humanitarian efforts and in his advocacy of peace in the world.

I took the occasion to state to Mr. Litvinov that he could rely without reservation upon my personal sympathies with the purposes and efforts which his government was making in attempting to bring about a better standard of living and greater freedom for the Soviet people and that he and his government could be well assured that in so far as my personal attitude was concerned it would be objectively addressed to a fair and impartial report of facts, conditions, tendencies, and forces as I found them; that we had no diplomatic problems, in the European sense, because of our fortunate geographical position, and that we had no axes to grind.

Thereupon Mr. Litvinov suggested that we were interested in foreign trade. To this I replied that foreign trade was important to us principally in the fact that it was a backlog for the leveling out of our own business conditions and that we were quite independent of it as a vital factor in our national policy. On the other hand, we were, of course, desirous of aiding and promoting foreign trade, but that it was not so vital or serious a consideration as it would be to a nation less favorably endowed.

MR. LITVINOV then suggested that, after all, America was not so far isolated from trouble in the world and that world conditions were a constantly growing encroachment upon our isolation; and he suggested that we might have our problem with Japan. To this I replied that we were fortunate in the fact that Japan and all of our neighbors knew that we had no desire for anything they possessed and that the Pacific Ocean and the Rocky Mountains and our strength were such as to cause us to believe that relations would continue to be friendly.

I asked Mr. Litvinov for his view upon the Eurpoean situation and whether the situation was quieting. He replied "unfortunately no," and then went on to express vigorously his failure to understand why England and France were "continually bothering" with Hitler in Germany; that he could not understand why they should project notes and questionnaires and constantly stir up the German situation and thereby accentuate Hitler's importance and "feed his vanity" into his self-conception that he (Hitler) is the dominating figure in Europe; that he thought they ought to let him "stew in his own juice;" that Hitler's policy had not changed from that which he had announced in his book Mein Kampf; that he was dominated by a lust for conquest and for the domination of Europe; that he could not understand why Great Britain could not see that once Hitler dominated Europe he would swallow the British Isles also. He seemed to be very much stirred about this and apprehensive lest there should be some composition of differences between France, England and Germany.

In re: The Romm Incident in the Radek Treason Trial
Strictly Confidential

SIR: I have the honor to report an incident which occurred in connection with the Radek treason trial.

During the course of the trial, Mr. Walter Duranty of the New York Times came to me with a cable which he had received from a group of journalists in the United States and which reads as follows:

All members of the Washington newspaper corps have read with anxiety of the arrest of our colleague Vladimir Romm of Izvestiva. In our dealings with Romm we have found him a true friend and advocate of the U. S. S. R. Never once did he even faintly indicate lack of sympathy for or disloyalty toward the existing government. He did more than any other Soviet envoy to popularize the Stalin regime in this country. We hope this testimonial can be strongly certified to his judges and that you will ask Ambassador Davies to transmit these representations.

I followed the testimony of Romm with great care. When he had concluded, it was perfectly obvious that there would be impropriety in my taking any official notice of the matter at least at that time.

Attached hereto is a copy of a personal and confidential letter which I sent to Mr. Arthur Krock of the New York Times explaining the situation.

Excerpts from Letter to Arthur Krock

January 26, 1937.

Dear Arthur:

Walter Duranty showed me the cable he received from members of the Congressional Press Association with a list of signatures including your own with reference to Romm's plight.

Romm was placed on the witness stand on the day of the receipt of your message. His testimony was most extraordinary. Without prompting by the prosecutor or use of leading questions, he told a chronological story very clearly and simply. He disclosed that he was an intimate friend of Radek, and in great detail recited the manner in which he acted as "go-between" for Radek and Trotsky and Trotsky's son, Sedov, in carrying letters (sewn into the binding of German books) back and forth.

These letters were the basis of the conspiracy charge against these defendants. They were relied upon to establish that Trotsky was plotting with those defendants the overthrow of the present Russian government, through sabotage, terrorism, assassination, and for the organization of defeatism among the population and active participation with Japan and Germany through foreign spies in the fomenting of an early war against Russia directed principally by Germany and out of which it was contemplated that the conspirators would rise to power in a new and smaller Soviet Republic, after the dismemberment of the Soviet Union and the cession of the Ukraine to Germany, and the maritime state and Saghalien oil fields to Japan.

THE POOR devil did not leave himself a leg to stand on. He did state that, since 1934, when he went to the United States, he had dropped all further participation in the plans. While his appearance on the stand was rather downcast, he looked physically well, and as far as I could judge, his testimony bore the earmarks of credibility.

Under these circumstances it may be impossible for anyone to be of aid to him in the trial."

"(I did not say in my letter to my friend, Arthur Krock, that I was going to take the matter up unofficially with the Soviet government. I did see President Kalinin, Premier Molotov, and Foreign Minister Litvinov. Molotov stated that unfortunately the "gentlemen of the press" in Washington did not know all the facts. His government could make no commitment until the whole situation had been thoroughly examined. If, however, there was room for doubt they would consider with much weight the representations of the American journalists in Washington. I have since been informed that Romm was sent to do work in the interior. Ambassador Oumansky, when later I talked to him about the case, said that it was this action on the part of the American newspaper men that saved him, as "the record of Romm's activity was very bad.")

Moscow, February 18, 1937.

Excerpt from Letter to Senator James Byrnes

IN THIS Radek Treason Trial, the basic vice in the procedure from our point of view was the subordination of the rights of the individual to the state.

The guarantees of the common law to protect the personal liberty of the individual from possible oppressions of government, such as the right of the accused to advice of counsel upon arrest, the right to refuse to testify against oneself, the writ of habeas corpus, the right to require that the state shall prove guilt instead of the accused being required to prove their innocence—never impressed me with their beneficence in the public interest as they did in this trial.

Union Threats

I HAVE been honored lately with demands from several unions and groups of unions that these dispatches be suppressed, and I take encouragement because such expressions indicate that the Communists and corruptioneers in the labor movement at last sense a great rising of popular resentment, especially among the American workers.

The New York Newspaper Guild, from which I resigned when I became convinced that it was an undeviating follower of the Communist leadership, adopted a resolution insisting that I be dropped from The Stars and Stripes, the weekly newspaper of the various American expeditionary forces, and sent a copy to Gen. George C. Marshall, the Chief of Staff. I didn't even know I was running in The Stars and Stripes, and I would be inclined to agree with the guild if it had argued that all controversial political discussions are unwise editorial selection in a paper published for the armed forces.

But the guild protests on no such basis, insisting only that the opinions and observations and the statements of proven facts to which it objects are unpatriotic because they are offensive to its own taste which, as I have said, is communistic and that is quite a different matter. If these living human documents are to be withheld from the fighting forces on that ground, then the same reasons could reasonably be used for loading the paper with Red propaganda and praises of our union racketeers and fellow-travelers.

AS A MATTER of fact, these pieces are alive with loyalty to the United States and the Constitution, but also with resentment against political exploitation of the war by union criminals and brown shirts, by the ruling Administration of the country and, of course, by the Communist Party and its agencies and fronts such as the guild. They also denounce and expose thievery and extortion by unions and the impressment of millions of American workers into unions not of their own choosing which then presume to speak for these muzzled and voiceless captives.

Another such demand went to the Vindicator of Youngstown, Ohio, a couple of months ago, this one under the name of Ralph Hazen of Truck Drivers' Union, Local 214, presumably of the A. F. L., accompanied by a threat that if these "obnoxious" revelations and discussions of fact be not discontinued a campaign would be instituted among locals, central bodies, joint councils and city federations in northeastern Ohio, asking all union men to boycott the paper. Of course, if such a campaign could be put over, a newspaper could be put out of business or compelled to trade its editorial independence for its life and theoretically, by use of the personalized terror inherent in union discipline, this boycott could be made to stick. Practically, however, this can't be done because the workers now at last are onto the union bosses and realize that they yell for suppression because they are embarrassed by truths which, in their corrupt and subsidized union publications, they always try to conceal.

THERE HAVE BEEN a number of other threats of this kind, but the only city in which I am sure I was dropped under pressure was Providence, where there is a large and noisy Fascist Italian community, and even a street named for Mussolini, whose political padrones resented utterances hostile to the Duce, fascism and the people of that enemy country. I cannot say that the pressure caused the result. It may have been only a coincidence of honest editorial judgment and expressions of alien and anti-American resentment, but the thing was in my, perhaps biased, view, unfortunate.

Now we have still another case in which the C. I. O. council of Fort Wayne, Ind., demanded twice, in two emphatic resolutions, that the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel throw out these dispatches and asked that the Department of Justice and the La Follette Committee of the Senate investigate William J. Gross, the editor of the paper, which was isolationist in viewpoint until December 7. Mr. Gross replied by disclosing that Park Kreachbaum, the secretary of the council, had been active in organizations which, in the view of Attorney General Francis Biddle, as expressed in his opinion in the Bridges case, could be regarded as Communist Party fronts.

The objections to me included a charge that I am a Red-baiter, which I certainly am, but there was no detail that Brother Kreachbaum was a member of front organizations or that he was also an isolationist of the Communist wing which turned interventionist when Hitler attacked Mother Russia.

These incidents are not alarming but, on the contrary, show the desperation of the racketeers and Communists in the union conspiracy which Biddle recently recognized as a political agency of the national governing party.

Rubber And Gas

By Mark Sullivan

Reasons For Rationing

A CONGRESSMAN who talked to the President says that the President says that he "may" make a radio address to give the public the facts about rubber and gas, and the need of rationing them—as soon as he has completed a "comprehensive study" of these two subjects. If the President bends himself to that job, he will find himself faced with a mass of contradictory assertions about the facts—and, even more, contradictory judgments about what can be done or ought to be done. On the combined subject, rubber and gas, there is more writing and speaking—and more controversy—than on almost any other contemporary subject. Government officials differ, statements made in Congress differ, persons in the two lines of business differ.

SULLIVAN

The one point about which there is general agreement is the starting point. The quantity of new, natural rubber in the United States is limited. It cannot be increased within the foreseeable future. Because, first, the greatest source, the East Indies, is in the hands of Japan. Second, whatever small quantity of natural rubber might be got from South America is limited by scarcity of ships. Third, whatever natural rubber might be grown within the United States is small in quantity and will take time to mature.

So much for new, natural rubber. In that quarter there is literally no hope while the war continues.

TURN NOW to used rubber, scrap—discarded rubber articles, from tires to rubber nipples. About the quantity of this, estimates differ fantastically. It is doubtful if the average family, city and country, has on hand as much as 20 pounds of usable scrap rubber. However, we shall soon know—a Nation-wide collection of scrap rubber is shortly to begin.

There is another category, rubber now in use—chiefly the tires now on wheels. Probably this is the best resource we have. Care in preserving this, avoidance of waste or unnecessary use of it, is the most practicable way of meeting our emergency. The Government thinks so.

So much for natural rubber, both new or used, or in use. However much there may be of it is hardly enough.

Next, substitutes for rubber—substitutes as distinguished from synthetic rubber. Substitutes are those things which can be used in place of rubber, although they lack rubber's quality of spring, elasticity. Almost anything can be a substitute for rubber, even iron. Previous to 50 years ago, practically every wheel on every road or street had iron tires. The faint beginning of rubber for transportation came in the early 1880's, when a few bicycles had solid rubber tires less than an inch in diameter. Today, more people ride on iron wheels than are conscious of it—railroad cars on iron wheels make upward of 50 miles an hour. To what degree our present automobiles, and our present roads, could be adjusted to iron wheels, is in dispute. Making the change would consume much man power, and man power will soon be recognized as our ultimate shortage.

NEXT, synthetic rubber. By several processes, synthetic rubber can be made as good as natural rubber, and, when produced in quantity, at a lower cost. Manufacture of it is getting under way in many different plants. But the judgment of those best informed is that it will be at least two years before synthetic rubber is produced in material quantity.

Even if we could know all the figures about existing rubber, and all about future supply, there would still be a question. How much rubber, of all kinds, will be needed for our forces and those of our Allies? Whatever the quantity, that is a first call on all we have. Only after we have given to our war effort as much rubber as it needs, directly or indirectly, can the ordinary citizen expect new rubber tires for personal use.

What is the connection between rubber and gas? Much of the public has got the idea that gas is rationed largely as an indirect way of forcing reduction in the use of automobile tires. This, many resent. They say they are not children, that they can and will practice economy of tires. But there are other reasons for rationing gas.

Gas, in sections distant from oil wells, consumes transportation. If the transportation is by ship, there is a shortage of ships. If the transportation is by railroad, there are war uses for that form of transportation. Even though the supply of gas now seems unlimited, so may the possible demand of our war effort turn out to be unlimited. Not one person in a hundred stops to estimate the quantity of gas consumed by that thousand or so of British airplanes for one 90-minute attack on Cologne, or the tonnage of ships required to carry it to England, or the time consumed by a round trip of the ships. President Roosevelt, if he makes that address to the public, might help in convincingness if he felt free to tell the quantity of gas consumed by our planes in the recent Pacific battle, the quantity of oil fuel consumed by the naval vessels, the quantity of cargo shipping needed to replace what was used.

Windsor to Seek Higher Wages For Island Labor

Miami, Fla., June 9 (AP).—Speaking to his island people last night a week after several thousand laborers rioted, the Duke of Windsor, Governor-General of the Bahamas, asserted in a broadcast from Nassau that he would seek higher wages for workers in a Washington conference soon, adding he had a strong feeling I will not return empty-handed."

Workers also were told that, effective tomorrow, they would be given their midday meal free at the Nassau project on which they are working, thus permitting them to use more of their earnings to support their families.

The duke told the islanders that the wage scale could not be changed without the consent of high Anglo-American authorities, and appealed to the people of the Bahams to reject the rumors being spread by "certain agitators" that the labor riot of a week ago resulted from racial questions.

Lansing, Mich., June 9 (AP).—Luren D. Dickinson, 83-year-old former Governor who said a fortnight ago he felt he was too young to retire from politics, has changed his mind and eliminated himself from consideration as a candidate for any State office because of his age.

Midway Battle

By Ernest Lindley

Small Aircraft Carriers

EVERY DETAIL that is reported of the battle of Midway will be examined and weighed, of course, by military, naval and air experts. What lessons they will draw, only time will disclose. The sketchy communiques thus far published, however, appear definitely to establish a few points:

It was chiefly an air battle. The Japanese sent enough aircraft carriers to provide what, in an earlier day, or under other circumstances, would have been regarded as an adequate air-umbrella for their surface ships. Their air umbrella was ripped open and at least partly destroyed by American aircraft, partly carrier-based and partly land-based. Which type of aircraft proved most effective in this battle has not been disclosed. Apparently all the principal types were used; dive bombers, torpedo planes, light and medium bombers, four-engined bombers, as well as fighter planes. From the vigor and relentlessness with which the American airmen pressed home their attacks, it may be taken for granted that their losses were heavy, at least in the early stages of the battle, even though inconsiderable in comparison with the damage they inflicted on the attacking force. The relative strengths of the opposing air forces has not been disclosed, but it would be fair to assume that the advantage was on our side, since in addition to the planes based on Midway and on one or more carriers, the long-range heavy bombers on Oahu could be brought into action.

ADMIRAL KING'S comments to the press Sunday indicated that, as in the Battle of the Coral Sea, land-based bombers were an important, if not the decisive element. He added that the Japanese still had a great deal of land-based aviataion of their own, making it unwise for our Navy to try to follow up the Midway engagement by pursuing the Japanese fleet into its own air-protected waters.

Some time the attack will have to be carried to the far side of the Pacific. The question naturally arises: how is Japanese land-based aviation to be overcome? Nor is this a mere layman's query, as professional military, naval and air men can readily testify.

The question underlines again the importance to the United Nations of holding or obtaining air bases on the Asiatic continent within striking distance of Japan—preferably in China, although possibly in Siberia. This would permit persistent bombing of Japan proper, its factories, railroads and shipping centers, as well as its naval bases. Supply difficulties, made worse by the loss of Burma, block large-scale bombing attacks from China for some time to come.

But what about aviation for amphibious warfare, to cover the landing of troops? What are the odds against carrier-based aircraft in going up against land-based aviation? As a small landing field, the carrier imposes certain limits on aircraft design. If the odds are against the carrier-based craft, plane for plane, are they nevertheless too great to be overcome practically by using a large number of carriers? Such questions, with their many refinements, are for the staff of experts. But it must be reported that certain high officials doubt that, even yet, the Navy is giving the carrier a big enough place in its building program. The big carriers which it favors are immensely complicated and slow to build. In addition, a certain number of merchant ships are being converted into carriers.

BUT THE NAVY designers have a reputation for demanding perfection in detail, almost regardless of the time element. But for the purpose of taking airplanes to sea, a simple type of carrier surely can be built in a smaller part of the time required for intricate ships the Navy has favored up to now.

Instead of 10, or 20, large carriers, and twice that number of smaller ones, why not have several hundred? Suppose that each small carrier were a base for 18 bombers, in addition to its protective force of pursuit planes. Two hundred carriers of this size would transport a force of 3600 light bombers.

If this country can build 1500 or more merchant ships in a year, surely it can build 200 or 300 small carriers. New methods of building merchant ships have become a demonstrable success. Already, one 10,400 Liberty ship has been delivered 48 days after its keel was laid. On big orders for a small carrier of standard design, our best merchant marine shipyards should be able to turn them out in a few months. Experienced builders assert that this is entirely practicable, if the Navy decides it wants small carriers and will agree to a simplified frozen design. Their testimony has engaged the attention of high ranking civilian officials.

Sevastopol

By Barnet Nover

One Blade Of The Scissors

THE FIERCE attack which the German army and air force have launched against the great Russian naval base at Sevastopol and the present Axis offensive in Libya are not to be regarded as isolated actions on unrelated fronts. There are no isolated actions in this war; no unrelated fronts. All fronts are one front today.

NOVER

This is particularly true at the present time, of the fighting on the Crimean Peninsula and the battle in the Libyan desert. They have a direct, organic relationship to each other. They are the first stages in a great encirclement movement which Hitler hopes to carry out in Southeastern Europe, the Near and Middle East during the waning weeks of this spring and in the coming summer and fall.

Neither move is to be discounted. Nor, despite the encouraging news from Sevastopol and Libya during the past few days, can we afford to assume that the Germans have shot their bolt. The fact is that while we have for a long time been scanning the horizon for Hitler's long-awaited offensive that offensive is now under way.

THE IMMEDIATE objectives of the two widely separated operations by the Wehrmacht are, in the one case, Sevastopol, and, in the other, Tobruk.

Sevastopol, which has been under siege for eight months, is a thorn in the German flesh. As long as the Russians hold it they have a base from which their Black Sea fleet can operate to block an invasion of the Caucasus by sea. The presence of a Russian land and air force is also a constant threat to the German flank in the Crimea.

Tobruk, on the other hand, is absolutely essential to the Nazis if they are to have any chance of clearing the British out of Libya and Egypt. Their failure to take Tobruk in Rommel's great drive of last year cost them dearly. They are now determined not to make the same mistake again.

Hitler has his eye on far more than Sevastopol and Tobruk, however. The long-range objectives of the present German offensives in the Crimea and Libya are far-reaching.

On the one hand, the Nazis hope to separate the Caucasus from the rest of Russia, thus depriving the Red army and Russian industry and agriculture of an indispensable and practically irreplaceable supply of oil and lubricants. The wells of the Caucasus, moreover, are looked to by the Nazis as the place where Germany will ultimately be able to replenish her own waning oil supplies.

On the other hand, Hitler hopes to drive the British out of the eastern Mediterranean through the capture of Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

If he succeeds in both of these objectives the German forces now in the Ukraine and the Crimea could effect a junction somewhere in the Middle East with the German and Italian forces now pounding away at Knightsbridge and Bir Hacheim; cut the Anglo-American supply route to Russia via the Persian Gulf and, perhaps, join hands with the Japanese in the Indian Ocean.

BEFORE THESE ambitious plans can have even the slightest chance of being carried out Sevastopol and Tobruk must be taken.

It is now clear that the assault on Kerch was the necessary and inevitable prelude to the present attack on Sevastopol. And it may be more than a coincidence that almost the same day that Kerch fell Marshal Erwin Rommel, who had previously made a hurried trip to Hitler's headquarters on the Eastern Front, launched his attack on the British lines in Libya.

THAT ROMMEL should have begun his offensive as late in the season as he did has occasioned some surprise. The heat in Libya is already intolerable and weather conditions in the desert are certain to get much worse before they get any better. We can only speculate as to the reasons behind his delay.

One reason may have been the Axis failure to pound Malta to helplessness. They tried hard enough and sacrificed a great many planes in the attempt. Malta's usefulness, at least, as an offensive base has been considerable reduced as a result of the fierce and continuous aerial bombardment to which it has been subjected. But Malta has held.

Another factor that may have been responsible for Rommel's dilatoriness was a growing shortage of planes. It is an extraordinary fact that throughout the first fortnight of fighting in Libya the British have enjoyed air superiority though not complete air mastery. The planes which Rommel needed were elsewhere—presumably on the Eastern Front. There were not even enough to safeguard the cities of West Germany against the British aerial blitz.

IN ANY EVENT, Hitler's offensive has begun. How much further it goes and what success it has will depend, in the first instance, on what happens in Libya and what happens in the Crimea.

If Rommel is halted in Libya it may, this time, be difficult for him to reform his lines. The indications from Cairo are that he has lost a considerable part of the material he started with although he must have had plenty since he continues to possess great driving power.

If the German army is halted before Sevastopol an overland drive toward the Caucasus would be fraught with danger. But the Battle of Sevastopol has not yet reached the point where the issue is clear.

One thing is clear. Hitler is being pressed for time as never before. And never before has he had to spread out his forces as now. But the strength that Germany possesses is still great. The fact that, in the first stages of the fighting in Libya as in the opening phase of the battle for Sevastopol, the Nazis have been checked does not mean that they are beginning to be at the end of their rope.

Our Troops Build New Pacific Base

Keeping well ahead of a possible enemy attack, United States soldiers, sailors and Marines have moved in on a South Pacific island and established a new base from which to strike at the Japs. By necessity the location of the island cannot be revealed at this time. However, the Navy yesterday released these pictures showing our troops as they built the outpost. As Army engineers and Navy seabees worked at the task of setting up equipment, Navy scout bombers maintained a constant vigil against Jap task forces

Building Union Quits C.I.O., Bolts to Lewis

By the Associated Press

The breach betwen the C. I. O. and the United Mine Workers of America widened yesterday with the announcement by the United Construction Workers Organizing Committee that it was severing its direct affiliation with the C. I. O. to become a division in District 50 of John L. Lewis' U. M. W.

Lewis' brother, A. D. Lewis, chairman of the Construction Workers, will direct their activities in the miner organization. In a letter announcing the change-over, U. C. W. officials accused the C. I. O. leadership of "betraying" industrial unionism.

Technically, the Construction Workers will still be indirect affiliates of C. I. O. through the United Mine Workers. The U. M. W. has been declared delinquent for nonpayment of per capita tax, but has not yet been expelled. For practical purposes, however, the estrangement is complete.

C. I. O. headquarters said financial assistance amounting to about $315,000 had been given to the Construction Workers, but acknowledged that such said had ceased some time ago. A C. I. O. spokesman would not say whether the money was a loan or a gift.

These same sources predicted that some locals of the Construction Workers would oppose the withdrawal. One instance appeared in Philadelphia Monday when a local union "questioned" the authority of A. D. Lewis to transfer the organization.

Lewis' office said the transfer was passed on by the U. C. W. policy board.

Meanwhile the C. I. O.'s counterproposal for achieving organic labor unity has met with an A. F. L. silence that does not mean consent.

Informed sources said A. F. L. officials had rejected a suggestion for a joint meeting of C. I. O. and A. F. L. executive bodies, but probably would refrain from any comment which might impair the existing functional unity inspired by the war effort.

A. F. L. leaders were authoritatively represented as believing such a joint meeting would be impractical. Membership of the combined boards would exceed 50 persons. Moreover, the recent turn of events in the feud between C. I. O. President Murray and John L. Lewis, was viewed on both sides as another deferment of the day when the two big labor organizations would be one again.

Drought Descends on Little Army Oasis in Oklahoma

By the Associated Press

Fort Sill, Okla., June 9.—Drought descended today upon this Army post, long a sort of a Federal oasis in the Great Sahara that a bone-dry constitution has made of Oklahoma.

Not until it is determined who is boss—Oklahoma or the Federal Government—will trucks bearing officers' liquor to this legally wet plot of Federal soil again rumble up to the fort's gates.

No officers were talking for publication.

But it was learned reliably today that strict instructions had been issued by the post commandant's office that no more liquor may be ordered until the situation becomes less confused.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips, long a traveler on the sands of temperance and a strict dry law enforcer, started the controversy last week by petitioning Oklahoma Congressmen to call on Congress to "stop those law-violating officers" from bringing liquor to the post.

Army officers huddled with Federal and State officials at Oklahoma City, emerging to say anonymously that in their opinion no law was being violated, since the post was Federal property.

Then Ted Husted, the State's chief of investigation, took the position that State law was being flouted since public carriers had to cross part of dry Oklahoma to get liquor to the fort.

Said he: "The State is going to stop those trucks if at all possible."

But strictly unofficially, it was understood that the Army was just as adamant. The War Department, not the State, would say whether liquor would once more flow to this Army preserve.

Six Arrested by FBI in Futile Fingerprint Mutilation

By the Associated Press

The Justice Department announced yesterday that FBI agents had arrested two doctors and four other persons in New Jersey in connection with the alteration of the fingerprints of a fugitive criminal who since has been sentenced in North Carolina for burglary.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, said in a statement that Dr. Leopold William A. Brandenburg had been arrested at Union City, N. J., on a charge of misprision (guilty knowledge) of felony.

He said also that Dr. Howard Alfred Welcher, head of Union City General Hospital; Henry Munick and Charles Mara, both of Union City; Cyrus La Zerdura of Harrington Park, N. J., and Robert Everrett of Surf City, N. J., had been seized on a charge of conspiracy to violate the statute for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The FBI chief said that Dr. Brandenburg was charged with attempting to alter by surgery the fingerprints of Roscoe James Pitts, who has been sentenced to 16 to 20 years in North Carolina for burglary of a wholesale warehouse at North Wilkesboro.

Hoover told this story:

Pitts was arrested last October at Waco, Tex., by State highway patrolmen for failure to have a Selective Service registration certificate. Their interest was aroused by indications that his fingertips had been altered. He refused to tell them who had done it, but described the process. He said that the skin on his fingertips had been cut away to the bone and that his hands then were bound to his chest, his arms crossed. After two weeks, the fingers were cut loose, leaving skin from his chest to form new fingerprints. Scars on each side of his chest testified to the method.

The Gallup Poll

One-Sixth of Dairy Farmers Found Favoring John L. Lewis' Move to Start Farm Union

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 9.—If the prices of all farm products were fixed at current levels and remained there, the majority of farmers throughout the country would be satisfied.

An institute poll of farmers in all the 48 States shows that nearly twice as many say they are satisfied as say they are dissatisfied with current prices for their main cash crop.

The ones who are least satisfied are the dairy farmers, of whom about half—52 per cent—say they are satisfied with dairy prices, while 45 per cent are not satisfied. This may be one reason why a higher proportion of dairy farmers than of other farmers favor John L. Lewis' move to organize a dairy farm union.

The dairy farmer's attitude toward the Lewis organizing drive was revealed in interviews with a representative sample of that group throughout the country. Results follow:

Dairy Farmers
Favor Lewis Union	16%
Opposed	74
Undecided	10

Among all farmers as a group the percentage favoring the union is lower—14 per cent.

While even the majority of dairy farmers are opposed, nevertheless if the one in every six who favors the movement actually joined up with Lewis, he would have a union of sizable proportions.

The farmers who are most satisfied with their current prices, the poll found, are the pork producers, who have enjoyed a substantial price increase in recent months.

Every farmer interviewed was asked whether, in his opinion, the price he is now getting for his chief cash crop or product is a fair price.

Results are:

	Satisfied With Present Price	Dissatisfied	Undecided
Dairy Farmers	52%	45%	3%
Wheat Farmers	82	43	5
Cotton Farmers	57	31	12
Corn Farmers	67	25	8
Hog Farmers	87	9	4

Beauty Bracers Give That Cool Look

Stay crisp and cool by using a beauty bracer as the girl at left is applying to wrist. Tissue pad saturated with dreamflower freshener is her recipe. A quick trick to give a frosty feeling is a cooling lotion followed by dusting from fragrant powder-filled puff, such as the girl below is applying. Many Aids Offered For Grooming in Hot Weather

By Carolyn Abbott

Post Beauty Editor

WOMEN certainly don't have an alibi for looking like wilted lettuce if they consider all the aids available to keep them cool. Compare their grooming routine with the men in the service who, to meet Army requirements, must have spic and span boots, a slick shave and trim haircut, as well as oiled rifles, no matter how high the temperature soars.

It's a real trick to stay crisp, cool and confident when the thermometer is mounting. It is then that make-up starts to melt, hair goes limp, beads of moisture brighten the upper lip, and your best dress sticks to your "glowing" back.

Good grooming is essential to woman's well-being and charm in hot weather. 'Tis true that our dawn-to-dusk schedules are very crowded, but if a routine is developed for using the things that keep one neat as a pink, cool as a cucumber and fresh as a daisy, it doesn't take much time.

To cool you off and calm you down, one fine cosmetic house suggests a "beauty bracer." The recipe follows:

Beauty Bracer—Fold cleansing tissue into a pad, saturate with dreamflower freshener, and spank it over every exposed inch. Especially cooling spots are the temples, elbows, all around the throat and back of neck, over shoulders and inside elbows. Really spank—a bracer is meant to stimulate. Keep the flask of freshener in the refrigerator, then when you use it you'll think you are applying minted snow.

Complete Refresher

If you can spare 5 minutes you may further refresh yourself with this bracer. Make two little tissue pads, wring them in freshener, and then lean back in a comfortable chair with the pads over your closed eyes. Relax completely for 5 minutes, with as blank a mind as possible. The result will be worth the pause. This same freshener will help tired feet; keep make-up from running and keep your hair from going limp, besides leaving it fragrant smelling.

Summer is the critical season for complexions, and even more so this summer, with the added stress and strain of war activities. It isn't too early to start acquiring a smooth, golden tan without reddening, blistering and peeling. The sun can become your friend instead of your enemy if you use Liquid Sunshine, a fine golden sun lotion with the fragrance of wild flowers. This preparation is greaseless and keeps you looking lovely while acquiring a tan.

Another contribution to grooming is creamy, satiny deodorant. Deodorants are not only protective, but beautifying as well, as they contribute an aura of delightful fragrance. One widely known beauty authority offers her deodorant in apple blossom and waterlily fragrences. These are available in snow-white cream or lotion.

A distinctively new five-day underarm cream has been developed by a company known for its underarm pads. The use of this cream stops perspiration and causes odor to vanish instantly. This preparation won't "eat" your clothes. Created especially for people who perspire excessively, it is also amazingly effective on normal perspirers.

Foot Kit an Aid

Another natural for sweltering days, when your feet and ankles feel as big as a locomotive, is a combination of a large bottle of cooling lotion and a powder-filled puff. This Foot Kit, one of the delightful products of a beauty company long distinguished for fine perfumes, bath preparations and cosmetics, as well as boudoir accessories, is just the thing to make your feet forget it is summertime. Pat the cooling lotion on your feet and ankles, dust over with fragrance from the powder-filled puff and the frosty freshness will last for hours. A dash on the temples, wrist and the back of the neck, too, will be a great help. The powder-filled puff comes in four popular fragrances—white lilac, tapestry, gardenia and carnation.

How to Clean Carpet in Corner

Carpet-covered floors are very modish, but they present the difficulty of getting into the corners when the weekly cleaning is done. Little heaps of dust settle on the carpet there and cannot be reached by either a vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper.

To cleanse these corner sections moisten a soft clean cloth with slightly soapy water and wipe the cloth lightly over the carpet. Follow this by wiping with a cloth wrung out in clear lukewarm water. Do not have either the sudsy cloth or the clear cloth more than damp. The dust will come up on the first cloth with the slightest amount of rubbing.

Park View Women Hold Annual Fete

GAIETY and glamour in the three ring circus guise banished gasoline rationing and war anxieties from the Park View Woman's Club's annual banquet last night at the Continental Hotel.

Souvenirs, refreshments, decorations and even the president's speech showed the circus influence. Although the animals were made of pottery and the sawdust simulated with corn flakes, the signs labeled in typical circus style "Do Not Feed the Animals," "Dangerous," etc., created an air of verisimilitude.

Pointing out some of the feats of the club, Mrs. William O. Gale, the president, said: "Like the clowns, you have brought laughter and joy to children at Christmas as well as giving generously to community, philanthropic, Red Cross and National Defense projects."

A musical program, directed by Mrs. T. H. Naylor, director of the Young People's Choir of Fourth Presbyterian Church, highlighted the evening. Those participating were: Mrs. Leo T. Tooley, contralto; Miss Marjorie Conn, contralto, and Raymond Carnes, pianist. Miss Isabel Buckingham, of the Washington League of Story Tellers, gave several readings.

Honor guests included Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edward T. Perkins, founder and honorary member of Park View Woman's Club; Mrs. G. Ellis Logan, organizer and honorary member of Park View Woman's Club, and Mrs. La Verne Beales.

Members of the banquet committee were: Mrs. George F. Dalwick, chairman; Mrs. A. Blondell Howe, Mrs. Lawrence E. Murray, Mrs. James B. Wilkinson and Mrs. Gale, ex-officio.

Mrs. Meyer Stresses Importance of Care For Children in Wartime at Hadassah Fete

THE SOCIAL and moral struggle in the United States is every bit as important as the destruction of hostile forces. In fact, the two fronts are so closely interwoven that no artificial separation of them can be made. These were the statements of Mrs. Eugene Meyer, guest speaker at Washington Hadassah's annual spring luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. Meyer

Speaking on "The Child and the World War," she said: "We weaken our war effort unless we strengthen at once the social foundations upon which it rests and from which it draws its will to victory, its determination to go down to destruction rather than to accept defeat."

Mrs. Meyer pointed out that Europe's experience has shown with brutal clarity that war bears down more heavily upon children than upon adults and for that reason they are entitled to first consideration.

Declaring that the importance of child protection under war conditions was being overshadowed by other major war objectives, the speaker listed four needs of childhood under the impact of war. These are: To be born under conditions of reasonable protection to mother and child; to have an adequate diet and adequate housing; to have supervised day-care when the mother works, especially if engaged in war work; to receive education and recreation until at least 16 years of age.

Stressing the lack of hospital facilities in the District, Mrs. Meyer said, "As usual the District of Columbia is a prime example of neglect, especially in its provisions for hospitalization of expectant mothers." She cited numerous incidents of overcrowding and of cases where many patients were turned away.

What this city would do if it were suddenly exposed to some epidemic, to say nothing of bombing, simply defies the imagination, a prominent doctor told her.

Calling for more nursery schools, more and larger maternity wards, Mrs. Meyer also stressed the fact that school children need protection as well as the babies—especially those whose mothers are engaged in war work.

"Parents cannot work wholeheartedly if they know their children are sacrificed by their own desire to be of service," she asserted, "and many women will refuse (and rightly so) to go into industry or Government if it means neglect of the family. We know that valuable women volunteers have left Washington because they could not secure adequate care for their children."

Mrs. Breslau

Proper nutrition for children of working mothers could be effectively handled by the nursery, Mrs. Myer said. However, she warned that the work should be done by trained experts or workers and not left to untrained volunteers.

Mrs. Meyer expressed the belief that an army of women trained in social services would be of special value to an organization such as Hadassah and the Youth of Aliyah, which must get into action in the European field as soon as peace comes.

Mrs. Isadore Breslau, president of Washington chapter of Hadassah, presided at the luncheon meeting and introduced the guest speaker.

Did You Know . . . ?

THAT—Holland has a new club in Washington? Organizer and president of the new group is Dr. William De Kleine, former medical director of the Red Cross. Vice president is Jules Tamson and the treasurer is Conrad Alberding. Membership in the club is limited to Americans of Dutch descent and naturalized Americans of Dutch birth. Purpose of the club, according to Dr. De Kleine, is to provide an organization through which Americans of Dutch descent may aid civic movements.

Dr. A. Loudon, Ambassador of the Netherlands, and Mme. Loudon will be guests of honor at club's first monthly meeting tonight, 8 o'clock, at Tilden Gardens. Also, the Netherlands Ambassador will present a Dutch flag and speak to members of the club.

THAT—Members of Iota-Sigma, W. C. T. U. are busily making scrapbooks for hospitals? Tuesday night, June 16, at 7 o'clock, members will have a cutting up and pasting up good time when they meet at All States Hotel, 514 Nineteenth Street Northwest to put the final touches on the scrapbooks.

Quick Dish Grand for Parties

A quick dish that is inexpensive enough for everyday, but grand for parties too is one prepared from meat and cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. If you want to give an informal holiday supper, prepared spaghetti with frankfurters should have consideration for its ease of preparation, thriftiness and appetite appeal. Here is the way to prepare it:

Slit 6 frankfurters lengthwise. Spread on the inside with India relish and prepared yellow mustard. Wrap around each frankfurter, a slice of bacon. Fasten the ends of the bacon with toothpicks, then place them on a rack under the broiler. Broil for 10 minutes or until bacon is cooked. In the meantime, heat 1 large can (24 ounces) cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Turn spaghetti onto platter and top with the broiled frankfurters. Serves 6.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Having Denied Husband's Request for Divorce, And Blocked His Efforts to Enlist in Navy, Wife Asks How to Squelch His New Spirit of Independence

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For 15 years, my husband and I have had only mutual friends. But recently, rumors reached me that he was being seen in the company of men and women I have never met. This was very disturbing as he had never, to my knowledge, known persons whom I didn't know. He always claimed, too, that he hated women; and didn't even like to be in the same room with them. Because the rumors seemed ominous, I checked and discovered that he frequently calls on a young woman whom I know by sight but have never met. Faced with evidence, supported by witnesses, he admitted he was deeply in love with her and wanted to separate from me,—with a view to getting a divorce later.

That, of course, I shall not permit. Our home life has gone on undisturbed for 15 years and I see no reason why it should be broken up now. But my husband is glum and refuses to go anywhere with me. He even seems to be ashamed to be seen with me. He is not staying away from home at nights; but he is showing more than usual interest in his hobbies,—music and photography,—in spite of the fact that I haven't the slightest interest in either.

Yesterday, I heard indirectly that he was making application for a commission in the Navy. I feel he has an ulterior motive for doing this; and I think it would be unwise, in the circumstances, for me to let him leave. I have already taken steps to prevent his getting the commission,—by talking the matter over with the wives of two men under whom he works. They have promised to speak to their husbands,—who can take steps to have him deferred; and who will refuse the recommendations necessary for the commission. I feel I have done this in the best interest of all concerned.

But what can I do, Miss Haworth, to change his morose and unnaturally independent attitude? He has changed completely from the mild-mannered man he was, who seemed to respect my help and guidance. How can I be sure he will not continue to see this woman he claims to love? Although I am somewhat older than he,—and, having no children, have continued to hold my position in the Government,— I have tried to be a real companion to him; and have done everything I could to make him realize the value of a home. I had no reason to believe I had failed in this, until his recent revolutionary change. I have no fear of his demanding a divorce, because I have warned him of the heavy financial demands I shall make, if it comes to that. But how can I make him understand that he should consider his position and mine,—and discard his wayward notions?

R. N.

Wife's Jailor Attitude Chills the Spine

DEAR R. N.: Your jailor attitude toward your husband gives me the creeps. I can readily understand that he would prefer death in action to life with you; and your devilish clutch on him being what it is, I think anybody who abetted him in fighting free, by helping him procure a commission to serve in the Navy, would be doing a noble deed.

I cannot conceive a more vicious example of dastardly knifing in the back; of cunning cutthroat tactics; of underhand throttling of adult initiative,—than your sly appeal to his bosses' wives to conspire with you in perpetuating your estrangulating "protectorate" over him. This is a sample in miniature of the universally detested Nazi procedure:—based on the intolerable philosophy that one human being (or group of human beings) is entitled, by specious reasoning, to fasten on, possess and exploit other human beings as personal property. Let us hope these women and their husbands are too wise and decent to soil their souls by furthering your game: the very type of game, on a world scale, which mounting millions of freedom-loving men and women are now resisting to the death, determined to outlaw it forever from the earth scene.

The implications of your bland recital are hideous to contemplate. For 15 years your husband (God help him) has been merely an enslaved male in your scheme of things. To the best of your knowledge, he hadn't a friend whom you did not also claim. (In his soul-sustaining hobbies, music and photography, you hadn't "the slightest interest.") When the "ominous rumor" reached your ears that he had outwitted your espionage to the extent of making some acquaintances strictly "on his own," you and your blood hounds got on the trail, panting for evidence. The rumor was verified. The awful truth disclosed. He had formed independent friendships,—with the result that his courage to call his soul his own had been resuscitated.

But in trying to close in on him, you drew a counter-barrage,—in his defiant declaration that he wants to be out from under your soul-crushing rule for good: that he loves another woman and wants a divorce. Does this development convey anything to you, concerning the fatal error of your despotic ways? No, indeed. It merely adds fuel to the flame of your relentless determination to keep your foot on his neck. In order to get an objective slant on your brazenly dictatorial attitude toward him, reflect for a moment on some of the more self-revealing statements in your foregoing letter.

Speaking of his hunted desire for divorce, you say, airily: "That, of course, I shall not permit." Referring to his application for a commission in the Navy, you say: "I think it would be unwise, in the circumstances, for me to let him leave. I have already taken steps to prevent his getting the commission." Touching on his involuntary aversion to your society, you confidently ask how to force him out of that "unnaturally independent attitude." You report that you have "done everything possible to make him realize the value of a home." You submit that you "have no fear of his demanding a divorce, because of the heavy financial demands you have warned him you will make, if it comes to that!"

Now, you expect me to help you "make him understand" that meek submission to your ruthless will is the only course open to him. But count me out as your potential ally. Count me on the side of your husband,—who, obviously, was driven by the primary instinct of self-preservation to grow away from you, in order to exercise and thus retain any part of his potential growth power. So long as your attitude remains what it is, I must cordially second his increasing purpose to escape your toils. And I must advise him to snap his fingers at your bootless, bullyragging threat to bleed him white, financially, if he insists on divorce.

The alimony racket, played to the hilt by childless wives, has acquired a bad odor in most courts of the land. The woman who seizes on divorce to stage a "hold-up" is simply exposing to the world the seamy side of her nature;—the vulgar, venomous, greedy side of herself; showing cause why her husband couldn't live with her in peace and self-respect. Here's hoping you get short shrift in court, in the event your threat is brought to a showdown.

If "understanding" can save the situation, it must find existence in your consciousness. If, even at this late date, you could wholeheartedly feel a sympathetic respect for your husband's inalienable right to be himself; and could repentantly have done with trying to compress him to the mold which reflects your essential self, a reunion of spirit might be achieved—leading to the salvation of the marriage. A receptive reading of an inspired small volume, "The Serman On the Mount," by Emmet Fox, might supply you the seeds of that understanding.

Your Fun Time Should Put You In Trim for Job

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT DO you do for fun? Whatever your favorite recreation, it should strike a nice balance with your job. Your play should make you feel like work.

But it won't if you play the way you work. Too many of us are inclined to do just that. We follow the same old pattern of activity—or inactivity—from the time we get up in the morning until we call it a day.

After being tied to a desk for eight hours straight, what do we do? We fight for a seat in the bus home. Then we sit down to a long, leisurely dinner, sit through a movie or a little game of bridge, or refuse to budge from the radio—and so to bed.

The comparatively few who work with their muscles are apt to be the ones who come off the job feeling like a breath of air on the way home, or going for a swim, or bowling, or riding a bicycle through the park, or roller skating, or even mowing the lawn or painting the kitchen furniture. Well, anyway, pingpong! But until there are more defense workers and land girls (they used to call them farmerettes) this group will be very much in the minority.

The large majority are in sedentary work. What you need to do is establish a rhythm of work and rest. Change your pace and get some variety in the range of your muscular and mental activity. It will keep you from getting into a rut and it will keep you young.

That is particularly important nowadays. Living in wartime is a struggle, not to say a battle. It's a matter of self-preservation to turn your leisure or, at least, a regular portion of it, over to some hobby that will be both a pleasure and a conditioner.

There's one school of thought on the subject of recreation that contends what you do is not 100 per cent effective unless you get fun out of it. But if you have never done any bicycling or roller skating you will have to do them with some degree of confidence before you can expect to enjoy them. You're not going to like falling flat now and then. But falling is not likely to injure you permanently. At least, the statistics are against it.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Gasless Summer

After all it won't be so bad from the standpoint of the little woman in the home.

There'll be no unexpected carloads of guests driving up on sultry summer afternoons, piling out of cars with children and luggage and explaining blithely, "We thought we'd take you by surprise; now don't go to any trouble."

There'll not be the annual worry of trying to decide where to go on vacation, of wondering if the Swanks are going to Mosquito Beach this year; of debating the merits of the mountains versus the ocean; of plotting "tours" so as to make stops with all acquaintances from coast to coast.

There'll not be the packing and unpacking of suitcases and trunks, the struggle of trying to get home with twice as much junk as was taken away, the hunting for lost articles for weeks after the return, and of trying to get lost pajamas, step-in, hair curlers, vitamins, et cetera forwarded by parcel post.

There'll be no more explaining and apologizing for being in town in August, no more hearing commiserating friends exclaim "But aren't you getting OUT OF TOWN at all!"

No more long hot Sunday drives on picnics with the Twitters, to beaches with the Gadds.

No more arguments over where to drive this time; whether to stop by to see the Smart's new home; how to find the cider and apples that Mrs. Gink the enterprising neighbor told about; whether to turn down this road or that; whether to park at this picnic spot or ride on in quest of a better one.

No more making sandwich spreads or potato salads for club picnics; no more consorting with chiggers, ants and mosquitos while eating in woody dells; no more pioneer life in the management of open fires and Dutch ovens.

No more being the family and neighborhood chauffeur; no more spending the day at the wheel running errands for father and the children; no more taking things to the church rummage sale or ice cream festival; no more picking up neighbors and hauling them places when they had much better be at home.

No more being a member of a cavalcade of creeping motor cars in the boiling sun on a holiday; no more trying to restrain oneself from being a back seat driver; no more crowding into the back seat with the neighbor's children and dogs and several unexpected passengers.

No more worrying about the children being out past midnight "driving all over the country;" no more visioning them hurled in ditches, or making whoopee at road houses.

No more opening the pocketbook eternally to let the man of the house "borrow" a dollar or so to buy gasoline or to get something fixed at the garage.

No more thinking up excuses for not attending lectures, musicales, fetes, committee meetings, bridge parties, benefits, et ceters. The alibis easy enough now. ("You see I didn't have a drop of gasoline!")

No more having to fib and apologize and explain endlessly in order to enjoy the privileges of staying home.

Yes, it begins to look as if the woman of the house soon will be leading her own life at long last.

White Shoe Laces Can Be Washed

A pair of shoe laces may seem a very trivial thing to conserve, but those with metal tips are pretty precious these days. Instead of throwing them away when they have lost their freshness, give them a soap-and-water bath. Use a small hand brush to scrub them with lukewarm soapy water. After several rinsings, squeeze out the water between two fingers and hang over a rod to dry.

This is a particularly useful little thrift in connection with white shoe laces and pastel ones. The laces can be pressed with a moderate iron if desired, but this is not necessary. Avoid having the iron touch the metal tips as the heat may remove the enamel coating.

"Strictly Official" Calendar for King to Include All Social "Musts;" Duchess of Windsor Shying From Gotham Shops

AT LONG LAST, a visit that has been heralded, off and on, for the past six months will become a fact today when His Majesty, King George II of Greece, steps off the train this afternoon at Union Station.

There will be the usual fanfare, the usual number of high-ranking officials on hand to greet the visitor, and more than likely there will be a few curtsies dropped by local royalty-loving dowagers who want to be sure everybody knows that they know a king when they see one.

King George

From what I've been able to gather on my usual rounds, however, I believe that war-time Washington as a whole will have time to evince only a polite interest in the King's visit. There will be official functions a-plenty, of course; and His Majesty will be entertained at the White House, both for dinner and over night.

Blair House is ready, down to the last highly polished door-knob, for the King and his entourage. All the social "musts" for a distinguished visitor are to be rigidly observed—even though, as the Greek Legation insists, and everybody knows—the visit is as far from social as anything could be.

Then, why is he coming? Well, that's a question I've been hearing on all sides, ever since his forthcoming visit was announced some time ago. An authority on international affairs voiced the best answer yesterday afternoon at a late get-together.

"He's coming, of course, to pay his respects; and to find out what's going on; what he can do to help, and how he can insure the future of his country when the peace is written. Then, too, there's the little matter of lend-lease—don't forget that."

Well, whatever the reason behind it, His Majesty's visit will be headlined play by play, party by party, and appointment by appointment from now until he bows out of the Washington scene next week.

Wallis Being Widely Entertained . . .

In New York, meanwhile, the Duchess of Windsor is keeping her social calender as quiet as possible. From a friend comes word, however, that both the duchess and her "Aunt Bessie" Merryman are being entertained at a continous series of small, informal and off-the-record parties. Seems, though, that Wallis has made quite a point of not being in Gotham on a clothes-buying spree this time.

Duchess of Windsor

Decidedly in contrast to the dither in which the Virginia hunting country found itself a few months ago when the Duke and Duchess of Windsor visited Mrs. Sterling Larrabee was the past weekend stay of the duchess with Mrs. Larrabee. Half the countryside did not, of course, know that Wallis was there, and those who did were asked to soft-pedal her visit as much as possible.

Reports were making the rounds down in those parts, however, that the duke would return to this country to join his wife in New York for a few days' visit. Other rumors have it; that they will both return to Washington; that the duke will greet "Wallis" at Nassau when she returns with Mr. and Mrs. Rogers to the Bahamas before the end of this month.

A Bit About Another King . . .

One of the busiest men in Washington, Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Ernest J. King has hardly had time for a deep breath the past six months. Most of his time has been spent on his flagship The Vixen, and he has become almost a stranger to his wife and seven children.

Admiral King

One evening recently, however, things were looking up for the King family. Said Mrs. King to the sons and daughters of the household—those who are in Washington, at any rate—"I want all of you to be at home at 7 o'clock. Be sure and be here . . . and be on time. Your father's planning to be home for five minutes!"

DOWN IN CHATTANOOGA, they're still talking, far and wide, about "that wonderful speech," Mrs. Patrick Hurley made before wives of members of the Tennessee State Bar Association a few days ago. It was Mrs. Hurley's first speech ("and to tell you the truth, I'm frightened to death," she told me a few days before she left for the South), but she felt strongly about the subject, "American Women and World Leadership:" she spent plenty of time preparing her speech, and evidently it went over with a bang. Anyway, a letter from a Chattanoogan reads as follows:

"Mrs. Hurley is the best woman speaker—and the most beautiful—it has ever been my pleasure to hear . . . and see."

Back in town for a few days after her speaking engagement, Mrs. Hurley and her daughters, Ruth and Mary Hope, are now en route to New Mexico to spend most of the summer.

Mrs. J. A. King Guest of Honor At Late Tea

Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling entertained a small group of friends yesterday afternoon at her home on Wyoming Avenue in honor of Mrs. John Andrews King of Lake Forest, Ill., who is the house guest of the Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor.

Mrs. King is in town for only a brief visit, after attending the graduation of her daughter from Foxcroft School on Monday. She will leave for home today following a luncheon given for her by Mrs. Charles Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. Houghteling, who usually spend their summers in Chicago, are not returning there this season and as yet have no definite vacation plans although they do hope to arrange for a brief sojourn at some nearby resort spot later in the summer. Their oldest daughter, Miss Margaret S. Houghteling, is back in town following the completion of her junior year at Vassar, and like many another patriotic young Washington miss, is hoping to find work for the summer.

James Lawrence Houghteling, jr., who was graduated from Yale last year, as well as the younger Houghteling children, Louise and Frederic Delano, will all be more or less permanent residents of Washington through the coming torrid season.

Miss Tuckerman Plans Cathedral Wedding June 20

The day has been chosen and most of the plans made for the wedding of Miss Ruth Tuckerman, who will become the bride of Lieut. (j. g.) Robert Gifford Metters, U. S. N., Chaplain Corps, June 20 in a 4 o'clock ceremony in the Great Choir of the Washington Cathedral.

The reception, which will follow at Tuxeden, the estate of Miss Tuckerman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, will be small, with only the family and out-of-town guests attending.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Harold Gifford Metters of Norwood, Mass., and the late Dr. Metters. He served four years as assistant rector of St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, and is now on active duty at the Bureau of Navigation here.

Faughts Announce Birth of Son

Mr. and Mrs. Millard C. Faught announce the birth of a son yesterday in the Fitzgerald Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Faught is the former Patricia Gibson-Craig Carmichael, eldest daughter of the late Sir Eardley Gibson-Craig-Carmichael, baronet of Riccarton and Keirhill, Scotland.

Word of the baby's arrival was sent immediately to his grandmother in Santiago, Chile, and to his uncle, Sir William Gibson-Craig Carmichael, who is serving in the Royal Armored Corps, in England.

The baby's mother was in Germany the night war broke out, and although a relative of both Anthony Eden and Lord Mountbatten, she eluded the Germans and reached St. Gallen, Switzerland. From there she witnessed the British bombing of Frederichshaven. After having her passage canceled successively on the Rex, Manhattan, and Excambion, and the Italians having confiscated her luggage, Miss Gibson-Craig-Carmichael finally sailed from France on the de Grasse, which was sunk on the return voyage from New York.

As soon as she convalesces from the birth of the baby, Mrs. Faught hopes to do war work. Having lived in Australia, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Singapore, and India, and with many friends in all of these places, Mrs. Faught is keenly interested in the progress of the war.

The Faughts moved to Philadelphia last June when Mr. Faught was appointed regional chief of the information division of the Agricultural Marketing Administration.

The baby will be named Douglas Vivian Faught, the first name having been selected before Pearl Harbor.

The Rev. William C. Marshall performed the ceremony at high noon, and a reception followed for the immediate families and close friends at the home of the bride's aunts, the Misses Earle and Eleanor Dennis.

Guests Greet Dr. Grady At 'Hail-and-Farewell' Fete

"I got your telephone call half an hour ago and here I am," laughed an out-of-breath guest yesterday afternoon as she greeted her host and hostess, Dr. Henry P. Grady and his daughter, Miss Patricia Grady at the Grady apartment on Wyoming Avenue.

Finding that he had a few moments to spare in an overcrowded schedule, Dr. Grady and his daughter gathered in by hasty phone calls some of their friends for an informal "Hail and Farewell" party. "Hail," because Dr. Grady has just returned from India, where he headed a mission for the Government—and "farewell" because he will be off today to rejoin Mrs. Grady in their San Francisco home, where she has been since he left on the mission.

Also assisting as hosts during the afternoon were the three Grady sons; Lieut. Reginald Grady, who, having just completed his officers' training course, may be off for parts unknown at any minute; John Grady, who will leave next week for California, where he will enter the University of California; and Henry F. Grady, jr., who will be in town with his sister during the summer, and will enter a university in California in the fall.

In spite of the event's informality and the fact that there were to be "just a few friends," the popular Grady's find that any gathering of theirs grows like a mushroom from its inception. The result yesterday was that though the apartment is spacious and the rooms large, it was crowded with guests of such varied interests and from such far places that the apartment seemed like the crossroads of the world.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Stone Attend

There were, for example, Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Stone; the Philippine President Manuel Quezon (who was a symphony in gray) with suit, shirt, tie and hair all of matching shade; Edward Hester, who has returned from Corregidor; Harry Beyster, who has just returned from India with Dr. Grady; and J. M. Elizalde, the Philippine Commissioner, who will be off today for a 10 days' vacation.

Assisting Miss Grady during the afternoon were Mrs. Frank J. Waring, Mrs. Walter Wyatt and Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt.

Kiplinger Receives Hails and Wails

W. M. Kiplinger was the center of much attention from the guests who were either congratulating him on his latest best-seller "Washington Is Like That," and being thrilled about his including them in the book; or complaining bitterly that he had left them out of his volume.

Still others there were Rear Admiral Emory S. Land; Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, who was accompanied by Mrs. Chapman, and who was explaining that he had finally decided not to toss his hat in the political ring for a seat in the Senate from Colorado; Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Justice and Mrs. Justin Miller; Lawrence Clayton, who was joined later in the afternoon by his daughter, Miss Sybella Clayton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Max Thornberg, Judge Marion J. Herron, Walter Wyatt, Frank J. Waring, Max Truitt, Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, and Mr. and Mrs. William Stone.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Basil Manley, Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eaton, Mrs. Carroll Stewart, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Jameson, Col. and Mrs. C. H. Kells, John Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carr, Mrs. A. Manuel Fox, and many more.

Mr. Daniels is the author of several best-selling books, among them "A Southerner Discovers the South" and "Tarheel," and before joining the OCD he was editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer.

Leading the list of sponsors for the benefit is Mrs. Roosevelt and among the other sponsors are Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Harold Ickes, Mrs. May Thompson Evans, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, Miss Frances Perkins, Mrs. Michael Straus and Mrs. Stanley Reed. Mrs. Dean Clark heads the committee making the arrangements, of which Mrs. Leon Keyserling is the treasurer.

The home of Justice and Mrs. Black at 619 South Lee Street, Alexandria, is easily accessible from Washington on the Franklin Street bus. The party is scheduled to be held in the spacious garden of the Black home, but the committee emphasizes that in case of rain the party will be held inside.

Western World Must Revise Views on Asia, Soong Warns

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., June 9.—T. V. Soong, China's foreign minister, declared today that "Asia is tired of being regarded only in terms of markets and concessions, or as a source of rubber, tung oil, or as furnishing human chattels to work the raw materials."

He spoke at the annual Yale alumni luncheon along with Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for air who urged that all thinking in terms of an old and a new world or in terms of hemispheres be abandoned, after both had been awarded honorary degrees by the university.

Dr. Soong, who said his country hoped that peace would see the reorganization of the League of Nations or an instrument similar to it, identified China's war aims as "political freedom for Asia" and "economic justice."

Asserting one could not be achieved without the other, he said: "The World War of 1914, while it did not succeed fully in liberating all the nations of Europe, scarcely even touched Asia. Modern inventions have annihilated distances and multiplied contacts between nations, and the world can no longer exist peaceably half free, half enslaved, any more than, as Lincoln said, a single nation can.

"China is fighting for her national independence. She aspires equally for the freedom of all Asiatic nations."

Cited by President Charles Seymour as a "statesman of a people who in the struggle for freedom and justice against barbaric aggression have stood ready to lose everything except their soul," Soong, brother of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, was made an honorary doctor of laws.

Honorary master of arts degrees were awarded to Lovett and to Artemus Lamb Gates, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air. Gates and Lovett were classmates at Yale, having been graduated in 1918.

Jury Indicts Pelley on 12 Sedition Counts

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

William Dudley Pelley—who made Hitler his model and dreamed of a day when the Silver Shirts would make him the American fuehrer—was indicted yesterday on 12 counts of sedition.

The Federal grand jury in Indianapolis indicted Pelley and two of his confederates after an investigation of nine days. The charge was that by what he printed in his magazine, the Galilean, Pelley tried to block enlistments, foment disloyalty in the Army, hamper American efforts in the war and "promote the success of our enemies."

On each of the 12 counts, Pelley would be liable, upon conviction, to 20 years in prison and $10,000 fine. So would his codefendants, Lawrence A. Brown, secretary of Pelley's Fellowship Press, and Agnes M. Henderson, treasurer. Bench warrants were sought for them.

Freed on $5000 Bond

Pelley was nabbed at Darien, Conn., on April 4, when Attorney General Biddle ordered his Nation-wide campaign against the propaganda of treason and sedition. Free on $15,000 bond, the Silver Shirter—who fancied the title of "The Chief"—is due to be called in for arraignment shortly.

The Galilean, which brought his indictment, was driven out of the mails months ago, but not before Pelley had used it for dozens of expressions which the grand jury called seditious. For example, in the February 23 issue, Pelley wrote:

"American fathers and mothers must watch their sons drafted off to camp for early shipment, like the Gentile cattle they are, to Ireland, Egypt, or Sydney. . . ."

And seven weeks after Pearl Harbor, Pelley wrote that "to the moment, it still remains Mr. Roosevelt's war."

In North Carolina, where he had his Silver Shirt headquarters at Asheville, Pelley is under conviction on charges of violating that State's blue sky law. In that case he has been free on an appeal bond.

Early in 1940 Miss Dorothy Waring of New York, a blond secret agent for a former House investigating committee, testified that Pelley had told her he planned to lead a march on Washington and become "the white king" of the country.

His Attorney Questioned

While Pelley's case was before the Indianapolis grand jury, one of his lawyers, H. Victor Broenstepp, was being questioned by the special grand jury on Axis agents in Washington. Broenstepp was the coordinator of the policies of the defeatist press, making it his job to see that they struck harder blows.

Bertrand H. Roberts, a printing salesman, 2318 Ashmead Place Northwest, was a witness yesterday. Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney said Roberts was summoned in connection with the production of some books which have been under scrutiny.

The grand jury will sit again Friday.

Navy Is Seeking Funds for 127 More Submarines

Hearings on a $2,807,490,740 supplemental war bill disclosed yesterday that the Navy plans construction of 51 submarines in the fiscal year beginning July 1, with 76 more scheduled for next year.

The testimony, before the Senate Deficiency Appropriations Subcommittee, included a request by Rear Admiral A. H. Van Keuren, chief of the Bureau of Ships, for legislation releasing about 30 million dollars of existing funds for the preliminary work. The Navy recently was authorized to add 200,000 tons of combat ships.

"This is the availability of the appropriation for 200,000 tons of combatant ships which was proposed in the House to cover submarines," Van Keuren said, "and the keels will be laid of those, 51 in 1943 and 76 in 1944, and the completion will be in 1944 and 1945 for the most part."

Will's Revelation

Barrymore Feared Being Buried Alive

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 9.—John Barrymore's will, filed for probate today, disclosed that the actor's many-faceted personality included the fear of being buried alive.

The will, which specifically excluded all his four divorced wives from participating in his estate, requested his executors to employ doctors and cooperate fully with "any person who wishes to ascertain that I am in fact dead, and not in any other state having the semblance of death, in order, so far as possible, to avoid all risk of my being buried alive."

The will was drawn last December.

The actor, who made upward of a million during his long career, left an estate valued, in the legal phraseology, in excess of $10,000, but which his attorney, Gordon Levoy, said would have no certain income.

The executors are Levoy, Barrymore's brother, Lionel, and Author Gene Fowler.

With the exception of a few specific bequests, Barrymore left his estate to his three children, Diana, 21; Dolores, 12, and John Blythe Barrymore, 10. It said:

"I expressly make no provision herein for any of the said former wives."

They are Elaine Barrie Barrymore, Dolores Costello, Michael Strange, the writer, and the late Katherine Corri Harris.

Specific bequests included:

"That certain family letter from Abraham Lincoln to Mrs Louisa Drew, dated June 25, 1864, and that certain painting of me by John Singer Sargent, to my daughter, Dolores Barrymore.

"That certain marble head and bust of me to my son, John Blythe Barrymore.

"My dog (his Afghan hound) to my gardener, Mark Nishimura."

The latter, Barrymore's servant for 15 years, is now interned at the Manzanar reception center.

'War Shelters' Will Replace Housing Plan

Housing programs as such have been shelved for the duration and a "war shelter" program substituted, John B. Blandford, jr., director of the National Housing Agency, yesterday told the House Congressional Committee holding hearings on a bill to extend provisions of the Lanham Act by 600 million dollars.

Blandford said that of more than 12 million persons expected to go into war production jobs during the coming year, construction of shelters for only 1,600,000 is contemplated. This will be made possible by careful location of plants and full utilization of existing facilities, he said.

Priorities are being issued by the War Production Board for the war shelter program, the housing executive said, declaring he believed "there is no intent to stop these priorities."

Representatives of the WPB and also of the Man Power Mobilization Commission will be heard by the committee during the week, in an effort to determine priority possibilities and trends of war worker migration.

Blandford said the NHA is experimenting with 2-person dormitory apartments for married couples, in the belief that they will meet a definite need in the war housing field. Permanent housing will be considered only in rare instances and when it is definite the community can absorb the building to advantage.

In the coordination of 16 housing agencies into the one he now heads, Blandford told the Congressmen, a substantial saving can be expected. To date, he said, about 700 employes have been dropped. The accent, however, has been on a meshing of effort and on keeping the housing programs going, he said.

House Sends D. C. Funds Bill To Conference

The House yesterday voted to send to joint conference the Senate-increased $56,336,981 1943 District budget bill.

The conference will be faced with the problem of settling monetary differences between the two bills totaling $190,810—the net amount added to the appropriation by the Senate.

Also to be straightened out are three legislative amendments written in by the Senate. These changes would permit District teachers to hold Federal jobs during the summer months, erase ceilings on public assistance payments and force Government agencies being investigated by Congress to pay the cost of the investigation.

WWDC Control Shifted

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday consented to the transfer of control of the Capital Broadcasting Co., licensee of Station WWDC, Washington, D. C., from Stanley H. Horner, Dyke Colum and Edwin M. Spence to Joseph Katz, G. Bennett Larson and Charles M. Harrison for $110,000.

Keep Schools Going, Says Mrs. Roosevelt

"Workers' education should continue so that it may be used for the objective of good government in the future, for the benefit of the peoples of the world," Mrs. Roosevelt told 300 members and guests of the Washington Workers' Education Committee at Pierce Hall last night.

The First Lady, emphasizing the need of adult education, said: "Perhaps one of the things that makes workers' increased learning significant is that it should bring to them a realization of their responsibility and power.

"There is no room in our world today for nonworkers, and never was education so important from the point of view of every person as a responsible citizen. Too often we don't really exert ourselves to make our citizenship effective. We should elect people who believe in the things we want, watching closely the things they do and the results of their Government in order that we may act on the things we see."

Prof. R. H. Tawney, president of the British Workers' Educational Association now attached to the British Embassy staff here, spoke on the background, achievements and future of workers' education in England.

"Modern war is not like a wet day," Professor Tawney said. "It cannot be shaken off completely with the knowledge that sunshine will follow. It more closely resembles a dangerous operation followed by a long period of convalescence, during which the patient must struggle slowly back to health."

Boris Shiskin, American Federation of Labor economist, told the meeting that "participation of workers in decisions made concerning them is absolutely necessary to make them feel that they are taking active part in final and decisive judgments."

Additional speakers were Frank Fernbach of the United Steel Workers' Union of the C. I. O., and Hilda Worthington Smith, of the WPA education department, who introduced the guests. Mrs. Roosevelt led a discussion of labor education developments after her own talk.

300 Women Strike In War Factory

Akron, Ohio, June 9 (AP).—Three hundred women war workers at Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. went on a sit-down strike today, the company reported.

Twelve sewing-machine operators, at work on rubber life-saving equipment for the armed forces, started the sit-down in protest against a change from day work to piecework pay, officials said. The other women, on two shifts, stopped work in sympathy, they added. Wage scales were not given.

A Department of Labor conciliator was expected to enter the controversy.

Funeral Services for Brian Bell Set for Today

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. today for Brian Bell, 52, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, who died of heart disease Monday at his home in Arlington, Va.

The services will be conducted in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Arlington. Burial will be in the Columbia Gardens Cemetery, Arlington.

Bell, whose passing brought expressions of sorrow from thousands of persons in all walks of life throughout the country, was widely known not only as a reporter, sportswriter, editor and news executive, but also as a raconteur. He was equally at home covering a presidential press conference or a prize fight.

"A Good Reporter"

In Congress, Representative Priest (Democrat) of Tennessee, paid him this tribute, which he said was "reserved for the truly great in the profession of journalism:"

"He was a good reporter."

Special Dispatch to The Post

Atlantic City, June 9.—A gadget that records patterns of the brain's electrical waves, enabling a doctor to advise persons with abnormal patterns whether they can carry and have children with safety, was described here today.

Dr. William G. Lennox of Boston told the American Medical Association said the electroencephalograph has made possible "remarkable progress" in the understanding and treatment of epilepsy in the last decade.

"The problem of epilepsy and related disorders is the personal concern not merely of the half million persons who are subject to seizures, but of the ten or 15 million persons who have abnormal patterns of brain wave activity," he said.

"This means that questions of marriage and children apply not only to persons with seizures, but to this very much larger group who may be capable of transmitting the dysrhythmia and the predisposition."

Armed Forces Need Doctors

Queer brain wave patterns, provided they are constitutional and not the result of injury, indicate a predisposition to epilepsy or mental disease, said Dr. Lennox.

In his presidential address last night, Dr. Fred W. Rankin of Lexington, Ky., reminded delegates to the annual convention that the profession is duty bound to supply 25,000 doctors to the armed forces by the end of this year.

While medical schools are graduating 5000 new physicians annually, 3000 are being lost by death, retirement or other causes, said the A. M. A. president.

"Our profession is the trustee of the Nation's health and as such its obligations are to furnish adequate medical care to the armed forces while at the same time maintaining faithful service to the civilian population and productive war industry installations," said Dr. Rankin.

"To Serve Is Our Destiny"

"It further demands that public health programs be cheerfully guarded, maintained or even increased as the need grows larger and larger . . . To serve is our destiny, to serve freely, faithfully and effectively is our wish and ambition."

Outstanding among the numerous exhibits at the meeting, which is being held in Convention Hall, is one on contraceptives, the first of its kinds ever presented at an A. M. A. convention. It was prepared by Dr. Clarence J. Gamble of Milton, Mass.

A scientific paper read to the assembly by Dr. James B. Hamilton of Yale medical school, advanced the theory that baldness in men indicates virility. In his research he found that men who had lost their quotas of male sex hormones tended to retain their hair. When some were given the hormones, their hair began to fall out.

House Rejects Move to Limit TVA Moneys

By the Associated Press

The House rejected yesterday a Senate amendment to the independent offices appropriations bill which was designed to limit Tennessee Valley Authority expenditures to funds previously voted by Congress.

Representative Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois, who had planned a fight to force acceptance of the Senate amendment, announced he would reserve his effort until a later date. Shortly afterward a voice vote sustained original House language giving TVA authority to use its power receipts in its operations.

Dirksen said he was "persuaded that an appropriation bill is not the place" to change the basic language of the TVA Act.

"If there is to be a better supervision by the Congress, if there is to be a closer supervision by the general accounting office, if these funds are to be covered into the Treasury, the matter ought to be handled by the Congress through legislation rather than by a proviso in an appropriation," he said.

Favors Senate Action

Announcing he was in sympathy with the purpose behind the Senate amendment which was sponsored by Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, Dirksen said the matter would "have attention within the immediate future," and added it was the "sworn duty" of Congress "to see that (TVA power receipts) money goes into the Treasury."

The action came on House consideration of a conference report embodying various amendments to the independent offices appropriations bill, which now goes back to the Senate.

In view of the House action, opponents of the change predicted the Senate would recede from its TVA amendment.

Meanwhile, a 280-million-dollar WPA bill designed to give employment to 400,000 persons a month starting July 1 was sent to the House by its Appropriations Committee with a warning that a sharp retrenchment program was inevitable.

In an accompanying report, the committee said the appropriation, recommended only two weeks ago by President Roosevelt, would mean a reduction of 575,000 persons from the average of the current fiscal year.

Would Mean Decrease

With WPA employment this month estimated at 750,000, the committee said the 400,000 figure would mean either a "precipitous decrease" of 350,000 immediately or a gradual decline which would force employment far below 400,000 later.

Statistics presented to the House showed that:

About 1,200,000 women entered the labor market and took jobs in March.

The average age of WPA workers has risen from 42.4 in November, 1937, to 46.4 last February.

Reductions in the appropriation may mean the closing of some regional field offices, particularly the State headquarters.

In seven years, the WPA had provided work for more than 8 million different persons.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hypothetical Planes to Raid Washington on Return to Sea After Striking Virginia Points in All-Night Blackout June 17

The hypothetical enemy planes that will fly over Washington and Virginia during the June 17 all-night blackout will make the District their last port of call, it was decided at a meeting yesterday of District, Maryland and Virginia civilian defense chiefs.

On the assumption that the invaders first would try to bomb such places as Bluefield and Abingdon, Va., and then drop what remained of their bombs on the Capital on their way back to sea, Washington will have its alarm period after the western part of Virginia is alerted under the staggered system to be used.

John J. Howard, chief of air raid precaution for Virginia, and Col. Henry S. Barrett, who occupies the same position in Maryland, confered with District Defense Director Lemuel Bolles yesterday on the details for the test. Bolles met with his chiefs of service later in the day.

Barrett promised to have Charles and St. Marys Counties, as well as Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, participate in the test. The addition of the others would "form a perfect shield of black around Washington," Barrett said.

Howard expressed appreciation for the District joining in the test to make it 100 per cent efficient for Virginia.

Safety was the principal concern at the meeting. As in every other blackout, the emphasis was on getting the public to stay at home as much as possible during the test in order to reduce the traffic hazards.

Staying at home is also requested in order that the test may be a test of home equipment as well. Defense officials fear that far too many people just put out their lights and go to the movies or walk about the streets "to see the blackout."

No speed limit was set for autos, which may drive with dimmed lights during all hours except during the short alarm period when only emergency vehicles may proceed.

During former blackouts a 15-mile limit was imposed. Since the lighting conditions all night on June 17 — no street lights and dimmed car lights—will be the same as during the alarm periods of previous tests, it is probable that the 15-mile limit may prevail all night.

District officials decided to turn on the street lights at the usual time, extinguishing them only upon receipt of the alert signal. In Virginia, on the other hand, the lights simply won't go on at all that night.

There may be hypothetical incidents in the county regions, but Bolles said there would be none here, so that the control center, which is being revised to meet recommendations for decentralization, will not be overtaxed.

As was the case in the last blackout, members of the protective services—wardens, auxiliary police and firemen—will receive their first notice of the beginning of the alarm period when the sirens arouse the general public. The emergency hospital units, however, will be notified on the receipt of the "Washington yellow," 20 minutes before the sirens are sounded.

Boats to Be Permitted at Sunset Series

Through a special ruling of the office of the Captain of the Port, canoeists will again be able to hear the National Symphony Orchestra's "Sunset Symphonies" concerts at the Potomac Water Gate this summer. The water gate season opens Sunday evening at 8:30 o'clock with Hans Kindler conducting a program dedicated to the United Nations.

Although canoes and other small boats ordinarily are not allowed to pass under Key Bridge, which they must in order to reach the Water gate site, it was decided yesterday by the captain of the port's office that regulations would be relaxed on concert nights. Plans were accordingly worked out for the guidance of those who wish to hear the concerts from water craft.

Water craft will be allowed below Key Bridge from two hours preceding each concert until two hours following the close of the concert. To take advantage of this regulation, owners of canoes or boats must have a Coast Guard identification card, which may be obtained in advance at 900 Maine Avenue. This, however, is not necessary for those renting canoes for the evening.

Guild Subscribers Rush Their Orders in Early

June 15 Is Deadline for Seat Renewals; Showmen Plan Parade for Visiting Heroes; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

"STRIKE WHILE THE IRON IS HOT." "A stitch in time saves nine." "Procrastination is the thief of time." "Do it now" —and any other old saw you can reset to contradict the one that says, "Haste makes waste."

ROSALIND RUSSELL

Which is merely by way of being a foreword to the announcement that the books are open to subscribers to the Theater Guild-American Theater Society 1942-43 season of six plays at the National Theater.

Present subscribers wishing to renew their same seat locations for next season may do so by filing their application at the Guild office in the National not later than next Monday, June 15.

In the meantime, so Sales Manager Bess Davis Schreiner breathlessly reports, vast numbers of new applications are pouring in from Washington's constantly expanding population, who evidently know a good thing when they see it. These will be given seat assignments as rapidly as may be after the middle of this month.

With last season only four days gone, the avalanche of orders for the one opening sometime in the fall has been so overwhelming that the completely buried Miss Schreiner confesses to running woefully behind an accurate count. However, she does know that she has counted and numbered the first 1000, with two or three thousand more stacked up in front of her.

As heretofore, the Guild office in the National is open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week, from 12 noon to 5 p. m. On alternate days, Miss Schreiner is in Baltimore struggling with the same problem at Ford's Theater.

The point is, if you want 'em, now's the time to get 'em.

For somebody busier than that one-armed paperhanger, hunt up Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, and watch him whirl! With Charlie Chaplin coming up on his screen Thursday in the loudly touted new vocalized and musicalized edition of "The Gold Rush," one of the fabulous comedy hits of the old, silent era, Master Meakin also has been appointed to the hefty job of chairman of the parade committee for Saturday's visit of the touring group of decorated war heroes to the Capital. From what I'm told, it won't be the longest parade in Washington's marching history, but one of the best. And someone ought to warn the visiting medal-men that enough extra-curricular activities are being appended to the official goings-on to call for a couple of extra vitamin pills!

Paramount Places Some More

Implications of a recent paragraph to the contrary notwithstanding, the Warner half of the Paramount output by no means blankets the city. Two of that company's likely items are coming along soon to the Loew screens. One is "Take a Letter, Darling," costarring Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray, with MacDonald Carey, Robert Benchley and Constance Moore aiding in the fun that has caused certain observers to hark 'way back to "It Happened One Night" for a comparably gay comedy. Then there is "Beyond the Blue Horizon," in which that super-bondsalesman, Dorothy Lamour, breaks out a new leading man in the person of Richard Denning. Jack Haley, Patricia Morison, Walter Abel, Helen Gilbert and Elizabeth Patterson are among the others in the cast. In Technicolor, this one.

"There's a Job to Be Done," the documentary with a foreword by Donald M. Nelson that we were talking about a while back, opens on the screen at Loew's Columbia tomorrow, along with the repeat F Street engagement of "Ship Ahoy," costarring Eleanor Powell and Red Skelton.

And Dick Coe, former right hand of this department, now is stationed at Scott Field, Ill., via Fort Myer, Camp Lee and Miami, Fla. Learning all about the technical and mechanical intricacies of radio and the like. Seems logical enough for a former radio editor, doesn't it? And don't they whip the boys around!

Sensitive-As-One-of-Its-Brides Note

Washington Boy Makes Good

BARBARA STANWYCK, GIG YOUNG, NANCY COLEMAN in a scene from the forthcoming production of "The Gay Sisters," high on the Warner Brothers schedule and to be seen here in due course. More important is the fact that Gig Young, who formally changed his name to that from his own Bryant Fleming, is the former Washingtonian who got his start toward fame and presumably fortune on local stages

To Be Screen 'Sister Eileen'

Hollywood has made a real life adaptation of its fictional success stories by signing Janet Blair, a screen newcomer less than a year ago, as title rolist in Columbia Pictures' version of the Broadway hit, "My Sister Eileen."

She won the coveted assignment after months of screen-test competition with more than 100 of Hollywood's younger 'veteran" actresses.

Sharing honors with Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne, the youngster will come before the cameras with a major responsibility in justifying the vehicle's purchase at a near record price.

The screen version of "My Sister Eileen' will be produced for Columbia by Max Gordon, who sponsored the successful Broadway stage production. Shooting begins at the end of this month under the direction of Alexander Hall, who is regarded as one of Hollywood's light-handed comedy aces. He recently completed "They ALL Kissed the Bride," for Columbia.

Signed for the Columbia roster about a year ago, Miss Blair clicked from the start in "Three Girls About Town," "Blondie Goes To College" and "Two Yanks In Trinidad."

Universal Pictures then confirmed her success by borrowing her services for their remake of "Broadway."

Before pictures she was a ballet dancer, turned vocalist, singing with the orchestra of the late Hal Kemp.

Some Paper Work to Be Done!

Hollywood, Calif., June 9.—Again the rumor that Barbara Hutton and Cary Grant will wed and again I don't believe it. Barbara hasn't gotten her American citizenship back, and if she marries Grant, it would complicate things all over again, because then she'd have to go from Danish to English. The reason her papers have been held up so long is that a new law has to be passed before her particular case can be taken care of—it's that complicated. The laugh is that former Husand Count Reventlow von Haugwitz is now an American citizen.

Hollywood doesn't even know it, but Commander John Ford, whose picture, "How Green Was My Valley," got the academy award last year, brought back to Washington pictures of the bombing of Tokyo. He stopped off in Hollywood for a two-day visit.

His wife hadn't seen him since February. He's hard as nails, fit as a fiddle, and has taken off 20 years. She has no idea where he is today.

For months past, Bob Burns has been doing his own private war job. Every night he sits at his powerful short wave radio set and picks up messages that American prisoners are allowed to broadcast from Japan. Bob records each message and forwards it to the soldier's family, with a letter of explanation.

It's a labor of love that nothing is allowed to interfere with, and if you could read some of the replies he's had from mothers and fathers of those boys, you'd know why!

Paul Whiteman and Bing Crosby do a benefit for our symphony orchestra June 18, "because," says Paul, "if it hadn't been for classical music, swing would never have been born."

Did you ever hear the story of "Rhapsody in Blue?" Whiteman got a chance to give a concert in Carnegie Hall, and, cornered by the press boys as to what he would play, answered, "George Gershwin is writing a new symphony called 'Rhapsody in Blue' specially for me."

You can imagine the nip-up George did next day when he read that. Called Whiteman, who said, "You're hooked, boy. We do it in three weeks!" And they did.

When Fred Astaire dismounted from his snow white steed to call on Rita Hayworth in "The Gay Senorita," the critter, instead of standing still, faced into the camera and started pawing heavily with one hoof. Seems he was a "counting horse" from vaudeville. Director Bill Seiter had to replace him, and said, "There's enough wackiness in this toupe without having a horse ad-libbing!"

Warners tried to get Olivia de Haviland or Margaret Sullan for "Mark Twain." Now they're hot-footing it after Nance Kelly.

If Anne Shirley plays the part of Fifi in "China Girl," she'll be working at her former husband's studio, and there is still a possibility John Payne will play opposite her. It would be a funny experience, playing a love scene with a guy you don't even speak to, although Marlene Dietrich and John Wayne did it in "The Spoilers." They were never married, however.

When Marlene went to see her daughter Maria act, she was squired by Joe von Sternberg and Jean Gabin. And the role that Maria played in "Mourning Becomes Electra" was that of a daughter who wreaked vengeance on her mother, when mother started playing around with too many men.

June Havoc's in a tough spot. She's made quite a point of calling for all her young men in her new motorcycle with side-car. But along comes 300-pound Laird Cregar and dates her up for dinner. Why don't you go all womanly, June—stay home and cook a side of beef for him?

Words to the Wise

KATHARINE CORNELL

SECRETARY ICKES: That famous $700,000 lawsuit brought by your former aide, Charles West, against the Empire Ordnance Co. and Frank Cohen, was settled last week. West received $12,000 . . . HERBERT HOOVER: When you got off the train at Pawling, N. Y., last week, wasn't it for a secret meeting with Tom Dewey? . . . NELSON ROCKEFELLER: Our Good Neighor program was tested Friday night when Ramon Ramos, the bandleader, almost came to blows with a South American consul general, in a night club. But the boys shook hands and agreed to forget it . . . ENGINEERS CLUB: Sam Rosoff's next important mission will be in Mexico. The builder will leave for Mexico City this week.

ARCHIBALD MacLEISH: Sinclair Lewis is going to do a series of radio programs, "Main Street Looks at the War." It may be presented for the duration of the war . . . PRIVATE BILL CAREY: Paramount became excited about the story of your visit to the White House and your dinner with the President. "We've got to buy it," one official insisted. "It would be a great Preston Sturges picture" . . . MYRNA LOY: Justice Ferdinand Pecora, who performed the ceremony when you married John Hertz, jr., last weekend, left his sick-bed to do it. Pecora had scalded his leg, and was ordered to rest it . . . LIEUT. JIMMY STEWART: Peter Lehman, the Governor's son, won his wings in the R. C. A. F. He leaves soon for overseas duty.

BROADWAY ASSOCIATION: The American Theater Wing's Stage Door Canteen was given a priority on a cooling system. Now comes the second problem—raising the $15,000 required to buy and install it . . . NORMA TALMADGE: Your brother-in-law, Walter Giblin—husband of Constance—is being commissioned as a major, and leaves soon for London . . . EQUITY: The 32 performances of "Candida," for Army and Navy Relief, broke all house records in New York and Washington. More than $100,000 was netted for the relief funds, by the Katharine Cornell troupe. Saturday night, when the show closed in Washington, the entire cast was feted at the White House. After the show among those who came backstage to see Miss Cornell and Private Burgess Meredith was General Marshall.

ADVERTISING CLUB: When Raymond Rubicam of Young & Rubicam starts work in Washington this week it will be for Paul V. McNutt . . . DARRYL ZANUCK: Tyrone Power, who soon goes into the Navy, will be assigned for training in Long Island . . . DRAMATISTS GUILD: Paul Vincent Carroll, who twice has won the Drama Critics Circle Prize, now is living in the slums of Glasgow. M.-G.-M. may buy the movie rights to his play, "The Strings, My Lord, Art False," which still is a hit in Dublin . . . N. V. A.: Ichisuki Ishikawa, the veteran Japanese vaudevillian, whose two sons are in the American Army and Navy, at last has been able to get employment. His name has been changed to Chu Chin Bee, and he will work this summer at Luna Park.

CHARLES CHAPLIN: When the newspapermen recently tried to reach Paulette Goddard, for a statement, they couldn't—because she was at Hyde Park . . . BRIG. GEN. ROBERT L. DENIG: Irving Netcher, husband of Roesicks Dolly, is joining the Marines . . . FIFTY-SECOND STREET ASSOCIATION: For many years Julie Oshins, of the comedy team of Oshins & Lessy, tried to get into a Broadway musical, without avail. His partner, Lessy, is in Hollywood and appeared in the movie, "Woman of the Year" . . . Oshins recently was drafted, and now, at last, he'll be in a Broadway musical—Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." Oshins, whose finance is Strip-teaser Sherry Britton, has one of the hit-numbers of the show—in which he does a Gypsy Rose Lee satire.

PAT O'BRIEN: Johnny Broderick, the tough Broadway detective after whom you patterned your role in the nostalgic George Raft movie, "Broadway," saw that picture Friday night. Broderick left the theater sighing: "They sure had some pretty tough detectives in those days" . . . ALFRED HITCHCOCK: As in your movie, "Saboteur," the Federal agents have discovered that the "mother groups" of pressure propagandists in Washington were financed by one of the richest party givers in the country . . . DAVID WARK GRIFFITH: Johnny Walker the silent screen star, has just finished producing a movie, with Tenor John Fogarty in the leading role . . . BING CROSBY: The Jap attack on Dutch Harbor forced the cancellation of Bob Hope's flight to Alaska.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

And in Technicolor!

Hollywood, June 9 (INS).—Memories of Otis Skinner came to me when they told me at M-G-M "Kismet" had been bought for William Powell. That was one of Skinner's greatest plays, and what a magnificent performance he gave. The play, by Edward Knoblock, served Skinner for a number of seasons. William Dieterle, who recently signed an M-G-M deal, owned the play and, of course, he'll direct Bill as soon as he finishes "The Man on America's Conscience." Everett Riskin has been set to produce.

WILLIAM POWELL

Bill, who plays a dramatic role, will have a Technicolor production and, I might add an interesting one. He has been associated with comedies and detective roles so long this will give him a chance at something different.

"Syncopation" wasn't the best picture in the world by a wide margin—but the musical score by Leith Stevens was exceptional. Stevens, a young composer-director, made his mark in radio and so far is not so well known to the movies. But Sol Lesser thinks so much of his new patriotic symphony, "America Fighting," he has bought it for the score of "stage door canteen." The symphony embodies all of America's fighting tunes, campfire ditties and martial airs from the Revolution, through the Civil and World Wars and up to the present conflict.

When Buddy de Sylva signed a Paramount deal a year ago all his pals said "It won't last six weeks. Buddy will never tie himself to a desk." He had produced "Panama Hattie," "Dubarry was a Lady" and other hit musicals for the stage and being a movie producer was tame compared with the excitement of Broadway. Well, a year has come and gone. Buddy is still Paramount's head man so far as production is concerned. Last week he signed a new long term contract with Y. Frank Freeman, given him because of the excellent pictures that have been made during the De Sylva regime.

What a newsy letter from Priscilla Dean which answers all the questions Frances Watson and other fans have been asking about her. Priscilla enclosed a "snap" of herself in a Red Cross motor corps uniform and she looked as pert and pretty as when she was one of the biggest stars on the screen. Happily married for 14 years to Leslie Arnold, a colonel in the Air Force, Priscilla writes: "We've been living East for five years—and how I miss California—but we won't go into that! Two years ago I joined the Red Cross motor corps and it keeps me busy. So you won't think I'm about 90 and falling to pieces I'm sending a recent snapshot." Believe me, she looks pretty enough to come back to the screen any time she wants to in another one of those fascinating girl crook roles.

Hollywood Now Finds Locales to Fit Films

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, June 9.—Latin America's new importance has caused a revolution in Hollywood movie-making technique—in the filming of stories laid wholly or in part somewhere between South of the Border and north of Cape Stiff.

Nowadays, when such a picture is contemplated, the movies go to the actual location sites, instead of shooting them by remote control. It used to be the other way.

Still standing on studio back lots are movie sets run up for that group of Latin American pictures filmed a year or two ago, when they were a trend. They represented bits of the "dolce far niente" lands. Unfortunately, in some cases, said the Good Neighbors, they didn't represent them correctly.

That charge, however, cannot be leveled any more.

John Steinbeck set the fashion when he went to Central Mexico to find a village untouched by progress which he could bring to the screen in all its picturesque beauty and heartbreak in "The Forgotten Village."

Despite war's dangers, Twentieth Century-Fox sent company and crew into the Caribbean for some of the scenes in "To the Shores of Tripoli." It was just before the subs struck there, but the air was filled with portents just the same. However, Twentieth wanted its Marine sequences on straight and got them.

No more than Steinbeck will Paramount content itself with stage sets in filming "For Whom the Bells Toll." It's true that Ernest Hemingway's great novel is laid in Old Spain during the Civil War, and Old Spain is no place for a Hollywood movie company to invade these days in search of natural settings. But if not Old Spain, argues Paramount, why not New?

Old Spain Found in New

So location men scouted Mexico to find the sort of olive-clad slopes and mountains which would duplicate the Old World settings of Hemingway's tale, found them near Pueblo. There large sequences will be filmed.

Even Walt Disney, wanting to make some South American films, wasn't content just to have his artists sit in the Hollywood studio and draw on their imaginations. He made that historic three-months journey to South America with a whole crew of artists, and now they are back home busily turning sketches made on the ground into finished productions for the screen.

Most thoroughgoing of the current or contemplated movie expeditions to South America, though, is the trek led by Orson Welles to Brazil to film "It's All True" for RKO Radio, against backgrounds never before introduced into American movies.

Welles, directing as well as producing, headed his own expedition by plane to Rio de Janeiro. Though personnel and cameras could be transported by air, heaver equipment, including dynamos and sound trucks, had to follow by boat. Because of sub raids on Atlantic shipping, that formed a problem.

But Welles spurred his New York agents by cable. Three times the equipment was loaded on freighters, three times removed as shippings were cancelled. Finally, a boat bearing the shipment set out to play tag with the subs, ran the gauntlet, arrived only a few days ago at Rio. It was a powder boat.

With Aid of President

Now, with a Rio warehouse transformed by Hollywood technicians and equipment into a studio, Welles is hard at it, filming the stry of the Jangadeiros. It's all true, like the title. It's the story of the fishermen of Fortaleza who put to sea on rafts made of six logs lashed together and propelled by sail. On such a craft four of them made an historic voyage 1500 miles down the coast to Rio only last November.

With the aid of President Vargas, Welles will restage the voyage.

Carlson Wins M-G-M Contract

Richard Carlson, young leading man who gained added recognition for his work in "The Little Foxes," has been signed to a long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He has just completed the romantic lead opposite Marsha Hunt in "Once upon a Thursday" for that studio.

Carlson came to Hollywood four years ago after graduating from the University of Minnesota, where he was a Phi Beta Kappa student, and playing on the New York stage. He made his film debut in "The Young in Heart."

He first appeared at M.-G.-M. in "Dancing Co-Ed" and "These Glamour Girls," both with Lana Turner.

Dirty-Faced Heroine

For the third consecutive time glamorous Veronica Lake has her face grime-smeared for her role in "This Gun for Hire." She was dirty-faced for several scenes in "I Wanted Wings" and "Sullivan's Travels."

Real Actor

For a scene in "Wildcat," Producers Bill Pine and Bill Thomas had character actor Ralph Sanford take a fall. Ralph made the scene too real—he broke two ribs in the tumble.

TRIBUTE to all Airline Customers

OUT of our nation's vast population there is a relatively small group of you who today deserve special recognition. You, the men and women who travel-by-air, have cause to feel proud. Because, without you, what tragic and unthinkable handicap might the United States be under in its present war effort?

Without your air-vision and your patronage, the Airlines could not have been developed into their high degree of effectiveness as a ready-made instrument for war in this, our nation's time of direst need.

You even have made possible much more than that.

Without your regular use of air transportation our aviation industry could not have had the air-frame, engine and instrument factories which are the foundation upon which, Aladdin-like. our war-plane expansion is being built.

You realized that we now live in an air-world. You thought air-thoughts. You made actual application of the advantages of airplanes to your travel and shipping needs. You prevented our nation's transportation facilities from being limited to land and water. For that, every man, woman and child in the United States is indebted to you. Our nation also will be indebted to you in the post-war competition for international trade, which will be waged in the ocean-of-the-air because it is your patronage which is indispensable to the further development of American air transport.

Now, the Airline industry, which you did not undervalue but did underwrite with your support, receives an Army directive to serve, first, the travelers and cargoes whose transportation is MOST ESSENTIAL to the war effort. Due to the imperative need for quick action the diversion of some of our planes for exclusively war missions is additional acknowledgment that there is no substitute for the time-saving advantages of air transportation. It is also a new opportunity for you air-travelers to help the Airlines to make the most effective use of our present equipment.

Perhaps your need for air transportation now is greater than ever due to your war work. If so, we invite you to write us and tell us your problems.

Please call your American Airlines office in case you do not know whether you are entitled to priority or how to obtain it. Many of you who are engaged in war work, even though you may never have traveled by air before, are now expected to exercise your priority privileges.

You other customers are asked to cooperate, when necessary, by a willingness to accept different flights from those on which you may have wished to travel.

When there is a dangerous fire in your neighborhood and the traffic officer asks you to detour in order to give the fire department the right of way, what is your attitude then? This is the world's worst war-fire. Your neighborhood is menaced. All that you hold dear, including your life, is in grave danger. The Air-Lines are "Hose-Lines" necessary to help put out the spreading flames.

We are sure there is not one of you who would not cheerfully exchange a seat, for example, with a war pilot who must rush to the coast in order to fly a war-plane to the battle-front.

The United States, to measure up to its post-war global commercial responsibilities, will be dependent upon increasing growth and expansion of our Airlines, because the world trade-routes will inevitably be air-routes.

We salute you, all of you who are customers of all Airlines.

A. N. KEMP

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Ickes Is Feuding With Relocation Board

Interior Secretary Harold Ickes is feuding with the War Relocation Board. He blames WRB, charged with evacuating enemy aliens from coast cities, with the responsibility for dust storms in the West by its mishandling of Government irrigation projects. War Secretary Henry L. Stimson defends WRB. It has been suggested in influential circles that WRB be transferred to Interior but Ickes says he isn't interested in it . . . The House yesterday recommended that General Accounting Office be given 625,000 in emergency relief funds, a 50 per cent reduction. GAO now has 713 employes on its emergency roll but the number will be reduced to 382 on July 1.

Vincent D. Nicholson has been appointed deputy administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration in charge of the Washington office. He will continue as REA's general counsel . . . Sam Bledsoe, No. 1 assistant to Agriculture Secretary Wickard, will have plenty to say on creation of the new food requirements board. He may be appointed vice chairman but Wickard fully intends actively to run the board as chairman. Commodity Credit Corporation and Agricultural Marketing Administration will carry out the policies made by the war food agency.

The House yesterday insisted that the Board of Legal Examiners be denied funds in the Independent Offices appropriation bill. The Senate is expected to insist that the board be continued which would mean that the bill would have to go back to conference again. Representative Hull of Wisconsin defended the board. He pointed out that the Government chooses its lawyers from Eastern colleges and if the board were permitted to operate, the lawyers from other parts of the country would have a better chance to get Government jobs. His argument makes sense . . . The 4585 Internal Revenue employes here already have exceeded Treasury's goal in the war bond drive. They pledged an average of 10 per cent of their salaries for bonds. Drives will get underway in all other agencies shortly.

Navy Office to Move

Navy plans to move its Hydrographic Office to a building under construction at Suitland, Md. The office makes aerial and navigation maps. Navy has just spent thousands of dollars to get new presses installed for the office in the Navy Building. Now they'll have to be dug up and installed at Suitland. Employes aren't too happy about the move. The space now used by the office will be used to enlarge the cafeteria. Navy has a new cafeteria in Tempo K but it still takes employes an average of 45 minutes to eat lunch . . . Civil Service exams: Junior investigator, $2600; printer $1.26 an hour, and bindery operator, 66 cents an hour.

Unions are reaching for the moon at hearings before the House Civil Service Committee on the bonus and overtime bills for Federal workers. Nathan E. Cowan, representing the C. I. O., yesterday filed a statement with the committee in which he asked that both bills be enacted. The same stand was taken by James E. Holloman, a spokesman for the Columbia Typographical Union. The costs of both bills would be prohibitive—something like eight hundred millions annually—and there's no chance whatsoever of getting both bills passed or even reported out by the committee. A third witness, E. A. Meeks of the National League of District Postmasters, urged enactment of the $300 bonus bill. He represents third and fourth class postmasters who wouldn't benefit under the Administration's overtime bill:

Holloman also brought out that Government printers would benefit by the overtime bill as they already are paid time and a half after 40 hours but few of them, he said, ever get the opportunity to work overtime. He insisted that the 40-hour basic work week be retained . . . In his plea for a bonus, he told the committee that a clerk paid $105 a month is paid at the rate of 44 cents an hour while the average rate of a common laborer here is 54 cents. The committee expects to complete the hearings today . . . Representative Barry of New York yesterday introduced a bill that would raise the annuities of all retired Federal workers to the standards set by the Retirement Act of January 28, 1942 . . . Maritime employes this afternoon will hear Lieut. Col. Thomas Blamey who is stationed here with the Australian Military Mission.

For All the World to See

It was a shiny, new station wagon driving along Pennsylvania Avenue, and on its rear window was a large sticker reading: "A member of this family is in the Navy." Which turned out to be perfectly true; the license plate read "U. S. Government" and a sign on the front door said: "U. S. Navy Dept."

The Horrors of War

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today coffee would be served on dining cars only at breakfast.

Tea will be served only at dinner.

Notices were posted in the trains, explaining that rationing limits, and increased train travel, compelled the restrictions.

PUC Orders 60c Cab Fare To War Bldg.

Rate From 1st Zone To Navy Department In Arlington Also Set at Same Price

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday assumed authority over the taxi service to the new Arlington War and Navy buildings, which P. U. C. Chairman Gregory Hankin said were considered "by some persons to be within District jurisdiction." A rate of 60 cents for trips from the first zone was ordered.

At the same time the P. U. C. threw out two petitions of the United Taxicab Drivers, Inc., for a rehearing on the new taxi zones and rates scheduled to go into effect at 12:01 a. m., Monday, June 15. Hankin said that the union owned and operated no cabs, therefore was not a public utility and so was not affected by the P. U. C. order.

The union will counter this move by court action, Andrew N. Richardson, president, said last night. The legal action will be used instead of a threatened plan to call a general strike.

Rates, Strike Postponed

Both the new rates and the strike were originally set for Monday, June 1 at 12:01 a. m., but both were postponed a fortnight because of the PUC decision to allow interested parties time to file protests or objections. At that time the union was the only group that gave indication of having complaints to file.

Hankin would not reveal whether he was one of the persons who held that the new war structure should be considered within the District rule. He justified his assumption of authority over the taxi rates by saying that the PUC could, if it chose, forbid any District cab to operate past the District line.

"If we can do that," he argued, "we could do something less than that and permit them to operate to and from the new War and Navy buildings subject to such reasonable regulations as we may adopt. In this case it is the fixing of a rate."

The only two analogous cases are the regulation of cab service to the National Airport and to Fort Belvoir. It has never been definitely settled whether the airport is in Virginia or in the District, but the PUC, as well as other District licensing bodies, has proceeded without interference on the premise that the airport is this side of the Potomac River high water boundary mark.

Army Fixes Rates

The rates for cab service between Washington and Fort Belvoir were determined by the concessionaire and Army officials without consultation with the District PUC, the Virginia Public Service Commission or the Interstate Commerce Commission. The principle recognized in this case was that it involved a nonstop transportation betwen two Federal reservations and therefore was strictly the concern of the Federal Government and the operator.

The 60-cent rate was determined on the basis of the present zone map. However, since it is to go into effect simultaneously with the new zone system, it will have to be adjusted so as to provide charges scaled to the 21 sub-zones into which the new map is divided.

The rate to the Arlington building was one of the primary issues in the threatening strike, the union having asserted that the PUC had authorized a 40-cent charge for this trip. At that time, however, the PUC stated that its authority ended at the District line, and had set no rates for any place beyond, except for the disputed airport territory.

Ingenuity, Helpful Neighbors Key to Warden Post Equipment

READY—Mrs. Herbert S. Jones (left) of 2414 Tracy Place Northwest and Elsie Howland Quinby of 2539 Massachusetts Avenue Avenue Northwest are shown in the completely equipped air-raid shelter set up at the Tracy Place address. Included are sandbags, shovel, buckets, radio, telephone, city map, desk, bench, hose and first-aid kit

How to equip an air raid warden's post may be a problem to some persons, but The Post learned that there is at least one solution to the current wartime problem.

One post equipped by energy and ingenuity is Sector Post 2 of Zone 10, in the Kalorama Road area.

Situated in a garage flanked by two taller buildings, the now empty garage is an example of what can be done with helpful neighbors, a little energy and less expenditure.

Viewed as a "Beacon"

Mrs. Herbert S. Jones, wife of Commander Jones, U. S. N., of 2412 Tracy Place, and Miss Elsie Howland Quinby of 2539 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, cowardens, are responsible for the organization, furnishing and arrangement of this post which, in spite of minor shortcomings, may be used as a beacon for those still fighting their way out of the miasma of "what to do."

Containing virtually everything but stirrup pumps, battery radio, typewriter and a built-in air raid shelter, Mrs. Jones and Miss Quinby have found their only expense to be the telephone—50 cents a month. Everything else, from tables and chairs to sector maps and first-aid supplies have been furnished by neighbors or devised from materials found in the kitchen or the attic.

Strong tea (tannic acid) for burns is ready in a sealed jar; bicarbonate of soda in solution, is also prepared along with medicinal alcohol and sterile water. Fifty feet of garden hose is substituting for stirrup pumps and there are long-handled shovels and some eight burlap bags of sand to fill galvanized pails for incendiary bombs. Old sheets and towels are clean and awaiting the emergency which will transform them into bandages.

Log book and sector map are detailed and complete with data concerning streets and families in them within the sector. Steel helmets, a diagram of an incendiary bomb and pamphlets issued by the British A. R. P. are placed handily on the table. Chairs and a bench complete the basis equipment.

Impossible Is Achieved

Acting on a seemingly impossible order from their district warden to equip a sector post without soliciting funds to do so, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Quinby went directly to their neighbors with the problem. They explained that fund-raising campaigns were frowned upon—that the alternative was contributions.

At this point, Mrs. Jones likes to stress that gathering the equipment took only two weeks: "It seemed that all we did was to keep the garage doors open."

Since then, there have been numerous queries about the project, particularly from adjacent neighborhoods.

D. C. Legion And Wardens Make Peace

A Misunderstanding, Differences Ironed Out, Mileham Says After Meeting

Friction betwen American Legion officials and Washington air raid wardens was smoothed out last night after a meeting with Chief Air Raid Warden William J. Mileham at deputy air raid headquarters, Maryland Avenue and Thirteenth Street Northeast.

"The entire thing was nothing more or less than a misunderstanding," Mileham said after the meeting. "All the petty differences were ironed out. It was merely the result of a misquotation of what occurred at the Columbia Heights area meeting last Friday. Everybody present kissed and made up and now everything is all right."

The controversy came to a head when the legionnaires became aroused over failure of wardens to accept an offer to use their clubhouse at 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest for a dance to raise funds for civilian defense in the Columbia Heights area. Department Adjutant Edwin W. Luther had complained about the wardens' attitude during a wardens' meeting last Friday in a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young, District coordinator of civilian defense. Particularly insulting, according to Luther's letter, was the charge of an unnamed warden that "American Legion members were drunkards and a bunch of drunks were coming in and out of the clubhouse building . . ."

Luther had threatened to withdraw every legionnaire in Washington from civilian defense activities.

Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of civilian defense here, conferred with Heywood N. Saunders, department commander of the American Legion, earlier in the day, after which the matter was referred to Mileham.

Police Probe Drownings of Boy, Soldier

The bodies of two victims of drowning, a 20-year-old soldier and a 12-year-old Negro boy were at the District Morgue last night while police and the coroner's office investigated circumstances surrounding both cases.

The soldier, identified last night by Mrs. Etta Lynch of 421 Seventh Street Southeast as her son, Richard Lane Lynch, either jumped or fell from the Mount Vernon, Wilson Line excursion boat, Monday night. Harbor Policemen W. M. Sanders and Lemuel Baillies recovered his body near the Wilson Line dock yesterday.

Detective Sergt. Richard Felber reported he learned that Lynch was seen to leap over the ship's side as the vessel prepared to dock.

A deckhand, John W. Locobaro, witnessed the jump and said he saw the soldier's head come to the surface of the water once and then disappear.

When the boat docked two young women told police the man struck up an acquaintance with them on board and said he was "down in the dumps because his girl had just married another man."

He told the girls, they said, he was a draftee attached to Fort Belvoir.

Wilber Fields, Negro, 12, of 1018 Twenty-ninth Street Northwest, was found floating in the Georgetown Channel at the foot of Thirtieth Street Northwest, at 10:30 a. m.

Police said the boy had probably fallen into the river from a dock of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co., at Thirtieth and K Streets Northwest, where his father, Charles T. Fields, is employed.

His body, it was said, had not been in the water more than three hours, though it was not determined exactly when or where he was drowned. It is believed, however, that he was swimming off a dock near the point where his body was discovered.

3-Year-Old Boy Back at Home After Solo Trip

Three-year-old Sonny Shields was back at his home at 624 K Street Northwest yesterday without a word to say as to the circumstances of his mysterious solo trip to Philadelphia Monday.

Sonny, a Negro, was playing in the front yard of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shield, when his mother left him for five minutes and returned to find him gone.

At first she thought that a neighbor might have taken the little boy to the store, but as time passed she began searching the neighborhood without avail.

She notified the police, who learned nothing of his whereabouts until a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor took the lad off the train at the North Philadelphia Station Monday night and turned him over to the Children's Welfare Board.

Judge Hartigan Assigned to D. C. Court

The Justices of District Court announced yesterday the assignment of United States District Judge John Patrick Hartigan of Rhode Island to take over a recently established criminal court here.

Judge Hartigan takes the place of Judge John Caskie Colett, who was forced to return to his work in Missouri only a few days after his assignment here last Wednesday. Judge Hartigan will preside in Criminal Court No. 4 from June 15 to 30.

Big Audience Hears Guild Concert

By Ray C. B. Brown

Chamber Music Guild presents its String Quartet (Emanuel Zetlin, Alexander Levin, Benjamin Sosner and Marcel Ancher) on Tuesday night in Dumbarton Oaks garden. Assisting artists: Abrasha Robofski, baritone; David Hall, horn; Jerry Knop, horn; Lazar Dimitri, contrabass. Program: String Quartet in D minor, Op. 76, No. 2 (Haydn), "Dover Beach" for solo voice and string quartet (Samuel Barber,) two Spanish songs arranged by Gregorio de Zuola for voice and string quartet, Divertimento No. 17 in D major, K. V 334, for string quartet, contrabass and two horns (Mozart).

Another large audience assembled last evening on the garden terrace of Dumbarton Oaks for the second summer concert of the Chamber Music Guild, which is meeting with deserved success in its venture into the open air. The enjoyable program combined very neatly compositions old and new, familiar and novel. For example, Haydn's D minor quartet from Opus 76 was a neighbor of Samuel Barber's fine setting of Matthew Arnold's "Dover Beach," a striking juxtaposition of the eighteenth and twentieth centuries for contrasts of styles and idioms.

Brown

Someone long ago applied to the Haydn quartet the nickname of "Quinten" because of the harmonic fifths in the opening movement, but that means little to our ears accustomed to much stranger things, such as augmented ninths and atonal "rows." It is one of Franz Joseph's most entertaining foursomes, filled with his geniality and courtliness. The minuet is a remarkable blending of technical skill and humor, for the form is that of a canon and the stamping rhythm evokes the picture of a pair of rustics trying to imitate the graces of an aristocratic dance.

Abrasha Robofski, who has been soloist in the same work before, gave an effective reading of Samuel Barber's sensitive tonal commentary on a Victorian poem. Matthew Arnold lived when the "sea of faith" was beginning its great ebb, and in these verses he expressed his premonition of the plight of mankind "on a darkling plain where ignorant armies clash by night." The music has a singular pertinence to the subject in its grave harmonies and suggestive dissonances.

Mr. Robofski also voiced eloquently two old Spanish songs harmonized by Gregorio de Zuola, "Pardos ojos de mis ojos" and "Don Pedro a quien los crueles." They had an antique and piquant flavor compounded of Hispanic chivalry and folk spirit.

Mozart's Divertimento in D major seldom emerges on chamber music programs, although the minuet is thoroughly familiar in various arrangements. The work has a charming tonal quality thanks to the blending of two horns with the strings. It was composed in 1779 just after Mozart had returned from Paris at the age of 23 and settled down for a time at Salzburg in the uncongenial position of organist and concertmaster for Archbishop Hieronymus. Part of his duties was the writing of divertimenti such as this one as an accompaniment for state dinners.

P. B. Cromelin Heads District Bar Society

Paul B. Cromelin, of 3806 Gramercy Street Northwest, was elected president of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia last night. He succeeded E. Barrett Prettyman, who presided at the annual meeting in the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Other officers elected are: John J. Wilson, of Woodley Park Towers, first vice president; J Edward Burroughs, of 1415 Thirty-first Street Northwest, second vice president; Wilbur L. Gray, of 2110 Bancroft Place Northwest, secretary, and Milton W. King, of 4000 Cathedral Avenue Northwest, treasurer.

The following directors were elected: Hugh H. Obear of 1310 Eighteenth Street Northwest, Henry P. Thomas of Quaker Lane, Alexandria, Va., and Joseph A. Rafferty, of 2929 Greenvale Road, Chevy Chase, Md.

A recently proposed amendment, designed to prevent a repetition of dissension within the association which followed recommendations for a chief justice for the combined police and municipal court, was not presented, as had been previously forecast. It was stated the amendment would not be brought before the association until October at the earliest.

Negro Masons To Map Drive For War Bonds

The Acacia Grand Lodge, Negro Masonic group, will map a war bond drive for its 20 Washington units at the ninety-fourth semiannual communication meeting, at Scottish Rite Hall, 1633 Eleventh Street Northwest, at 7 o'clock tonight.

Presiding will be the grand master, Royal W. Bailey, whose address will open the meeting. He will be assisted by Allan A. C. Griffith, deputy grand master.

The grand master recently appointed a special committee, headed by Griffith, to tour the 20 lodge groups here to stimulate participation in the Treasury's war bond campaign. Each local treasury was advised to invest a large part of its funds in war bonds.

Members of the committee were Charles D. Freeman, Oscar L. Beane, Simpson W. Wallace, Eldridge T. Hawkins, Clarence Reed, Austin Whitlow Bell and Cyrus N. Parker, all high officers of the lodge.

Lodge officials said several hundred representatives would attend the communication meeting.

Sect Member Convicted As Draft Violator

A District Court jury yesterday convicted a John H. Harris, 22, a Negro, for violation of the Selective Service Act.

Harris, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, had been classified as a conscientious objector, but had failed to report for induction. He claimed he should have received a minister's classification, because, he testified, part of his time was spent in religious work.

Evidence was produced, however, showing that his name had not appeared on lists of clergymen submitted to draft boards. The verdict was returned after deliberation of 15 minutes.

Policeman Hurt Trying to Salvage Burning Prunes

A compound ankle fracture was Policeman Beryle Darr's reward last night for attempting to rescue a pan of burning prunes from a locked-up apartment at 3011 Ontario Road Northwest.

Darr, a member of the accident investigation unit who lives in the building, put a ladder up to the window when he smelled the burning fruit which had been left on the stove by Mrs. Lena Grafton.

As he reached the Grafton apartment, the ladder slipped and he fell some 18 feet to a concrete areaway. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital.

Columbia Heights Citizens Elect

The Columbia Heights Citizens Association elected new officers at its meeting last night at the Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton Streets Northwest. It was the association's last meeting until fall.

George H. Brown of 1357 Euclid Street Northwest was reelected president; Dr. A. Y. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Ernest H. Howard, second vice president; John M. Boteler, treasurer, and Richard J. Brown, secretary. Delegates elected were Mrs. Ernest H. Howard and Richard J. Brown.

Previously she taught school in Cheraw after graduation from Winthrop College. Surviving are two brothers, William Godfrey, of Cheraw, and S. G. Godfrey, of Conway, S. C., and two sisters, Miss Claude Godfrey and Miss Marion Boyd, of Georgetown, S. C.

Factual, Not 'Escape' Films Held Demand of British

Sidney Bernstein, film adviser to the British Ministry of Information, said yesterday at a press showing of four new one-reel documentary films made in his country, that British workers demand factual material in their war movies and have no patience with the escape variety.

Films are shown regularly in the war production factories, he said, and concerts are given. "But escape films are not acceptable for these hours," he declared.

"Tale of Two Cities," "Mobile Engineers," "The Builders" and "Listen to Britain" were titles of the four new films shown at the Earle Theater. The first compared war life in London and Moscow, showed how air defenses of the cities are similar and the spirit of the people the same. "We began exchanging films with Russia 24 hours after they entered the war," Bernstein said.

"Mobile Engineers" depicts graphically the manner in which technical specialists travel from one production plant to another helping the workers—many of them women—get schedules adjusted and output speeded up. "The Builders" was designed to show workers who stay behind on construction projects how important they are to the entire war effort.

"Listen to Britain" is new in technique, a blending of sounds and sights that cut across Britain's war life. Artistically complete, it already has been rated a success in England. Bernstein will be in this country for several days to collect films to be shown in Britain to bring "about a closer harmony of thought and cooperation between the film makers of both countries."

Special Buses To Be Run for Sunset Concerts

Public transportation facilities to this summer's Water Gate concerts by the National Symphony Orchestra, which open this Sunday evening, will not be affected by tire rationing, it was announced yesterday by J. P. Hayes, manager of the orchestra.

As a result, patrons of the "Sunset Symphonies" will again have the advantage of special bus service to and from the Water Gate on concert nights.

Hayes stated that he had been informed by the Capital Transit Co. that this type of bus service is permissible under the tire-rationing regulations

Your Daily Health Quiz

How Many Tons of Blood Does the Heart Pump Daily?

Although the average person has only 6 to 7 pints of blood normally, it circulates through the body so fast that the heart probably pumps 9 to 10 tons of blood daily.

Many people never realize that the blood stream must travel at this terrific speed in order to keep you alive. As you know, blood is made up of millions of tiny red blood cells. Each of these cells picks up a load of life-giving oxygen from the lungs—then rushes off to all parts of the body and releases its cargo to hungry living tissues. When the oxygen is burned up, the cells then carry off waste substance, called carbon dioxide, back through the lungs where it is eliminated.

When blood is rich and pure, it contains chemical substances and cells capable of repairing damaged body tissues and replenishing our strength and energy. That is why some folks get over sickness and disease twice as fast as others . . . rarely feel tired . . . never complain . . . even cuts and bruises vanish like magic.

Now here's a tip. If your blood is thin, pale and watery . . . unable to supply rugged strength and vibrant energy . . . do something about it today. Get a bottle of Boncquet (pronounced Bon-Kay) Tablets. Devised by an eminent biologist, Boncquet Tablets contain the active principle of raw liver (the red blood cell maturing factor), organic vegetable iron and other minerals, vitamin B complex, fortified with pure crystalline vitamins B and G, and assimilable calcium and phosphorus. Your blood needs these essential raw materials that are generally deficient in the modern everyday diet.

Try Boncquet Tablets for 9 days. If you want to add new fighting blood. If you don't feel better, look better, have more strength and youthful energy, your money will be immediately refunded.

Indians Whip Nats in Tenth, 7-6, in Night Game

Ken Keltner's Fly Scores Dean to Win

Error and Wild Pitch Help Tribe in Final Frame After Pitcher Singles; Zuber Loser

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats last night committed one error too many—their fifth—and the Cleveland Indians converted it into the winning run of a ten-inning 7-to-6 gall game under the Griffith Stadium lights.

The winning run was cheaply compounded of one part infield hit, one part fumble, one part wild pitch and one part long fly. Eight thousand fans, who to that point had revelled in a wild-scoring customers' game, watched the sour finish.

Bill Zuber, who took up the pitching for Washington in the seventh inning after Sid Hudson was unable to survive three consecutive errors by the Nats, was the final victim—of the Indians, his own infield and his own wild pitch.

Dean Gets Cheap Hit

Lovell Dean, fourth Cleveland pitcher of the night, put the winning run in motion when he led off the tenth with a luck-anointed single—a slow grounder that he beat out. Whne Weatherly hit a double play ball to Jimmy Pofahl, second Baseman Ellis Clary dropped Pofahl's throw and both runners were safe. Clary made a fancy play on Hockett's grounder to hold the runners on their bases, but Zuber unleashed a wild pitch that moved men to third and second with one out, and Keltner's long fly to Case fetched the winning run home.

The Nats' tenth-inning reply to that run was Pofahl's single with two out in the tenth. Clary's pop-up abandoned him on base.

Hudson survived an error by Rookie Second Baseman Ellis Clary to hold the Indians scoreless in the first inning, but he yielded a run in the second when Fleming beat out a hit to Pohfal and Mack tripled to right center with one out. A fancy play on Hegan's smash by Repass, who threw the batter out while holding Mack on third, saved Hudson from further damage in the inning.

Embree Is Routed

Embree failed to last out the second inning. The Nats unloaded four hits against him to barge into a 4-to-1 lead. Campbell singled to right and Early drew a walk with none out. Repass fanned, but Pofhal produced the first run with a solid single to center. Clary doubled to left, scoring Early, and Case smashed a two-base hit past Keltner for the third and fourth runs of the inning.

Eisenstat relieved Embree and halted the scoring at that point.

Hudson turned back the Indians without a run in the third, fourth and fifth innings, but he was in trouble in every session. In the third, after Hockett singled, Heath banged a long hit into left field. Hockett apparently scored and Heath had a triple, but the umpires ruled that the ball, which had rolled into the field boxes, was a ground rules two-bagger, and waved Hockett back to third and Heath to second. Fleming grounded to Vernon to end the inning.

Double Play Halts Tribe

In the fourth, a double play started by Pofahl kept the Indians from scoring with two on and none out, and in the fifth, with two on base, Case saved Hudson from damage with a spectacular running catch of Fleming's long clout to left.

The Nats improved their lead to 5-1 in the fifth despite a double play by the Indians. Singles by Case, Spence and Campbell got the Nats a run with the aid of an error by Weatherly.

The Indians chipped two runs off Hudson's 5-1 lead on a walk and a pair of solid swats by Mack and Pinchhitter Mills in the sixth inning, and in the seventh they moved in front, 6-5.

The Nats' defense collapsed in that seventh. On consecutive plays, Vernon fumbled Hockett's grounder, Pofahl fumbled Keltner's double-play grounder and Case threw wide to the plate on a single by Heath. Zuber moved into the game at that point, and Fleming and Boudreau singled to score the second and third runs of the inning.

The Nats countered with the tying run in their own half of the inning. Case led off with a single and Vernon moved him home with a two-bagger over Hockett's head. The Nats had the winning run on base in the ninth with two out but Campbell popped out.

MacMitchell On Spot in NCAA Track

By the Associated Press

Lincoln, Nebr., June 9.—The mile run, always a thriller in a national track meet, looms as a top attraction at the National Collegiate Athletic Association track championship finals here Saturday, with New York University's sensational Les MacMitchell, defending champion, definitely a marked man.

Last year at Stanford MacMitchell beat Leroy Weed of Southern California by 2 feet. Now Weed, according to advance word from Dean Cromwell, the Trojan coach, is concentrating on evening the score. Weed is also entered in the 2-mile but Cromwell indicated he would not be called upon to make that race.

Home-town rivalry enters the picture through Bobby Ginn, Nebraska's mite of a distance runner, who did 4:10.1 last year in a dual meet against California.

Ginn has been brought along slowly this year by Ed Weir, his mentor, and for the first time is going to be sent out to run the mile and the mile only. In all previous meets he has been entered in three events and has run in at least two of them.

The little fellow faded when illness sapped his strength after his sensational California effort, and he ran sixth in the N. C. A. A. meet.

In contrast to the "pointing" of Weed and Ginn, MacMitchell has been entered in the 880 and two-mile in addition to his specialty. MacMitchell is one of five distance runners entered in all three races, others being his teammate, William Hulse; Earl Mitchell of Indiana, Robert Nichols of Rhode Island State and Randolph Woelk, Kansas Sta Teachers.

The mile also finds on hand Edward Culp of Xavier, third last year, and Paul Kendall of Indiana, another point winner a year ago.

The track meet is a twilight affair, starting at 6:30 p. m. (C. W. T.) Friday and Saturday evening.

A's Get But Two Hits, Blank White Sox, 2-0

Athletics Score First Run on Double and A Twin Killing; Tally Again on Wild Throw

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 9.—The Athletics made only two hits off Southpaw Edgar Smith tonight, but capitalized on both of them to score two runs and beat the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 0, behind the seven-hit twirling of Bob Harris.

The A's first hit came in the second inning when Bob Johnson led off with a double. Dick Sibert walked and the bases were loaded when Smith picked up Buddy Blair's bunt and threw too late to force Johnson at third. Johnson then scored as Pete Suder hit into a double play.

In the fifth Suder walked with one away, reached second on an infield out and took third when Harris scratched a single to deep short. When Kule Appling threw wide to first Suder scored with the last tally of the game.

Smith worked only seven innings, being lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Harris had a five-hitter going into the ninth. He gave up two singles in this inning with two out, but then retired Pinch Hitter Dickey to end the game.

The victory elevated the A's from last to seventh place and shoved the White Sox into the cellar.

New Dimout Orders Kill N. J. Night Ball

By the United Press

Trenton, N. J., June 9.—The Army, drastically cutting illumination in New Jersey's dimout area, has pulled a squeeze play and forced night baseball out for the duration.

The new orders, announced today by Leonard Dreyfuss, State director of civilian defense, go into effect tomorrow and apparently also doom amusement parks and similar outdoor entertainment places. Dreyfuss notified heads of local defense councils in the affected area that the regulations "must be carried out to the letter."

Compiled by Maj. Gen. Thomas A. Terry, commander of the Second Corps Area, to clarify previous orders which were put into effect several weeks ago to prevent land glare silhouetting coastal shipping for enemy submarines, the new regulations say:

"All exterior lights used for the illumination of open areas such as parking lots, playgrounds, places of amusement or entertainment, sidewalk cafes, marquees, open-air gardens or terraces, etc., must be shaded as to prevent their lights shining at an angle above the horizontal and the combined lighting of such areas may not exceed the average of one-quarter watt per square foot, and no individual light used for such purposes shall be in excess of 100 watts at the rated voltage."

Ray Kennedy, business manager of the Newark Bears of the International Baseball League, said that the new regulations would make night baseball impossible and that hereafter all single games would start at 3 p. m., and double-headers at 1:45 p. m.

"We have always been 100 per cent cooperative with defense officials and we shall abide by their latest ruling," Kennedy said. "The establishment of a definite schedule may aid our attendance."

Charles Stoneham, secretary of the Jersey City Giants, also of the International League, who have a night game scheduled for Friday in Roosevelt Statdium, their home grounds, declined comment pending receipt of the official orders.

The batteries of electric lights which illuminate ball parks as brilliantly as daylight require wattage many times in excess of that permitted by the Army's regulations.

Golfer Will Report To Mitchel Field; Duties Not Revealed; 'Very Happy' To Go

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, June 9.—Robert Tyre Jones, jr., the one-time ace of the golfing world, today became a captain in the Army Air Forces and was ordered to active duty June 20.

The 40-year-old retired champion, who won 13 major golf titles in the greatest exhibition of skill the game has known, will be stationed at Mitchel Field, N. Y. He said he did not know what his duties would be.

Jones said that the date of his call to duty, however, would not interfere with previously made plans to participate in the National Hale America golf tournament at Chicago June 18-21. The famous golfer easily led the field here—and the Nation—recently in the regional qualifying with a sub-par 205 for the 54 holes.

Very Happy

"I'm very happy over this opportunity to serve," Jones said of his commission. He added that more than a month ago he began looking around to find something to do to aid in the war effort and finally decided to apply for the Air Corps. He seemed extremely pleased that his application had been granted.

The grand-slam champion, who retired in 1930 at the age of 28, said he would be attached to the First Fighter Command. Jones has arranged to go to nearby Fort McPherson this week to be fitted for uniform. He held a reserve captain's commission until last year. He was an R. O. T. C. student at Georgia Tech during World War I.

Jones, who since his retirement has devoted most of his time to his law practice here and his sporting goods connections, is married and the father of three children.

Harry Bobo Stops Smith in Second Of Toledo Fight

Toledo, Ohio, June 9 (AP).—Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh's heavyweight contender, scored a quick knockout over Bob Smith of Baltimore tonight in what was to have been a 10-round feature boingx bout. Bobo weighed 205, Smith, 190.

Bobo floored the game but outclassed Smith four times in the first round and twice more in the second before Smith was counted out after 1:53, while sprawled helplessly in Bob's own corner.

In the semifinal Shelton Bell, Youngstown, Ohio, light heavyweight, belted Charlie Roth of Detroit to the canvas four times in the first two rounds before stopping him in 2:12 of the second.

Larkin, Bartolo Gain Decisions

Brooklyn, June 9 (AP).—Tippy Larkin, Newark lightweight, and Sal Bartolo, Brooklyn featherweight, won eight-round decisions tonight in the double windup which marked the opening of MacArthur Stadium.

Larkin, 136½, outpointed Carmine Fatta, 133½, Brooklyn, and Bartolo, 129¼, won the nod from Frankie Rubino, 128½, Brooklyn.

There were no knockdowns in the Larkin-Fatta feud, although the bout was replete with two-fisted slugging from start to finish. Larkin gained the decision because of better marksmanship.

Marquette Backfield Coach Joins Service

Milwaukee, June 9 (AP).—Robert H. (Doc.) Erskine, football backfield coach at Marquette University, today was ordered to report Saturday at Lowry Field, Colo., as a first lieutenant in the technical command of the Army Air Corps.

Erskine, a native of Waukegan, Ill., was head football coach at Loyola University, New Orleans, before becoming assistant to Maj. Lawrence Jones at Oklahoma in 1935. He came to Marquette when Tom Stidham took over the coaching reins in 1941.

Jimmy Dykes 'Raked Over Coals' and Fined $250 by League Head for Behavior on Field

President Harridge 'Throws the Book' at Fiery Chisox Pilot

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 9.—Jimmy Dykes, fiery manager of the Chicago White Sox, must dig into his bank account for $250 to pay a limit-fine imposed upon him today by President Will Harridge of the American League for his "conduct and deliberate stalling tactics" in the second game of a double header at Boston, last Sunday.

The fine was the heaviest ever levied against Dykes for his numerous rows with umpires. He was allowed five days in which to pay it.

President Harridge, at the same time, denied Dykes' protest of Boston's victory in the second game, wiring him: "Your protest is not based on facts and is so far removed from sportsmanship that it is denied without further comment."

President Harridge charged that

JIMMY DYKES

'Stalling Tactics' And Unsportsmanlike Conduct Bring Wrath

Dykes was guilty of deliberately stalling in attempting to prevent the completion of the game, then in the eighth inning, to beat the Sunday law deadline of 6:30 p.m. He blasted Dykes for "forgetting his duty to baseball and the Boston fans."

Dykes had based his protest on a pitching mix-up in the eighth inning with the score tied at 2 and 2. He claimed he had asked for Pete Appleton, a right-hander, to come into the game, but that the umpires, with the crowd in an uproar over the stalling and arguments, had forced him to use Jake Wade, a left-hander.

Bill Dietrich, a White Sox right-hander who was chased from the field by Chief Umpire Ed Rommel in the same game, was fined $25 for "conduct and language used on an umpire."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

At the Mayflower Hotel today a half thousand men and women who know Clark Griffith as other than president of the Washington Baseball Club will attend a testimonial luncheon in his honor. They will be folks whose respect for Mr. Griffith is not measured by the fortunes of his baseball team.

POVICH

Their admiration for Mr. Griffith stems from the nobler virtues of the man, whom they know as a humanitarian and a cheerful push-over for a sob story despite a reputation for driving a hard baseball bargain. They know him as the sort of a man who, for example:

Buzzed for his secretary when he read on the front pages, a few years ago, that a young widow and her two small children had been evicted from their tenement home for non-payment of rent. Out of the custody of a charity agency he took the little family and before nightfall the young mother and her two little daughters were ensconced in the comforts of the Griffiths' Sixteenth Street home.

For several weeks the little family were guests in the Griffith household and the patter of children's feet was sweet music to the ears of the Nats' owner. But the young mother was no charity seeker. She'd like to have a job, she said. Mr. Griffith understood, telephoned Capitol Hill, talked to one of his many friends among the Senators. Sure, there would be a job for the woman as fast as Senatorial influence could make itself felt. A Government job came through in 24 hours.

Mr. Griffith's next act was to call in a real estate agent. Did he know of a modest little house, with a garden, preferably, that would be a nice home for a young mother and two children? The house was found, and the rental bills sent to Mr. Griffith, until the young mother's pay checks enabled her to pay her own way.

There was, too, the Johnny Stone case. When tuberculosis struck down the Nats' star outfielder after scarcely more than a month of the season, Mr. Griffith did not permit financial troubles to be among the player's worries. The club had no obligation to keep Stone on the payroll, except the moral obligation that bestirred itself in Griffith. Stone received his full $10,000 salary that year, not semimonthly, but in an immediate lump sum that would enable him to be treated at the finest sanatariums.

But Mr. Griffith was not content with that kindness to Stone. He arranged that the Washington club and the Detroit Tigers, with whom Stone had previously played, would designate one of their games as a benefit game for Stone. All proceeds were to go to the stricken player, whom Griffith learned owed a mortgage on his Tennessee farm. And when the game did not net a sum to pay off the mortgage in full, the Washington and Detroit clubs presented Stone with the difference, in equal shares.

There has been little ostentation about Mr. Griffith's charities. It has never been published, in fact, that when Griffith staged the All-Star game here in 1936, with the proceeds, above expenses, going to the fund for aged and indigent ball players, Griffith issued orders that the expenses for his game must be a new low, in order that a greater sum could be realized for charity. The expenses for that game still stand as a record minimum for the eight All-Star games thus far played.

But here's one of the Griffith stories we like best. It concerns the gatemen at Griffith Stadium. You've seen them, white-haired old fellows for the most part, some of them old-time ball-playing pals of Griffith. The old ball player always gets a job from the Nats' owner. The pay isn't much, but they like their work, and Griffith likes to call them in for a game of pinochle on rainy days. His is an organization in which the president is one with the lowliest employe.

Well, one day a football promoter went into Griffith's office, screaming. The old gatemen weren't moving fans into the park fast enough. They moved too slowly "and we've got to have younger men on the gates," demanded the football boss. Griffith simply shook his head. "Those old fellows are my friends," he said, "they'll have to stay on their jobs. They need the money."

"But I'll pay for the extra help," said the football man, "and it won't cost your old friends anything. After all, I've got some rights. I'm renting this park."

Griffith was adamant. "Those old friends of mine will have to stay on their jobs," he said. "Nobody is going to tell them they are through. Don't you see, it would break their hearts."

Pity Poor Parking Attendant As Race Track Business Booms

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 9.—About the only guy around the race tracks these days with a legitimate squawk over what the war has done to his business is the poor parking lot attendant.

The rest of them, particularly the track operators, are too busy looking over some of the fanciest financial figures the turf has ever seen—or ever expected to see, for that matter.

For, while those gallons of gasoline and those tires you can't get have cut heavily into the number of cars going to tracks like Belmont, Aqueduct, Suffolk and Delaware—sometimes close to 50 per cent—attendance hasn't fallen off nearly so much, if at all. The parking concessionaire's tips "Ain't what they used to be," but everything else is doing very nicely, thank you.

Betting at New High

What's more, with plenty of the "fresh" around these days, much of it from new jobs in defense plants and such, betting has skyrocketed until it looks like this may be racing's biggest year. At Belmont, 436,966 fans bet a total of $27,773,297 for the just-concluded 24-day meeting, compared with the 405,126 who wagered $22,311,349 a year ago. On the way to these gaudy goings-on, a new world record for one day's betting ($2,176,071) was set May 30. So was the world high for the average daily handle over a meeting—$1,157,221. The previous one-day tops for Delaware and Suffolk plants also have been smashed this spring.

Aqueduct opened its current meeting on a "blue Monday" this week and drew 13,797 fans, compared with the 13,150 for opening day last year. They fed $869,469 to the hungry iron men, while the 1941 first-day turnout contributed only $695,872.

But the worst is yet to come in the New York area. For after the Aqueduct meeting comes Empire City and Saratoga, and their transportation problems are much tougher. Empire is up in Westchester County, and in the past has relied to a considerable extent on special buses. Since these have been put on the "no-no" list there's no telling what's going to happen there. Saratoga, more than 100 miles from New York, is keeping its fingers crossed on the matter of race trains and automobile travel when its traditional August session arrives.

But up to now, no one has been more surprised about developments around here than the track bosses themselves. When gas and tire rationing first was hinted, a lot of them started moaning low, because most racing plants are far enough away from the center of things to require automobiles or trains to get to them.

The parking lot attendant at Belmont summed it up neatly on getaway day last Saturday when he looked over the limousines and jalopies and observed, "There ain't as many coming, but them that came looked like buses when they got here." What he meant was that no group of drivers has taken the Government's plea to "double-up" on motoring as seriously as the society of two-buck bettors.

Yankees Whip Tigers, 4-1, as Young Borowy Hurls 4-Hitter

Joe Gordon Continues Bat Streak

Second Sacker Hits In 26th Straight Game; Bengals Drop From Runner-up Spot

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—One of the New York Yankees' streaks was broken but two stood up today as the world champions came from behind to whip the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1.

Hank Borowy, rookie right-hander not long out of Fordham University, limited the Tigers to four hits, only one of which was for extra bases, in chalking up his fourth victory of the season without a defeat. Joe Gordon connected with a single off Dizzy Trout in the second inning to run his hitting string to 26 successive games but Buddy Hassett's streak expired after reaching 20 games when he failed to connect safely in four trips to the plate.

The first hit given up by Borowy was Rudy York's triple in the second and it led to the Tigers' only run when the slugging first baseman came home as Don Ross hit into a double play.

The Yanks tied it up in the fourth with Charlie Keller driving a triple past Roger Cramer and then scoring on Gordon's fly. Tommy Henrich's seventh homer of the season broke the deadlock in the sixth, when the Yanks got another run on a pass to Gordon, a steal and Bill Dickey's single. Henrich also drove in the champs' last run with a single in the seventh.

The defeat coupled with Boston's victory over St. Louis dropped the Tigers out of the runner-up spot, which was taken over by the Red Sox.

Delaware Boosts Value Of Race Purses

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., June 9.—Beginning tomorrow and for the remainder of the 30-day session here the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association hopes to increase the value of all purses, except stakes, over those announced in the book of the meeting, the added distribution to be paid in war bonds.

The amount of such added distribution will be determined from day to day by the management and the increase will be announced on a special bulletin board in the racing secretary's office prior to the closing of entries for the next day's program.

The increase will include the first, second, third and fourth monies. The percentage figures is expected to vary from time to time and may be discontinued at any time.

Posted on the special bulletin board today was the following:

"For races on Wednesday, June 10, all purses, excluding stakes, will be increased over the book 20 per cent."

When the steeplechase season opens here on June 16, owners of infield runners will note a big increase in overnight jumping purses over last year. The first cross-country race in the condition book is for platers of the $1750 down to $1500 class and the purse is $2000. There will not be a steeplechase purse under $1800.

It was reported from Belmont Park that Greentree Stable's Devil Diver, which early in the year was regarded a better 3-year-old prospect than his stablemate, Shut Out, is coming here to run in the $10,000 Kent Stakes on Saturday. Devil Diver hasn't been to the post since May 19, when he was a driving winner, and the following day he was reported as having a quarter crack. Last Sunday at Belmont Park the son of St. Germans and Dabchick worked a mile in 1.38 driving.

Red Sox Beat Browns, 7-4; Take Second

By International News Service

Boston, June 9.—The Boston Red Sox today defeated the St. Louis Browns in the series opener, 7 to 4, and climbed into second place ahead of the beaten Detroit Tigers in the American League standings.

Bobby Doerr led the Boston attack with four hits, including his tenth home run of the season, and batted in three of the runs.

Oscar Judd scored his fourth victory for the Sox, allowing eight hits. He also faned eight batters, two of them in the ninth with a Brownie on third base. One of the hits he allowed was a home run by Vernon Stephens.

Elden Auker was nicked for all of the Red Sox runs and eight of their nine hits, including Doerr's home run and another by Bill Conroy, in the seven innings he worked.

Plotnicki Signs Under Tunney

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., June 9.—Ben Plotnicki, director of athletics at James Monroe High School, has joined the Navy as a chief specialist in the athletic division under Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney and will report to Norfolk June 17. After several weeks of training in physical direction, he will be sent to one of the Navy flight training schools to be in charge of conditioning flight applicants.

Plotnicki, George Washington University graduate and football player, is a son-in-law of Senator Bulow of South Dakota. His wife will join her parents in Washington while Plotnicki is with the Navy.

What Nat Is This?

If you can recognize members of the Washington ball club, you should identify this silhouette, another in a series done for The Post. Give up? Turn to next page for the answer

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 9.—Want Babe Ruth's autograph? Or Bob Hope's. Or Craig Woods? Or Corpl. Vic Ghezzi's? Or all of them? Well, then buy a ticket to one of the more interesting golf matches of the year, to be staged Saturday at the Forest Hills field club, Bloomfield, N. J.

CONSIDINE

You don't have to attend, or come within 3000 miles of the first tee. Buy a ticket and you get an autographed score card. All the money, yes all, goes into the Navy Relief Society. There's no reason why this can't be the biggest golf match of all time, in the matter of tickets sold. The course itself can hold perhaps 6000 or 7000 fans, and will, if Harry Nash and other Jersey golf writers have their way. But if you're a golfer, and if you're interested in tossing a buck into the kitty that is taking care of Navy wives, widows, children and orphans, you can still have a part in this match by mailing a buck to Fred Corcoran, tournament manager, Professional Golfers Association, McAlpin Hotel, N. Y. C. He'll see that you get your autographs, and that the dough gets to Stanton Griffis of the Navy Relief Society, sponsor of the match.

Hope, by the way, is a good golfer. He's usually under 80 and has been down as low as 71. Puts on a good show, but doesn't ham it at all.

In one of his victory caravan matches against Crosby a lady movie fan cried, "What form!" when he was half-way through his backswing. Hope stopped his club, looked back at her, said, "Well, can I help it if the Government takes my corset, for the rubber in it?" and then completed the swing. He has sold hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of war bonds and put on great shows for troops and sailors in every place he has visited.

The match will mark Babe Ruth's first public appearance since his illness on the coast. The Babe has volunteered to play in any charity golf match arranged by the P. G. A.

Playing the Forest Hills course should bring back a host of memories to Craig Wood. It was over this layout that Craig set a record that still is hard to believe. He won the Metropolitan Open of 1939 with a tidy 72-hole score of 264, built with rounds of 66, 68, 64 and 66. Ben Hogan's 9 under par for the 72 holes, an astonishing mark in itself, was good for second money only. Wood beat him by 11 strokes!

Lefty Gomez, who claims that the only reason the Yanks are keeping him is "to balance the league," was listening to a group of fans discussing the longest hit ever made in the Yankee Stadium. Finally Arthur Brown spoke up and said that nobody ever hit one longer than Tony Lazzeri, who once belted one into the centerfield stands.

"Listen," Gomez put in, unable to hold his tongue any longer. "One day I was pitching against Foxx and somehow got two strikes on him. So I thought that that was a pretty good time to give him my high hard one. Something went bing-bing. The first bing was when he hit it. The second was when it hit far up in the third deck in the leftfield stands and went through the exit hole. Do you know how far that is? After the game I decided to find out, and it took me an hour and a half to walk from home plate to where his ball hit."

Speaking of Brown, this long-time baseball fan has a great idea which the leagues should adopt. He suggests that the baseball writers of America select a most valuable player on each of the second division clubs in both leagues. The prize would be $2000 for each man selected. It would sustain interest in each run-down city until the last day of the season, and keep those out-of-the-money clubs hustling all the way down to the wire. We think it would be the best investment baseball has made since the American League chipped in and bought Walter Johnson back from the Federal League.

A year ago, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt sat in a front-line box at the Belmont Stakes. He was president of the track, had done a fine job of building up the race, and there was much bowing and scraping before him—not that he's the kind of bloke who likes that.

Last Saturday he saw the Belmont run again. He saw it from the back of the stands, in his bos'n's mate's uniform. Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews was in the box this time, and Vanderbilt felt that it might be bad taste if he barged in.

Just a hunch: Is the Army waiting for Pvt. William Conn's maulie to mend, before it okays Corporal Louis' return to the ring? Could be.

Pirates Rout Braves, 10-2, Gain 5th Place

By International News Service

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 9.—The Pirates exchanged position with the Braves today, moving into fifth place as they handed the Bostonians their eighth straight defeat, 10 to 2. The Pirates ran their own string to five in a row.

The Bucs went on a 13-hit rampage, knocking out Lou Tost in the first inning under a four-run barrage. Johnny Hutchins held the Pirates well in hand until the eighth when seven hits produced five runs.

Rigney Hurls, Great Lakes Edges Phils, 2-1

By International News Service

Great Lakes, Ill., June 9.—John Duncan Rigney, former Chicago White Sox star, made his Navy pitching debut today, letting down the Philadelphia Phillies on seven hits as the Great Lakes Naval Training Station scored its twentieth straight victory, 2 to 1.

The Sailors scored the first run in the fifth inning, but the Phils tied it up in the eighth on successive singles by Stan Benjamin and Dan Murtaugh. Great Lakes put the winning run over in the last of the eighth on Don Padgett's single and Chester Hadjuk's double.

Rigney showed little effects from his confinement in quarantine, where he was given the usual seven vaccination "shots." He struck out six men and walked one, giving up a total of seven hits. Earle Naylor, who went all the way for the Phils, was touched for eight hits.

Fredericksburg Golfer Equals Own Course Mark

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., June 9.—Abe Bean, long No. 1 amateur golfer at Mannsfield Hall Country Club, yesterday equaled the record he set for the nine-hole course several years ago with a 32. He was seven under par for 27 holes.

His scores for the three nine-hole rounds were 34, 35 and 32.

He was over par only once, and had eight birdies.

Bean has equaled his course record of 32 on a number of occasions and has barely missed breaking it several times.

Bill Busik Gets Navy's Highest Sports Award

Honored With Sword; Teammate Bob Zoeller Given Thompson Cup; They Beat Army

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, June 9.—Navy's two standout sports shipmates, William S. (Barnacle Bill) Busik and Robert J. (Bob) Zoeller, football and basketball stars the last two years, received the United States Naval Academy's highest athletic honors today.

Busik, a product of Pasadena, Calif., whose talents as a triple-threat halfback were lauded highly last autumn, was announced by Rear Admiral John R. Beardall, Academy superintendent, as winner of the Navy Athletic Association sword, most coveted of all Navy sports awards.

Zoeller, Admiral Beardall said, was selected as the Thompson Trophy Cup winner, second highest athletic prize. The New Albany, Ind., senior, who also has been a "five-striper" regimental commander during his stay here, played end and caught many Busik-thrown aerials the last two years.

Both were outstanding members of Navy teams which thumped Army in 1940 and 1941. They also excelled in basketball and led the Middie cagers as cocaptains during the last campaign. Zoeller's 131 points in 15 games topped Busik's 126 this year and paced the Middie court scorers.

The sword, Admiral Beardall said, annually is presented for "personal excellence in athletics" while the Thompson Cup is awarded for "promotion of athletics" at the Academy. Both prizes will be presented June 17 during a "June Week" dress parade.

Busik and Zoeller won three "N-Stars" each during their Naval Academy athletic careers, the "N-Star" being awarded only to members of teams which defeat Army. Navy's basketball team won one game and lost one to Army while they were members of the court squad.

Busik also competed in track as a broad jumper and javelin thrower but did not win a major letter, receiving an "NA" monogram both years.

Busik and Zoeller are members of the 1943 Class which will graduate June 19.

Mrs. Scandiffio Winner at Manor

Finishing all even with her elusive foe, Mrs. M. Scandiffio took down top honors yesterday in the Manor Country Club match-play-against-par tournament, the feature of Ladies Day. Mrs. L. G. Pray captured gross prize with 37—42—79.

Trailing Mrs. Scandiffio were Mrs. Jack Dailey, 2 down; Mrs. H. K. Simon, 3 down; and Mrs. Max Taylor, Mrs. Mack Myers, Mrs. A. F. Puryear and Mrs. J. E. Nell, all four down. Best of the guests was Mrs. Ed Widmayer, who was 3 down.

Halfbacks Come Under Discussion By Shaughnessy

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 9.—All halfbacks, says Clark Shaughnessy, are as temperamental as opera singers, but "great halfbacks are finicky—you must let 'em alone."

The former Stanford University football coach, now directing grid destinies at University of Maryland, told the Rotary Club today his famous "T" formation was good training for actors.

"We developed real actors among the halfbacks at Stanford, and that's what they have to be—actors as well as thinkers."

Reds' Streak Of 6 Straight Halted, 3 to 1

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 9.—The Cincinnati Reds' drive upwards in the National League was brought to a halt today after they had won six straight games when they bowed to the New York Giants, 3 to 1.

Both teams got only five hits each, but the Giants bunched two of their blows with as many walks and an error to score three runs in the first inning and chase Junior Thompson to the showers. Clyde Shoun and Joe Beggs checked Mel Ott's men through the remainder of the game, but the Reds could do little with the offerings of Bill Lohrman.

Lohrman pitched one-hit ball until the sixth when Ray Lamanno's seventh homer of the year spoiled his shutout. The Reds got two other hits in the same frome, but they came with two down and did no damage.

Pro Basket Leaguers Vote Aid to War Effort

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Special emphasis on war aid was voted by members of the National Professional Basketball League meeting here today to discuss plans for the 1942-43 season. Representatives were present from Chicago, Oshkosh and Sheboygan, Wis.; Toledo, Akron, Fort Wayne and Indianapolis.

More than a third of the men on the various rosters last season are now in the armed forces, league officials said. As a result, a suggestion that the player limit be cut from 14 to 10 to equalize competition will be acted on at the scheduled meeting in October.

Marandan, Palumbo Up, Wins by a Neck at Charles Town

Pops Sister Beaten Out By My One

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9.—Marandan, owned and trained by Edward Brining of Hagerstown, Md., turned in her third victory of the meeting here this afternoon. The 5-year-old daughter of Brandon Mint and Knickers won "The Spirit of Jefferson Purse," named for a local publication, by a neck margin from My One, owned by M. B. Goss of Winchester, Va. A length and a half from the first-money battle came Mrs. M. R. Waugh's Pops Sister to be third in the field of seven going 6½ furlongs.

Marandan was a lukewarm favorite and paid a $6 mutual. She stepped the route in 1.20 3-5 over a fast track and was excellently handled by Jockey Sammy Palumbo, veteran saddle star.

Rolls Rough and Marandan did the chief front-running in the early stages. Palumbo wisely took the winner back off the pacemaker on the backstretch. My One then moved to contention on the inside. Going to the stretch, Marandan came to the outside of Rolls Rough and Jockey Bletzacker, on My One could not find racing room along the rail. He took the Goss filly out.

In the final drive, Marandan disposed of the much-used Rolls Rough to gain a good lead. Palumbo kept the mare to a drive and Bletzacker came along with My One. The filly responded to the whip and was wearing down Marandan at every jump at the end.

After spending yesterday in the clouds with that $2,189.60 pay-off, the daily double came back to earth today with an ordinary return of $35.40 on the "1 and 3" combination of Not Alone in the second race and Herod's Pilate in the third event. Jockey Buddy Root took Not Alone to the top early and the 4-year-old filly stayed there to win by four lengths from Bill K., with Zac Pam third.

BILL K was on outside and forced to lose ground early, went to contention with good energy and huns in closing drive. ZAC PAM was shuffled back early and closed gamely. CHANCER was closest to pace in early stages and weakened.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:27½. Off 3:28. Winner, T. W. Kirk's br. g. HEROD'S PILATE was in thick of contention on inside from start, disposed of CANDY LUMP to take command and held sway thereafter under drive. SKITTLES had speed in spots under strong handling. PILATE'S DREAM gained gradually in closing stages. LADY MASCARA was taken up and sent wide at first turn and closed much ground as if best.

Daily Double, NOT ALONE and HEROD'S PILATE, Paid $35.40

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Jockey Willie Kelly, prominent rider for several years hereabouts, expects to go into the Army next Monday. Mrs. E. D. Sowers has appointed J. Bowes Bond as the trainer of her Navy. Jockey Eddie Smith, who had a fall from a horse recently, discovered several days later that he had a broken thumb. Jockey L. Eversole packed his riding tack and left for Delaware Park. Yesterday's feature race was the Spirit of Jefferson Purse, named for the weekly paper that was started in 1844. Max Brown writes sports for that publication. Frank Brooke, member of the State's race commission, reports the arrival of a foal at his local farm. The colt is by Bull Moose out of Sea Faith. Bob Cook, brother of G. A. Cook, who is training a small stable here, has been called into the Army. Bob was the leading trainer at one meeting at this point. The first of the Charles Town Horse Show Association's programs will be staged in the paddock this morning. Draft horses will be judged. Lest we forget, the 18-day "Victory Meeting" opens here Monday. All profits go to the Army and Navy Relief and to West Virginia charities. Milton Hawley has taken over the training of the sprinter Calotte, formerly conditioned by M. Mein. Jockey C. Gogg, injured last Saturday, left the Charles Town Hospital yesterday. Jockey Danny Scocca expects to be released from the hospital tomorrow. Henry Tait Rodier came up for the sport yesterday. He is Mr. Bulletin. Gov. Sholtz named for the chief executive of Florida, is a sprightly horse at 10 years old. He showed a lot of punch in his fourth-race victory yesterday. Joe (Reds) Roland is serving his sixth year as a member of the press box and telegraph staff at the track. Abner Rissler, the original bugler who left us for a while to go to college, is back on the job. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—RED WINGS has the speed that counts in this abbreviated sprint and deserves the call over these. MANNY B. will be in the thick of contention and is dangerous. PANDORAMINT will be a keen factor particularly if the mud comes up.

Second race—ROM showed enough in a short sprint here to be the winner of this kind. Needs only the right ride. MOST ALERT is good now and looms as the one to beat. INCENTOR to take care of the others.

Third race—JILTING could be the right one in this open affair. Likes the course and I'm going to string along. FLAG ETTA can improve off that last. MAN AT ARMS is sure to be a contender if taken off the reserve list.

Fourth race—SMART LAD has whipped this kind and may be first home. BERWYN is going to be right there if sent postward. MINSTREL WIT should be a factor and might take it all if the mud comes up.

Fifth Race—TENSLEEP has shown class in recent races and that last was a standout. Needs only the right ride to turn back this gang. PASO GRANDE has speed and may make the most of the No. 1 post position. EBONITO has been rested and should go well.

Sixth race—BRAXTON turned in a good effort recently and promises to do a lot of running in this company. ARA-ORNIS has closing punch and is well placed. MEDRED is a possible surprise.

Seventh race—At the weights, I prefer the entry of BUTTERMAN and NEVER HOME in this sprint. Both are as fit as hands make horses. ROMAN BOY and LAST BET are the high weights but are dangerous contenders.

Eighth race — PIMLICO LADY breaks from the rail and may take the lead and hold it. MYSTIC MAN has plenty of late punch and belongs close. GOLD SWEEP is a wake-up possibility.

Ninth race—WEST SEA will like the marathon route of this event and I'm going to string along. STAND ALONE and SOME GROUCHER to take care of the others.

Substitute—If this event is used, I'll take JEAN C., CALOTTE and FEUDAL NET.

Leavens, Lynch and Rice Advance in City Tennis Tourney

Favorites' Steady Play Decisive

Victories Over Reynolds, B. Miller And Helfrich Top Play at Edgemoor

Three of the city's steadiest players held the spotlight in the City of Washington tennis tournament yesterday at the Edgemoor Club and they came through as expected.

Second-seeded Don Leavens, third-ranked Hugh Lynch and unseeded Austin Rice were the winners, all in straight sets, Leavens gaining the quarter-finals and the other two moving into the third round.

Leavens, whose polished steadiness prompts despairing foes to say they'd just as soon hit the ball against a backboard as to try and make him err, polished off Reynolds, 6—4, 6—0. Lynch, the Princeton alumnus with a lot of forehand and no backhand whatever, whipped B. Miller, 6—0, 6—3, while the veteran Rice, a marvel in physical condition, squeezed out a 7—5, 10—8 victory over Bill Helfrich.

Today's Matches

Today's matches will be featured by the battles between two standbys of District tournament play and a couple of newcomers bent on shattering the monopoly that established players have held for many years on all local titles.

Defending local prestige will be Rice who meets Bud Chandler, recently of California, and big Bill Breese who will be out to repel the bid of Jerry Courtney, late of New England. Both matches are scheduled for 6:30.

Also on the card will be a set-to at 5:30 between Lynch and Bill Reynolds, still another Johnny-Come-Lately to the local tennis scene, and an engagement between Defending Champion Barney Welsh and the winner of a second round match between Igor Cassini and Mariano Erana, starting at 3.

Breese Hard to Figure

Both Breese, the giant former Harvard star, and Rice, the wispy-haired well-built Army-Navy Club representative, are in for plenty of trouble. Breese, 6 feet 4 and 230 pounds, is considerable of a player on his better days but each year he seems to play less and less and become more unpredictable. If he is to beat Courtney, he must be at his best.

Rice's assignment is even more sizable, for in the tall, bespectacled Chandler, one time high ranking national player, he faces an exceptionally experienced and cagy stylist. Chandler, intercollegiate champion and the No. 4 player of the country in 1926, once met the best and although he has slipped a good bit, he still is capable of extending the top netmen around here.

Welsh, who is always just as good as he needs to be, should have little trouble with either Erana or Cassini, as the case may be, and Lynch, too, appears to have too many guns for Reynolds to spike.

Quarterfinal round matches are planned for Thursday. The tournament committee is still undecided as to whether it would be wise to hold a doubles tournament. Expert opinion holds that there are no more than a half dozen good tandems available and so there may be no doubles for the first time since the tournament was born.

Mellanos Forfeits To Little Tavern

Little Tavern baseball team yesterday was credited with a forfeit victory over Mellanos Cafe in the Post-Industrial League when the latter nine was unable to put enough men on the field.

Today action will be resumed when Cameo Furniture, the league leader, moves up against second-place Center Market on the North Ellipse at 5:30. A half-game now separates the clubs.

'Suicide' Takes a New Form—On the Acrobatic Side

Special Dispatch to The Post

Upperville, Va., June 9.—The half-bred 3-year-old class, a feature of the Upperville Colt and Horse Show which will be held June 12-13, has attracted ten outstanding entries and promises to be an interesting number on the first day's program. Puritan Boy, a winner of championship and blue ribbons both as a 2-year-old and as a 3-year-old, and Grandma's Boy, also a blue ribbon winner, both belonging to Peach Brothers of Upperville, are among the entries. They are by Flying Puritan.

E. L. Redmon of Middleburg has two entries in this class—No Mistake and Whizz Bang. Others include Does I Too, owned by Robert I. Skinner of Aldie; Silver Horn, Springsbury Farm of Berryville; Mme. Chiang Kai and Long Lost, Mrs. John B. Anderson of Middleburg; Randall's Surprise, U. S. Randle of Washington, and Sunbar, Meadow Lane Farm.

The largest breeding farms in the East have made entries in the thoroughbred classes, which will feature the second day of the show. Those who have made entries in the thoroughbred filly classes are H. Rozier Dulany, jr.; a joint entry by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Will Clayton and Mrs. D. C. Sands; Brookemeade Farm, Jack De Butts, W. Plunkett Stewart, Mrs. M. A. Moore, Pine Brook Farm, R. Stirling Clark, Mrs. Taylor Hardin, and Mrs. Sands.

In the thoroughbred colt class entries have been made by Meander Farm, Springsbury Farm, Dr. A. C. Randolph, Dr. L. M. Allen, A. C. Reid, Mrs. Eands, Brookmeade Farm, J. B. Clark, and a number of others.

In addition to the breeding classes, which are always an attraction at this fine old show, there will be the usual number of hunter classes, and prospects point to much entertainment from the fine performances of the long list of entries in these numbers which fill the afternoon programs. The pony classes are also well filled and will be a drawing card for many.

The management is looking forward to a successful show this year and have made every effort to carry out the traditions of this exhibition, which is said to be the oldest in the United States. The proceeds this year will go to war relief.

Red Sox's Pesky Enlists in Navy

Portland, Oreg., June 9 (AP).—Earl R. Goodwin, draft board clerk, said today that Johnny Pesky, Boston Red Sox infielder, had enlisted in the Navy.

A telegram from Pesky read, "Enlisted in Naval Aviation V-5, same as Ted Williams."

Williams, slugging outfielder of the Red Sox, enlisted last month. Goodwin added that the draft number of Pesky, a Portland youth now in his first season in the major leagues, would have been called in the near future.

Treasury to Issue 'Warless' Certificates

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday approved a plan by which religious groups conscientiously opposed to war may buy regular Government securities instead of bonds which bear the name "war."

He made public an exchange of letters with Paul Comly French, executive secretary of the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, in which the plan was outlined.

The religious groups will set up a fund which will purchase regular Treasury bills, certificates, notes and bonds, and sell participations in the fund, in small denominations, to the individuals holding these religious beliefs.

W. & L. Hoping To Sign Yound As Grid Coach

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 9.—Cy Young, former member of the grid staff of the Generals and now alumni secretary, may be the next football tutor at Washington and Lee University.

R. A. (Capt. Dick) Smith, director of athletics at the school, said at Lexington tonight that he planned to recommend Young to the school's athletic board at its meeting June 17.

Earlier today, Riley Smith, on the coaching staff of the Lexington institution since 1938, announced he had received instructions to be sworn in as a lieutenant in the Navy and to report to Annapolis on Monday to start training under the Navy's physical fitness program. Last year Smith was elevated to head grid mentor.

Young captained the 1917 edition of the General gridders and played halfback on the Southern championship undefeated team of 1915 and for several years led the Blue and White in scoring.

Smith is the State's second head football coach to enter the service and the first in the "Big Six." Hermen E. (Red) Smith of Hampden-Sydney, already is in the Navy.

The W. & L. mentor, a native of Mississippi, played with Alabama in 1934, 1935 and 1936, winning All-American quarterback honors in his senior year. Later he played professional football with the Boston Redskins, which later transferred its franchise to Washington, and came to W. & L. at the close of the 1938 season as assistant football coach to Warren E. (Tex.) Tilson.

R. A. Smith, director of athletics and baseball coach, could not be reached today for a statement. Cy Twombly is golf and swimming coach.

Maine Needs Shearers

Augusta, Me., (AP).—Maine sheep are in a hot spot because of the war. Samuel F. Dorrance, State sheep specialist, fears the State's sheep may wear their wool all year because of a shortage of shearers to harvest the annual 300,000-pound production.

Reiser's Hitting Streak Presses Phelps for Lead

Dodger Outfielder Out to Regain '41 Title As National League's Leading Hitter

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Gordon (Babe) Phelps, the bulging catcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates, still is leading the National League in batting, but the hottest hitter in the senior circuit at present is Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The fleet-footed center fielder, who won the batting crown last year as a rookie, has been surging upward ever since returning to the line-up after an injury last month. Yesterday he made six hits in a doubleheader at Chicago and boosted his average to .365. This is 22 points higher than the mark which brought Reiser the championship a year ago.

Phelps, whose pace-setting average is .376, has been out of action because of a spike wound and his first appearance in more than a week came yesterday. He went to the plate twice as a pinch hitter and made one hit to raise his mark from .373.

Big Drop to Third

There was a big spread behind these two contenders for the title and the rest of the league's principal batters and for the first time this season there were less than ten regulars batting over .300.

Based on games to and including Sunday, the top ten were Phelps, .376; Reiser, .365; Ernie Lombardi, Boston, .331; Joe Medwick, Brooklyn, Ray Lamanno, Cincinnati, .325; Mickey Owen, Brooklyn, .324; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn, .318; Danny Murtaugh, Philadelphia, .304; Max Marshall, Cincinnati, .304, and Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .297.

Reiser also has scored the most rune, 38; has tied for the most hits, 61, and tied for second in doubles with 16, one less than Stan Hack of the Chicago Cubs.

Sharing the top honors in total hits was Tommy Holmes of Boston, while Slaughter has the most triples, with 5.

Nine Homers Lead

Frank McCormick of Cincinnati took over the home run lead during the wek with a total of 9, one more than Dolph Camilli of Brooklyn and Rookie Willard Marshall of the New York Giants.

John Mize of the Giants has batted in the most runs, 40, one more than Medwick.

Eddie Miller of Boston, and Murtaugh, last year's leader, are tied for the most stolen bases with 8.

Larry French of Brooklyn still has the best pitching record, with four victories and no defeats, while his teammate, the veteran Curt Davis, has won eight games against one setback.

So you want more game to hunt, more fish to catch, and yet leave more than was left for you! Today we can have this in any State or section only by the efforts and interest that its people and sportsmen take in their surrounding natural resources.

A number of things are being done, and being done well, to increase and to conserve our wildlife resources by certain groups of sportsmen and the Izaak Walton League. However, the task in the District of Columbia is a hard one.

The enforcement of its few game laws regulating fishing for the various species of food and game fish that inhabit and migrate to spawn in the Potomac River in the vicinity of Washington are lax—to put it mildly. What is bothering sportsmen now is just what kind of enforcement District officials intend to pursue.

Now, with curtailment of offshore and inland fishing activities due to transportation difficulties, fishing in the Potomac River is bound to increase. There is every reason to believe there will be a record rush to the waters by fishermen not only from the District but from nearby Virginia and Maryland.

Many Washington anglers are becoming quite concerned on this laxity of enforcement. Every day the District's disgraceful 9-inch minimum size for rockfish or striped bass is being broken. At present this minimum size is the smallest in the Nation. At times fishermen are seen with huge strings of these small undersized stripers, and often black bass and crappie caught out of season are seen among these fish. What is being done about it? The authorities don't seem to be at all interested. Have you ever seen an officer patroling the river.

Sportsmen interested in better and more efficient fish management and game law enforcement, are invited to attend the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League's all-out meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Willard Hotel.

Col. "Bill" Chatland, of the Federal Trade Commission, and genial sportsman-conservationist, will speak in regard to striped bass or rockfish, fishing and the laws regulating both the sport and commercial angles. "Bill," has spent many years studying the striper situation along the Atlantic Coastal States and we feel sure we all shall learn much from him.

On the same program we are promised to hear something of interest to all devotees of firearms. We are told it will set many of us back on our heels. C. B. Lister, secretary of the American Rifle Association, will tell us what is behind the move to register or requisition sporting firearms.

A bill has already been introduced by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee—H. R. 6963—with the purpose of amending the so-called "District Black-Out Law."

If passed, this bill, under the blanket authority granted the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, would obviously make it possible for them to issue an order requiring the registration or requisition of privately owned firearms among other private property. This authority granted the Commissioners, who are not responsible to the inhabitants of the District, is extremely broad.

There appears to be some confusion regarding the opening dates of fishing for black bass. Last year Maryland's bass season for the first time opened June 15. This year's opening date reverted back to the old date July 1, in order to permit bass to complete their spawning.

Virginia's opening of the black bass season east of the Blue Ridge is June 15; west, July 1.

A. I. B. Names Sanderson to Council Post

Walton L. Sanderson, assistant cashier of Hamilton National Bank, has been nominated to the executive council of the American Institute of Banking, according to an Associated Press dispatch from New Orleans, where the fortieth annual convention was in progress yesterday.

SANDERSON

Nomination is tantamount to election. The executive council is the active governing body of the institute's 70,000 members.

Mr. Sanderson has been active in the local chapter, serving as president in 1934-35. He has been a member of the board of governors here for the past seven years and has served as chairman of all important standing committees.

David E. Simms of Salt Lake City, Utah, was nominated without opposition for president of the American Institute of Banking.

David L. Colby of St. Louis was nominated for vice president, and the following others were named for the executive council: George J. Greenwood, Portland, Oreg.; Herman W. Kilman, Dallas, Tex., and Everett O. Stevenson, Bound Brook, N. J.

Dr. Fred C. Wiegman, president of Midland College, Fremont, Nebr., speaking at the opening session yesterday, asked for a peace after victory that would make the world safe from aggression.

"The peace which will follow a United Nations victory will be lost, as was that following the last war, unless the will of the United Nations for a permanent peace is enforced by the use of armed strength against aggression," he said.

Henry W. Koeneke, Ponca City, Okla., president of the American Bankers Association, pointed to widespread purchase of war bonds as insurance against inflation.

Traders' Session Cancelled

The ninth annual convention of the National Security Traders Association, scheduled for Cleveland, Ohio, in August, has been postponed indefinitely, it was announced yesterday by Joseph W. Sener of Mackubin, Legg & Co., Baltimore, president of the association.

The traders decided that they would not be justified in taxing the transportation and hotel facilities of so busy a war production center as Cleveland, Mr. Sener explained. The association has a Nation-wide membership of more than 2000, including many in Washington.

Retail Grocers Table Resolution Asking Sales Tax

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—A resolution which would have placed the National Association of Retail Grocers on record as favoring a wartime retailers sales tax was tabled by an overwhelming vote at the forty-fifth annual convention of the organization today.

Other resolutions which were adopted asked:

1. Government "retrenchment on all expenses which are not necessary to the Government";

2. That "more men of successful business experience be appointed to important key positions in the OPA and other Federal agencies, and

3. That retail grocers, upon showing delivery curtailment of not less than 50 per cent under 1941 mileage, be permitted to acquire retreaded tires for delivery trucks.

The association elected P. M. Brinker of Dallas, Tex., as its president, succeeding H. H. Sack of Oakland, Calif.

Nominated without opposition and scheduled to be elected tomorrow were Ray G. Hauntz, Columbus, Ohio, vice president, and Schuyler Crawford, Wichita, Kans., present treasurer.

Cellophane Banned on Candy Bars

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Luscious candy bars no longer will do a "strip tease" in cellophane.

The peek-a-boo blouse that formerly enhanced their beauty was a war casualty today.

It's a case of using the materials that go into the pretty wrapper for gunpowder casings, declared the War Production Board in issuing its "no more cellophane wrappings on candy" order.

Candy-makers of the Nation, holding their fifty-ninth annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, agreed that cellophane was the greatest little "dresser upper" that candy ever had, but said, too, they would find attractive substitutes.

"The National Confectioners Association," said President Philip P. Gott, of Chicago, "is fully cooperating with the Government in eliminating cellophane wherever it is not required in the interests of health."

One manufacturer of a famous candy bar, distinguished by a handsomely decorated transparent covering, grinned and said:

"Guess we'll have to dress the old girl up in calico for the duration."

The delegates cheered up after visiting the United States Army's ration station, where they were informed that our fighting forces would need tons of their product to win the war.

Col. Rohland H. Isker, of the War Department's subsistence research laboratory, said that the Army had found that one good candy bar melted down would provide the equivalent of a pint of milk for a soldier.

State 'Fair Trade' Law in Conflict With OPA Act

Elizabeth, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Possibility of a conflict between the act creating the office of price administration, under which price ceilings have been set, and the New Jersey "Fair Trade" Act, under which manufacturers may forbid the cutting of prices, is seen by Nathan L. Jacobs, State OPA counsel.

In a case brought before Vice Chancellor Alfred A. Stein, Helena Rubenstein, Inc., New York, sought to compel the Charlene cut rate store of Summit, to charge prices fixed by contract with the manufacturer for cosmetics. The company said the store cut these prices.

Counsel for the store replied that that prices were in conformity with those charged last March, the maximum permissible under OPA regulations.

Vice Chancellor Stein reserved decision, and Jacobs asked a copy of that decision, when handed down, be sent to Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Most grain futures closed higher in a final rally today after fluctuating uncertainly above and below Monday's final level.

Market trends were undefined and erratic. Most traders apparently paid scant attention to news developments. The crop outlook continued favorable, although there were some reports of prospective damage to wheat because of dryness and excessive heat in the Southwest.

Wheat closed ¾ to ⅞ cent higher than yesterday, July 1.17⅛, September 1.10⅝@1.19⅛. Corn was ⅛ lower to ⅜ up, July 85¾@85⅞, September 88⅜@88½. Oats advanced ⅜ to ⅞. Rye ⅛ to ⅞. Soybeans ⅝ to 1½ and lard 2½ higher to 2.162 cents lower per hundred pounds.

Rye futures, which yesterday closed 3 cents lower, again sagged to new seasonal low record levels at times. At 61⅞ cents, the July delivery was the lowest in nearly seven months and about 23 cents under the seasonal top established in January. At this level, July rye was 1¼ under the previous close, but prices later rallied and the contract closed ½ to ¾ cent higher.

The trade apparently ignored congressional proposals aimed to boost parity prices but the announcement that 60 million bushels of wooden storage space was being provided in the main producing States for storage of Commodity Credit Corp. wheat contributed at times to the upturn in prices.

Meat Packers Acquitted in Anti-Trust Suit

By the Associated Press

St. Joseph, Mo., June 9.—The Government has failed in its initial effort to prove its charge that packing interests have engaged in widespread conspiracies to control purchases and prices in Midwestern livestock markets.

The Armour and Swift packing companies, the St. Joseph Joint Marketing Improvement Committee, the hog yards subcommittee and the local representatives of the packing companies were acquitted last night by a jury of farmers and businessmen, who deliberated more than five hours.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, who in recent years has conducted many prosecutions under the Sherman antitrust law, had assigned a special assistant, Daniel B. Britt, to the St. Joseph case. A staff of attorneys had spent weeks compiling evidence and the St. Joseph hearing was watched closely as a test suit.

The Government's case hinged around charges that Armour and Swift, through agreement, made identical purchases of hogs; that they created an artificial top price each day by setting aside choice offerings which were purchased at the markets' close at a premium price. The defendants also were accused of maneuvering to maintain Friday's prices on the Saturday market.

Walter S. Parker, general manager for Swift & Co. in St. Joseph, expressed his pleasure at the verdict.

"Knowing the policy of Swift & Co. in conducting its business in compliance with the antitrust as well as other laws, and knowing also that these policies have been strictly adhered to in St. Joseph, we were confident of acquittal," he said.

"It is, of course, unfortunate that in times like these, when all businessmen are occupied with problems incidental to the war, valuable time and effort have to be devoted to defense against unfounded attacks upon business."

Metal Tubing Group Indicted in New Case

New York, June 9 (AP). — The American Brass Co., six other corporations, 10 individuals and the Flexible Metal Hose and Tubing Institute were named today in two indictments opened by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard charging Sherman Anti-Trust Law violations in the production of important war materials.

The indictments charged conspiracy to fix and maintain prices, discounts and terms of sales of flexible metal hose and tubing, besides conspiracy to violate the Sherman Act through practices of a so-called standardization committee set up within the Flexible Metal Hose and Tubing Institute.

The latter is an association composed of the defendant companies, all of which manufacture metal hose and tubing.

The other six corporations named were: Atlantic Metal Hose Co. of New York; Breeze Corporations, Inc. of New Jersey; Chicago Metal Hose Corporation of Illinois; Forsyth Metal Goods Co. of New York; Pennsylvania Flexible Metallic Tubing Co. and United Metal Hose Co. of New York.

"The product of this industry is most vital in America's aircraft, tank and shipbuilding program," said Joseph T. Quinnan, special attorney for the Department of Justice. "It is imperative in the success of our all-out war effort that the practices indulged in by the institute and its members be eliminated."

Chemical Firms Plead Innocent

Newark, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Eight corporations and 20 individuals pleaded innocent today to a Federal indictment charging conspiracy to monopolize the manufacture and sale of dyestuffs, but several of them also obtained permission to change their pleas to attacks on the indictment's validity.

The firms were E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del., and Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation; General Aniline and Film Corporation, American Cyanamid Co., General Dyestuff Corporation, Ciba Co., Inc., Sandoz Chemical Works, Inc., and Geigy Co., Inc., all with headquarters in New York.

General Aniline was given two weeks in which to enter a demurrer and the other firms 60 days.

The indictment charges them and the 20 officers or directors with preventing manufacturers in the United States from making exports, with fixing quotas and arbitrary price scales, with preventing the manufacture of some chemicals and with preventing competitors from making dyestuffs.

New York Cotton

New York, June 9 (AP).—Cotton futures closed $1.80 to $2.00 a bale higher today to halt sagging price tendencies which went unchecked for three previous sessions.

Traders, unable to explain news factors in the upturn, attributed the reversal to a technical recovery.

Buying came from trade, mill and New Orleans interests. Introduction of a Senate bill calling for mandatory loans at full parity caused further bullish comment.

Recent declines had carried the spot position down to the year's lowest level.

Profit Taking Stems 5-day Rally in Stocks; General Motors Reacts After Hitting New Peak

New York, June 9.—The lengthy stock market rally inspired enough profit taking today to stem the rising tide. War optimism still was the main bullish prop, brokers said, but the fact the list had been up on average in five successive sessions served to revive speculative and investment caution.

It was figured the recently better brand of news from world battle fronts may have been discontinued to a certain extent.

Commission House customers began to lighten commitments after mid-day and, at the close, initial gains of fractions to around 3 points were reduced or converted into losses of as much. At that, many favorites managed to make it six recovery days in a row and the finish was no worse than moderately irregular.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 36.1, the first set-back in this barometer since the strong upswing got under way last Wednesday. Active dealings in the morning tapered off later, but transfers totaled 397,680 shares against 355,690 Monday.

So-called peace stocks were in demand at the start but even these lost climbing power in the final hour.

Eastman Kodak, up 7¾ points yesterday, largely on account of nervous short covering, retreated 3⅛ today. Lesser casualties included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors ((which made a new year's high in the forenoon), Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Boeing, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Westinghouse, General Electric, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Standard Oil (N. J.)

United Fruit held a net advance of ½ when directors voted the regular quarterly dividend of $1. American Telephone ended unchanged after being up well over a point. Improvement was retained by Goodyear, Oliver Farm, Philip Morris, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Homestake Mining, Union Carbide and Texas Co.

Of 701 individual stocks traded, 270 were up, 242 down and 190 unchanged.

A brisk comeback in cotton futures was the feature of the commodity department. This staple closed $1.80 to $2 a bale higher, making its best move in the last few minutes. At Chicago wheat was up ⅜ to ⅝ cent a bushel, corn down ⅛ to ⅜, and hogs 10 cents lower. Bonds were irregular.

In the Curb, Cities Service Power & Light $6 preferred jumped 14 points on a 40-share sale. Ahead a point or so were Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Singer Manufacturing and Sherwin-Williams, all on restricted volume. Slipping were Phoenix Securities, Cities Service common, Gulf Oil and Humble Oil. Turnover here aggregated 71,110 shares against 43,385 Monday.

C. & O. Railway Workers Agree to Forego Vacations

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway announced today that because of the war approximately 7000 shop employes of the company had agreed to forego vacations this year.

A. T. Lowmaster, vice president and general manager, said the shop workers would receive "vacation pay," in addition to their regular wages, for the time off they give up to keep the shops operating.

The plan was agreed to by both the management and the men, he said, in view of the emergency and the importance of railway operations to the war effort.

"It was a very gracious thing on the part of the men," Lomaster declared.

Late Earnings Statements

Pullman Co., sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman, Inc., reported net operating income of $735,468 for April compared with net operating income of $95,732 in April, 1941. Net operating income for the four months ended April 30 was $2,184,674 against $1,420,779 in the same 1941 months.

Thompson Products, Inc., reported its operations produced $568,556 profit the first quarter against $501,292 on the same basis for 1941, but deducted $437,771 for net loss of Thompson Aircraft Products Co., a new nonconsolidated subsidiary, thus cutting the net profit to $130,784 or 33 cents a common share.

Sales of Electric Appliances Show Sharp Drop in May

New York, June 9 (AP).—For the first time since the war started in Europe, sales of electrical appliances by distributors in May were considerably below that month in 1941, due principally to the curtailment in production ordered by the Government.

A tabulation by trade sources of distributors' sales in May showed that in some cases volume fell as much as 50 per cent from the 1941 level. Production of a great majority of electrical appliances ended on May 30 and, while manufacturers were allowed to operate at a higher rate in that final month, a steady decline in material inventories prevented many from taking advantage of this situation.

Retail sales also have begun to show the effects of restricted output, trade sources said, although retailers' stocks were found by the survey to be generally adequate to cover absolute needs during the remainder of 1942. The big variety formerly available, however, will be missing.

New York Exchange Firms Plan to Merge

New York, June (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange firms of Evans, Stillman & Co. and Maynard, Oakley & Lawrence announced today they were arranging to consolidate their business on July 1.

All general partners of the two firms will continue as partners in the consolidated concern which will be known as Stillman, Maynard & Co.

Contract Bridge

We sense underbidding in this part-score problem presented by Mrs. L. B. "Will you advise me on this?" she asks. "The score is 60 for North-South, and South holds this hand."

♠KJ95

"South opens the bidding with one spade; North responds two diamonds. Must South bid again; it gives game and he had a minimum?"

There is nothing to compel a player holding the bidding open after a game has been reached, except a slam signal. This is true of the part-score situation as well as any. Since game had been reached with North's two-diamond bid—the 40 points completing the 60-point partial—Mrs. L. B. was under no compulsion to bid again. If her partner had a big hand and was thinking about a slam, she should have made a jump which would have forced Mrs. M. B. to hold open the bidding for at least one more round.

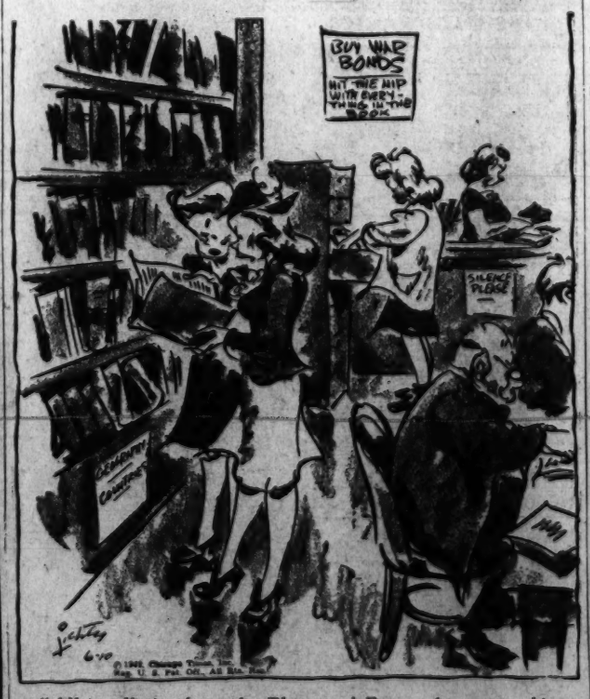
Grin and Bear It — By Lichty



"All it tells is about the Flora and Fauna, but not a thing about the kind of girls they'll see in Australia!"

with Glynn

Bill Pierson knows what he likes, but he doesn't know very much about music. He admits the latter charge quite readily, even though as a youth he went through the usual two or three year ordeal of trying to learn how to play the violin.

And yet, such are the quirks of fate Bill today is responsible as George Sebastian, the symphony conductor with whom he works, for the magnificent quality of the music which you hear over WJSV and the Columbia network every Wednesday night in "Great Moments in Music."

For you should know that despite their other excellences, the old masters of music didn't compose for radio. In practically every score that's been written for an orchestra there are spots where, if it weren't for guys like Bill, the volume of sound would just blast the program off the air. And, as the engineer on the show, Bill knows to the split decibel just how much of the tonal range of a symphony can be absorbed by the radio transmitter.

Accordingly Bill follows a score of his own during the productions, an unorthodox series of duck tracks and strictly unmusical, but as important as are the musical notes themselves in the production over the air of this great music.

And thus it happens that, while Bill as a musician couldn't wheedle a high C out of a piccolo, alert at his mixing panel in the control room of the studio he's as responsible as the conductor for what you hear in music over the radio.

How to Write Person Interned Or Taken by Japs

If somebody you know has been officially announced as captured or interned by the Japanese, here is how to write to him:

Address the letter with full name, military title and branch of service (if any), indication of previous address (as "Formerly at Wake, Guam, etc.") and add the direction, "American Prisoner in Japan, care of International Red Cross Committee, Geneva, Switzerland."

Put your name and address on the back of the envelope.

The District Red Cross gave the instructions, saying that thousands of telephone enquiries had been received since the Philippines fell. The Red Cross said there is no way to send parcels to prisoners at present.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Conversion to Wartime Program — BY MILTON CANIFF

AS YOU CAN SEE, HANDSOME ONE, THE DRAGON LADY'S MEN ARE LOYAL TO HER PERSON, AS WELL AS TO CHINA! IT WAS A MISTAKE TO MAKE A THREATENING GESTURE TOWARD THEIR LEADER!

DON'T GIVE ME THAT "WOMAN OF MYSTERY" ROUTINE — PUT YOUR CARDS ON THE TABLE!
SO I WILL, BLUNT ONE! AROUND THE WEEPING MOUSE YOU WERE LIKE A DOTING UNCLE... — THE DRAGON LADY KNOWS HOW TO EMPLOY THE MILITARY SKILL OF SUCH A POWERFUL MAN — INSTEAD OF FORCING HIM INTO THE POSITION OF NURSEMAID... THOSE STRONG ARMS WILL NOW BE PUT TO BETTER USE THAN CARRYING SMALL GIRLS...
